FACULTY WIVES CLUB PRESENTS EXCELLENT PLAY HERE LAST SAT.

"The Imaginary Invalid," Written by Moliere, Causes Audience Much Laughter

MRS. BINFORD ACTS WELL

Prof. Williams and Miss Laura Worth Effective as Argan and Beline; Esther Reece Is Charming Daughter

May 5.—The Guilford College Faculty Wives Club last night presented to a large audience at Memorial Hall a French comedy, "The Imaginary Invalid," by Moliere. The funds from the play are to be used by the club in buying new curtains for the auditorium.

The scene of the play is laid in Paris in the 17th century. Argan, the invalid, is quite proud of the fact that he is sick and because he fears he may die he decides to make his will. His wife Beline has done all in her power to entice Argan to put his daughter, Angelique, in a convent and not to leave her any of the family fortune. Because of her jealousy and deceitfulness, Beline finally succeeds in her purpose, with the exception of sending the daughter to a convent. Angelique has secretly fallen in love with Cleante, a French music master, but she cannot bring him to her home because she is afraid to tell her father. She confides in Toinette, the maid, who very cleverly gets her out of the difficulty. Without Angelique's knowledge Argan promises to give her in marriage to Thomas

TOM SYKES CONDEMNS GUILFORDIAN IN CHAPEL

Speaker Declares That Ideas Advocated by the Editor Will Lead to Immorality and Disaster

FEARS FOR CHASTITY OF HIS CAT

April 30—"I feel nervous—I've been reading The Guilfordian lately and that is enough to make anyone nervous," said Tom Sykes, well known High Point minister, in chapel this morning. "There has been an undercurrent of unrest, an air of criticism prevalent expressed in your college paper that bodes ill for the institution," he continued.

"People are treading on dangerous ground when they start questioning the things that have been questioned here. You may think you know it all, but there are some things you do not need to investigate. The things that have been advocated here are the things that lead to immorality. You say you know a thing or two we older folks didn't know, but don't be too sure. I have been through the damaged goods department of some of our state institutions and have seen the bodies of men literally rotting away. You can't afford to fool with some ideas. You don't need to investigate; you need to follow the path of Jesus."

The things that compete, that conflict with the Christ-like way, are dangerous, are not worthy of our attention."

"Anyone that speaks of platitudes in connection with Christianity of the Christ-like way is off the track," said the speaker, referring to a recent editorial in The Guilfordian. "I would not trust such a person with my daughter—no, I would not trust him out in the back yard with my cat," concluded Mr. Sykes.

Miss Louise Is No Better

Miss H. Louisa Osborne, who for some weeks has been ill and was taken to a hospital in Indianapolis, Indiana, on April 8, has been removed to her home at Greensboro, Indiana, after an apparently successful operation. Although her condition at the present time is not critical, she does not seem to be gaining strength as had been hoped and expected.

PRESS CONVENTION IS HELD AT DURHAM

Duke University Entertains the Journalists of the North Carolina Publications

ROZELL-PARKER HONORED

The fifteenth semi-annual meeting of the North Carolina Intercollegiate Press Association convened at Duke University April 26-27, and 28. The convention closed Saturday noon with the awarding of prizes and election of new officers. Over one hundred collegiate journalists, representing virtually every college in the state, attended the convention.

Walter Spearman, editor of The Tar Heel, succeeds H. L. Hester, of Duke, as president of the association, and the officers to serve with him are Katie Gravely, of N. C. C. W., first vice-president; Charles Pratt, of Davidson, second vice-president; Alice Dowd, of Meredith, secretary; and A. S. Parker, Jr., business manager of The Guilfordian, treasurer.

The Chronicle, of Duke University, was selected as the best collegiate newspaper by the Winston-Salem Journal, and Pine Needles, of N. C. C. W., was chosen as the best yearbook. The Greensboro Daily News selected Elmer Cloer, of Wake Forest, as the best college editor, while Edwin Rozell, editor of The Guilfordian, was chosen second best, and the editor of The Davidsonian was awarded third place.

The convention opened with a dinner at Welcome Inn Thursday night at which all the officers of the association spoke. This dinner was followed by a theater party at the Paris Theater. Friday the delegates were officially welcomed by Dean Wanamaker, after which President Hester gave his address. The rest of the day was taken up with reports of publications, addresses, and routine business. The biggest single event of the entire session was the address of W. O. Saunders, of Elizabeth City.

Group discussions for magazines, annuals, and newspaper were held Saturday morning. W. A. Daniels led the annual group, J. B. Hubbel spoke to the magazine editors, and Wallace Stamey talked with the newspaper men. Davidson was chosen as the next meeting place.

Friday night the delegates enjoyed a dinner at the Washington Duke Hotel. An address by Dean Wanamaker and dancing were among the attractions of the evening.

Mr. Saunders declared that our daily newspapers have become commercialized and dare not tell the truth. "If you young folks want to succeed in the field of journalism, get on a weekly newspaper where you can speak the truth," said the speaker.

The Guilfordian was represented by Alice Hazard, Scott Parker, and Edwin Rozell, while Everett Beamon and Catherine Cox attended for The Quaker.

PLANS FOR SUMMER SESSION COMPLETED

High Standard of Summer Work to Be Maintained as Courses Are Given in German, French, Biology, Chemistry, Math, English, American History, and History of Education. Larger Attendance Than Usual Is Expected.

All of the plans for summer school have not been made, but the following information was given by Dean Trueblood as fairly certain. The summer session will begin June 6 and end August 8. Dean Trueblood will be the director and will also teach history and education. Miss Leonore Goodenow will be dean of women and teach English; Miss Campbell will teach biology and French, and Dr. Meredith will teach German. Chemistry and mathematics will also be given, but the instructor has not yet been secured. The courses definitely decided upon are German 1-2, French 1-2, Biology 1-2, Chemistry 1-2, Math 1-2, English 1-2, 5-6, American History and History of Education. The last named course will be given in such a way that the credit can go to either the Department of Education or the Department of Philosophy. In special cases courses will be given where only one or two students apply, thus approximating the tutorial system. The girls will stay in Founders Hall and the boys in Archdale. Previously the boys have stayed in Cox, but since there will be just about enough to fill Archdale, it will be better to have them centrally located.

Dean Trueblood believes that, due to the number of applications already received, the enrollment will be slightly larger than usual. He also made it clear that the work in the summer session was to be of the same academic standard as the rest of the year's work.

Miss Catherine Cox, assisting Mr. Reynolds in his recital, will play "Viennese Carnival Pranks," by Schumann. Miss Virginia Saunders will give two piano solos, "Hark! Hark! The Lark!" by Schubert, and "Irish Tune from County Derry," by Grainger. Mr. Max Noah will accompany Mr. Reynolds.

QUAKER NET MEN GET EVEN BREAK ON TRIP

Rain Plays Havoc With the Plans for a Four-Day Invasion of Western North Carolina Colleges

The Guilford tennis team broke even in their invasion into Western North Carolina. Rain interfered with a third match that was to have been played at Rutherford.

The Catawba crew were taken on April 16th and the Guilford men scored a 5-2 win over their rivals. This was the Quakers' first inter-collegiate meet of the season and they showed good form. Mackie, Spivey, and Van der Voort won both their single and double matches.

The team was scheduled to play Lenoir-Rhyne on the 17th. Due to the inclement weather the meet was held in the gymnasium. Guilford's men had never played indoors before and were at a disadvantage. The lighting facilities were poor and, as there was but one court, the play continued until 10 o'clock. Lenoir finally won, 6-1. Mackie scored Guilford's love win in his singles after a hectic three sets, 6-2, 6-8, 7-5.

LADIES OF BENNETT SING AT Y MEETING

Miss Jessie Lee Johnson, First Soprano, Especially Good, and Miss L'Freda Sandifer Is Well Received

SPIRITUALS MAKE BEST APPEAL

April 25.—Probably one of the best entertainments of the year was that given Wednesday evening, when the women's double quartet of Bennett College gave a concert before a joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. in Memorial Hall. The concert was directed by Miss Ernestine V. Burton, head of the voice department of Bennett College. Miss Burton also acted as accompanist.

The program consisted of solo, quartette, and octette numbers. Perhaps the best received numbers were a group of spirituals, given by the octette, a solo, "Homing," by Miss Jessie Lee Johnson, and a contralto solo, "Not Understood," by Miss L'Freda Sandifer.

The entire program was well given and it was, indeed, one of the best received of the whole year. The musical selections chosen seemed to be selected by criteria for excellence, distinction, and freshness. Especially noticeable was the work of Miss Jessie Lee Johnson, first soprano, who carried the solo parts in many of the numbers. She sang with much ease and grace.

The personnel of the octette is as follows: First sopranos, Misses Johnson and Wright; second sopranos, Misses Davis and Hayley; first altos, Misses Price and Caldwell; second altos, Misses Sandifer and Mitchell.

C. HOYLE HEADS MEN'S STUDENT COUNCIL HERE

Is From Gaffney, S. C., and Prominent Member of Rising Senior Class. Holds Many Other Offices

At a recent election of officers of the Men's Student Council to serve 1928-29, J. Cranford Hoyle, of Gaffney, S. C., was elected president. He succeeds Walter Robertson, of Mt. Airy. Mr. Hoyle is a prominent member of the rising senior class, and his election to the office is no doubt deserved. He is now serving in the capacity of chief usher, baseball manager, and is captain-elect of the 1928 football team.

Other officers elected were Walter Davis, of Yadkinville, vice-president, and Olin Sink, of Lexington, secretary.

WEBSTERIAN SOCIETY ENTERTAINED BY THE PHILS AT RECEPTION

Sketches From "As You Like It," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Hamlet" Are Given

IS MODERNIZED PROGRAM

Society Halls in Founders Become Festive Place for Occasion Refreshments Served

May 4.—A modernized Shakespearian program featured the Phil-Web reception, which was held Friday evening. The first number, given by Mary Lou Wilkins, was a revealing autobiography of Shakespeare, in which he told in formal detail all the main events of his life and assured us that he is resting quite comfortably now in his tomb. In "The Prologue," Ruby Hall warned us that untoward events were about to take place in the name of art, and she begged us not to be alarmed. "As You Like It" proved to be vocal solos by Jo Paul, while "Hamlet's Soliloquy," by Nell Thomas, was the ever-passing question of whether to be or not to be a grind. The proper romantic touch was furnished by the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," in which Effie Stevens and Jo Paul had stellar parts. Juliet seated herself comfortably on a table, there being no balcony handy, and held forth at great length about the quality and quantity of her love for Romeo. That infatuated youth believed every word of it.

Tragedy followed fast on the footsteps of romance. The witch scene from "Macbeth" couldn't have been more eerie in the original. Annie Wagoner, Katie Stuckey, and Louise Melville were excellent hags. With truly witch-like premonition they foretold the dreary future. The two Wilkins sisters are doomed to a life of travel, selling reducing creams and what not, while Walter Robertson is to be a Palmolive add model. Annie Smith, due to so much boozing at college, has turned her own bootlegger.

REGINALD MARSHALL BASKETEERS CAPTAIN

Basketballs, Stars, and Letters Awarded Nine Men, and Coach Crawford Commends His Team

CAGERS BANQUET AT HYLMORE

May 1.—The annual basketball banquet was held in Hylmore Tea Room tonight at which time elections were held and awards presented. There were 19 present, including Coach Crawford, Algie Newlin, Professor Purdom, Manager Parker and the entire squad.

Reginald Marshall, of Germantown, N. C., was elected captain for next year's squad. Marshall has been a hard, colorful, consistent player for the past three years. He succeeds Stanley Moore, of Greensboro. At the same time, it was announced that Currie Spivey would serve as next year's manager.

For the first time, gold basketballs were awarded. Coach Pat Crawford made a short talk in which he expressed his appreciation for the showing made during the past season, saying that the basketball squad was one of the finest bunches of boys he had ever worked with. He predicted that Guilford would have a still better squad next year.
