MR. TRUEBLOOD SPEAKS

In the absence of Rev. Joseph Peel, regular pastor of New Garden Friends' meeting, Mr. Trueblood delivered the regular sermon, in which he portrayed human nature. He said that a railway terminal is representative of a cross-section of human life and interest. Every day it offers something new, strange and different from what it was the day before. It is the movement, in evidence, everywhere that causes the continuous change. People like the hurry and the hustle because it strikes a responding note in every life. Movement is fundamentally characteristic of human nature. Probably there are not many people in Guilford college that have lived here all their lives and in the city, people are moving continually. The universe and the earth even are moving at an incredible rate. It would seem that movement is essential.

People move onward in their ideas. From year to year opinions change and develop so that the human mind does not become stagnant. The change comes so early that it is natural and normal. The change may be for the good or the bad, forward or backward. Mr. Trueblood said, "In the game of life the ball is always in motion with no time out. The stream of life is always running in one way or the other." These facts bring one definite conclusion. "People must move in one direction or the other." This motion is affected by companions or circumstances that cannot be remedied. But Mr. Trueblood said, "The great thing is that the opportunity to decide the direction is left to the individual. The few years in the span of human life may have a wondrous effect on the rest of time. In Mr. Trueblood's opinion, "Our lives are only stops over night. We come into this life from we know not where, leave a few scratches on the earth and go on as strangers, pilgrims."

Y. M. C. A.

Professor Trueblood gave a very interesting talk in Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening on "What Can a Man Believe?" The speaker began his remarks by stating that in every college there are "bull sessions," where boys get together to talk over the most important subjects concerning them. These subjects cover a wide range of territory, but they mostly always come back to religion. They are all interested to know what it is all about. Their lives until now have been filled with the sayings of another, that is, they started out in life accepting everything mother told them in regard to life. They have grown up thinking the Bible is the inspired Word of God and contains nothing but infallible truths. Very few children have parents who really think. The boys who sit in on this bull session are older now. They find contradictions in the Bible, sometimes on major issues. Life is really not what they expected to find it, if they take their mother's version of it.

Edmund Garess has written a book entitled "Father and Son," which was used to illustrate this very clearly. Professor Trueblood gave a brief summary of the author's life, telling of his disillusionment.

Every boy comes to this same place in the road, where he must drop some of the opinions that he has already formed and take on new ones; but through it all the essential religion continues. Religion, as defined by the speaker, "is a sense of one's unity with the great mysterious spirit of the world." College life may have this effect on us: it may change our views; but it does not change our religion. Our theology is simply the clothing which our spirits wear.

God is the great unifying spirit of it all. He is the great force that brings us to a happier understanding in all these complexities of life.

The speaker ended his remarks by stating that "When a man is saved it means he is saved from isolation, isolation from his fellowmen and not from a physical hell."

Y. W. C. A.

At the regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A. in Memorial Hall Thursday evening, October 20, 1927, "The Future Hope of the Y. W. C. A. at Guilford" was discussed by Frances Osborne, leader. Probably no talk that has been made on the campus this year has aroused as much enthusiasm and pep, on the part of the girls, as that of Miss Osborne.

Many of the new girls did not realize what the future hope of the Y. W. C. A. really implied, but they were told by Miss Osborne that for some time it has been the hope of Y. W. C. A. to build a hut for the girls, and that this year there has been more discussion of the question than ever before.

Miss Osborne stated that the hut would mean very much to the girls, but the greatest help would be the meeting place that it would afford them.

It is estimated that it will cost $2,500. "There is no way to raise this money but through the help of all the girls," Miss Osborne stated, "and each girl must feel her own responsibility." She then mentioned some ways by which the money might be raised. There are to be two bazaars held in New Garden Hall this year and they are to be larger than ever. This money is to be put on the fund for the hut. If each one of the students could pledge $5.00 each, there would not be much trouble getting the rest of the money. Then some personal gifts are also expected from those people who are interested in the activities of the college.

She also presented a rough drawing and gave a short description of the hut.

Much enthusiasm is felt, and it is hoped a hut may be built in the near future. The cooperation of every student is needed.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT ADOPTS STANDARD PIN

Enthusiasm is not lacking in the Euphonian Glee Club for every member appeared promptly on time Wednesday evening, and they were soon down at work, with the high sopranos trying to reach "A" and then the second altos descending as low as "G." Two selections are well on their way and Mr. Noah thinks the business manager may secure a date during the last of November.

The regular business meeting followed. The constitution was read and adopted. The matter of getting pins for the club was also discussed. It was decided that a standard music pin be adopted for the entire music department, including the Boys' Glee Club, the boys' pin being a key and the girls' having the same design.

structive. She has trained two daughters who are quite up to the standard set by their mother's subject.

On Sunday evening the entire college was given the opportunity of hearing Mrs. Tubbs talk. She spoke in Christian Endeavor on "The Need of Religious Education." Her topic was well chosen and was one which needs consideration.
