ASSOCIATION SOUTHERN COLLEGES HAS MEETING

Guilford College Curriculum Discussed By Dr. Binford During Conference

GUILFORD IS A MEMBER

At the chapel period Monday, December 7, Dr. Binford related some of the experiences connected with his trip to Montgomery, Alabama, where he attended the meeting of the Association of Southern Colleges.

The Association meets the first week in December each year. This year it met at the Jefferson Davis hotel in Montgomery, Ala. In the lobby of the hotel, college presidents sat on the bench waiting to appear before the commission which was to determine whether or not applications for membership should be granted.

Guilford was admitted as a conditional member three years ago. Now, it has an unconditioned membership. Every third year a report has to be made to the Commission to show whether the standards for membership are maintained. Dr. Binford made Guilford's report and was congratulated on its excellency.

On Wednesday, the Deans of the Southern Colleges had a conference to discuss curricula, and comprehensive examinations. Dr. Binford was invited to discuss Guilford's curriculum. It is regarded as the most progressive of the curriculums of Southern Colleges—with the exception of that of Rollin's College, Orlando, Fla.

On Thursday the main session of the convention took place. Alabama's governor, Mr. Miller, gave the address of welcome. Like most politicians, he took himself rather seriously. He gave the assembly a most profound welcome from the length and width of the state of Alabama. His slogan for teachers would be "Simplify, Don't Mystify."

The question of standards for membership in the Association was discussed. At the present time practically all the standards are somewhat superficial and mechanical in nature: A college must have a given number of Ph. D.'s on its faculty, an endowment of $500,000, a certain number of volumes in its library, a given number of units for admission requirements, etc.

These standards have been severely criticized on their mechanical nature. So, the Association hopes to set standards that will test the student to see whether he has been helped by the mechanical apparatus by which colleges are now judged.

MR. NEWLIN GIVES VIEWS ON CONGRESS

Speculates On The Session Meeting Dec. 7

Professor Algie Newlin talked to the chapel group on December 1, on "Speculations Of What Congress Will Do" when it meets in its first session of the seventy-second session on December 7th.

Because of the present line-up in Congress it will be especially interesting to watch the turn of events at this session. There are forty-eight Republicans, forty-seven Democrats, and one Farm-Laborite in the Senate. Then there's the problem of choosing a speaker for the house.

If the Democrats reorganize they may elect the speaker of the house and also the president of the senate. And all the chairmen of all the sixty-one committees will be Democrats.

There will probably be time left to introduce a few schemes for Economic Relief. Other things that may be discussed are: The balancing of the budget, the question of Muscle Shoals, foreign policy, and the attitude of the U. S. to the Manchurian crisis, Hoover's moratorium war debt, world court, and disarmament.

Y. W. C. A. Has Christmas Program

The Young Women's Christian Association had its regular weekly meeting on Thursday evening.

Grace Hassell, president, acted as leader. A Christmas program was given. Edith Cooke read the scripture lesson and Ruby Crews read a short Christmas story.

Bill Alley was the dinner guest of Jimmie Bunn at Founders Hall, Monday night, December 14.

Margaret Warner, Julia Plummer, Allen White and Bera Brown visited at the home of the latter Tuesday, December 15th.

Choir Gives First Concerts Of Year

Program Presented At Oak Ridge And Kernersville

The A Capella Choir gave its first concert of the year at Oak Ridge in the public school on Thursday afternoon, December 3, at three o'clock. The second concert was given in the Methodist Church at Kernersville at four o'clock Sunday, December 6.

The numbers were divided into four groups and are the ones which will be used on the northern tour in the spring.

Those receiving special commendation were "Beautiful Saviour" and "The Song of Mary."

Senior Party In New Garden Hall

Play Around Christmas Tree In Gingham And Overalls

Well, it seems as if the old tradition of the New Garden Seniors entertaining the other Seniors on the campus is going to be continued this year. In Senior class meeting Thursday morning slips were passed out and each Senior was asked to sign his or her name. These names were shuffled together, then each drew a slip. To the person whose name each drew, the "drawer" is supposed to give an appropriate gift—of course not over ten cents.

This party which is to be from 6:30 until 9:30 o'clock, Wednesday night, December 16, is to be quite informal. The dignified Seniors are asked to leave their dignity at the dormitories and come dressed in gingham dresses and overalls for a big time. We're not saying what else is going to happen—the party is to take place in the kitchen and basement of New Garden Hall—and there'll be a big Christmas tree—so you guess. From what I know about this affair I'll grant that all underclassmen will wish that they were Seniors!
