MINNESINGERS CLUB RETURN AFTER TRIP TO EASTERN POINTS

Give Program of Much Variety and Color, Singing Sacred and Secular Numbers

FIVE CONCERTS GIVEN

Ira Newlin Pleases Audience in the Role of Comedian While Reynolds and Robertson Do Feature Stunt

March 31.—The Minnesingers Glee Club returned today from a tour of the eastern part of the state where they gave concerts at Spring Hope, Rich Square, Windsor, Hertford, and Saxapahaw. The program presented at the above mentioned places was one of much variety and color. The club sang sacred and secular numbers and according to some of its critics presented the best program it has for several years. Both instrumental and vocal numbers were on the program, but the best received numbers were those given by the quartette and a popular group of songs by Paul Reynolds and Glenn Robertson, both of which were given in costume. The glee club also sang one group of familiar melodies around the campfire, which was well received by the audience. Ira Newlin as comedian pleased his audiences with his original humorous selections and stunts.

The first concert was given at Spring Hope on Tuesday night before a fairly large and appreciative audience. The Minnesingers gave two performances at Rich Square. In the afternoon the club and quartette rendered a few selections before the consolidated school at the chapel period. The evening program was well received by a small audience. A matinee concert was given at Windsor High School on Wednesday. Raleigh Tremain, an old Guilfordian, welcomed the club here and sponsored the concert. The best performance of the club was given Thursday night at Hertford. The club was called back several times for encores. The Gleemen terminated their tour with a concert at Eli Whitney High School at Saxapahaw on Friday night.

LAVONEHIE BARROWS TALKS TO Y. W. C. A.

Is Returned Missionary From Guatemala
Where She Has Been Teaching in Indian School

March 29.—Miss Lavonehie Barrows, a returned missionary from Guatemala, spoke in Y. W. C. A. Thursday evening.

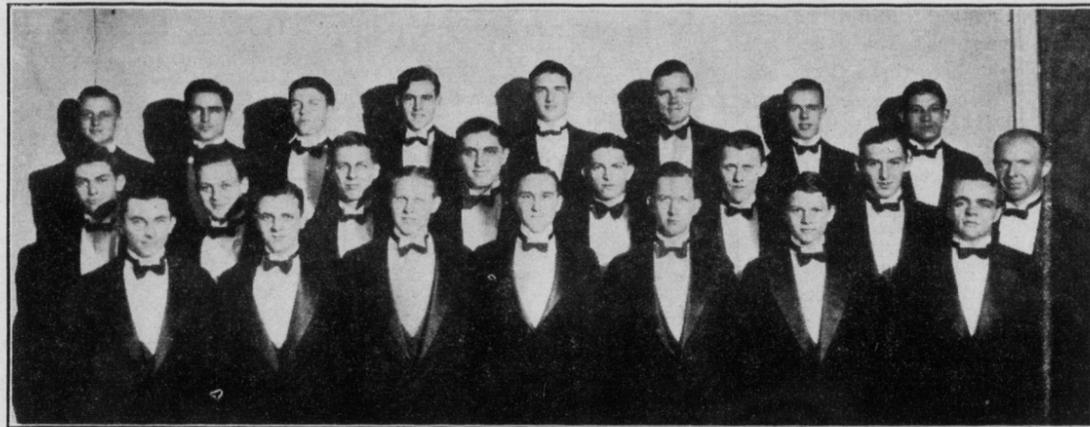

Miss Barrow has spent four years in San Antonio, Guatemala, where she taught in an Indian Mission school for four years. This school is located at an altitude of 5000 feet.

She gave as an example of the progress that has been made the case of Helen Trater, an Indian girl. Miss Trater is the only girl who has graduated from this school at San Antonio. She completed an eight-year course in three years and is now at a state normal school preparing to be a teacher.

Miss Barrows stressed the importance of definite prayer. She said that it was a great factor in our lives and she asked that people consider the need of prayer in their communities, country, and in foreign lands.

The following alumni and old students visited Guilford this past week: Olive Crow, Inez White, Bertha Zachary, Juliet and Julia Dwiggens, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hayworth, and Richard Hobbs.

MINNESINGERS GLEE CLUB

The Guilford College Minnesingers, formerly known as the Guilford College Glee Club, is being recognized as one of the leading men's glee clubs in the state. The club was organized in 1922 and since has prepared a program each year. The number of concerts per year has varied.

From March 27 to 30 this year the Minnesingers made their annual tour through Eastern North Carolina, having great success. The season has only started. Several concerts will be scheduled for April and early May. The annual home concert will be given Saturday, April 14, at 8:15 o'clock.

The program this year is, as usual, a varied one. All types of numbers, musical and otherwise, appear on it. Both sacred and secular chorus music is given along with vocal and instrumental solos, special novelty selections, sung in costume and with lighting effects.

FINAL CONSTITUTION ACCEPTED BY S. A. B.

New Point System for Participation in Extra-Curricular Activities Is Ready for Vote of Organizations

A. S. PARKER ELECTED PRESIDENT

March 27.—At its regular meeting tonight the Student Affairs Board adopted the constitution drawn up by the constitution committee and elected A. Scott Parker, of High Point, president of the Board. The constitution gives the Board general supervision over all its member organizations, though it does not have legislative power over any of them. Among other things, the constitution provides for a general election for all student organizations and it also empowers the board to help work out the college calendar.

A point system has been drawn up and this was also accepted by the Board under the new system. An "A" student may carry as many activities as he desires, a "B" student is limited to 13 points, a "C" student may have 9 points, and a "D" average limits one to 4 points. The student activities are divided into four groups, on a basis of time required to carry out the duties of the office.

Such activities as editor-in-chief of either publication are listed in group four, members of the varsity teams are in group three, the glee clubs are classed in group two, while the minor positions in all organizations fall in group one.

The officers of the organization are: President, Scott Parker; vice-president, R. Marshall; secretary, Catherine Cox; assistant secretary, Mildred Kimrey.

Euphonian Banquet

The Euphonian Glee Club will hold its annual banquet Tuesday evening, April 3, at the Hylmore Tea Room. The members of the Glee Club and honorary guests will be present. An elaborate menu and charming decorations are being planned. The program committee hopes to have Dr. Binford, Dean Trueblood, Dean Andrews and Professor Noah present at the banquet to contribute to the program. Sarah Edgerton, president of the club, will act as toastmistress. Capable committees have been appointed to assist in making the banquet one of the most successful social occasions of the year.

A number of prints of famous pictures are on display in the library.

CANDIDATES ARE NAMED

March 31.—Guilford College has been turned from a quiet, calm, Quaker institution into a seething, boiling, excited political battleground during the past week and it will doubtless continue in this state till Wednesday morning when the Guilford students will take a straw vote to indicate their preference for the next president of the United States. The chapel period last Tuesday morning was devoted to speech-making by the ardent supporters of the various candidates of both parties. Those affiliated with the Democratic party brought forward Alfred Smith (greeted with loud demonstration), Will Rogers, "Ma" Ferguson, Jim Reed, and Governor Ritchie as suitable White House timber, while the Republicans loudly praised Herbert Hoover, ex-Governor Lowden and Charles Dawes.

About 100 delegates were present at the Democratic conventions which was called to order by Chairman Rozell. After the keynote address and appointment of the national committee, Alfred Smith was nominated as the party standard-bearer by acclamation. Smith will run on a platform of cleaning up Republican corruptions, farm relief, and a return of the government from corporations to the people.

The Republican candidate has not been nominated but the party leaders, Robertson and Wilkins, are perfecting plans for the party plans which is stated to come off Monday. It is freely predicted that Hoover will be the Republican candidate.

An extensive, intensive campaign will be carried on by both parties this week. Both sides are predicting victory. A Scott Parker, chairman of the Democratic National committee, and Edwin Rozell, Smith manager, claim the Democrats will win by a margin of 50 votes. Walter Robertson, chairman of the Republican National committee, predicts victory for his party's choice. Sal Wilkins claims she will be secretary of state under the Republican president next fall.

GUILFORD ARGUIERS TO MEET ELON MEN

Trueblood and Haworth to Uphold
Affirmative and Gold Dust Twins
Will Support Negative

The debating club will close its season on Wednesday night when the Guilford arguers meet Elon in a dual debate on armed protection of American investments in foreign countries. As yet Elon has not engaged in any debates, so their strength is not known. The Guilford team got off to a bad start, dropping a dual encounter to Catawba, but later the negative team defeated Atlantic Christian College and for the first time the debaters won the triangular debate with Lenoir-Rhyne and High Point. Guilford's affirmative team will be made up of Clare Trueblood and Byron Haworth, who will debate at Guilford while Worth Mackie and Edwin Rozell will go to Elon to defend the negative side of the query.

Mrs. Hobbs has been visiting her daughter in Charlotte.

"Gaius and Gaius, Jr." Shows Interesting Sketch of Southern Plantation
Life—Sink and Harper Do Well

March 31.—The Guilford College Dramatic Council presented three one-act plays as their annual spring performance. In the order of their presentation they were: "Gaius and Gaius, Jr." by Lucy Cobb; "Where the Cross Is Made," by Eugene O'Neill; and "Agatha," by Jane Toy. The first and last are Carolina folk plays.

"Gaius and Gaius, Jr.," the worthy aristocratic father and modern son of the Masefield family (1859), alias Olin Sink and James Harper, were the foundation of this unique comedy. Gaius Masefield, an aristocratic Southern plantation owner who possessed slaves, was more interested in the financial success of his estate than in the occupants of the plantation. Due to his fits of physical helplessness, his wife, as Blanche Stafford, and son, could demand their wants and they would be granted. It was during a supposed swelling sickness (by chance he put on his son's suit) that the "dear" Doctor Foster, played by Bunyan Andrews, rushed to his need; while there the will was written giving the son permission to marry, and the negro slaves, Evelyn Hodgkin, Paul Jassmedes, and Charles Zachary, relief from Sunday work.

The tragedy, "Where the Cross Is Made," carried with it a unique setting, an atmosphere of unexpected, and characters that seemed like spirits.

On a windy night in the year 1900, Nat Bartlett, as Irvin Rosenfelt, sat in his father's cabin by the sea talking to Dr. Higgins, alias Bunyan Andrews, of his insane father, Floyd Pate. The father had become insane because of the dream of his lost ship and of valuable treasure. The sister, Sue Bartlett, played by Lena Farlow, interferes with the idea of taking her father away. In the end, the insane captain comes in, relates his dream, thinks he sees his ship in the harbor, and then the spirits of his dead comrades, William Ward, as Silas Horne, Edward Moore, as Cares, and Harris Moore, as Jimmy Kanaka, drift through the room. Nat, who has become insane also, jumps for-
