

DR. CLYDE MILNER BECOMES PRESIDENT OF QUAKER SCHOOL

Dudley Carroll Makes Speech and is Answered by New Official.

DEAN ASSUMES NEW POST

Education Day Assumes New Importance, As Ceremony for Installation of President Occurs.

Dr. Clyde A. Milner became president of Guilford College on August 11, 1934. Although he had taken up his work as president on July 16, the date for installation did not come until almost a month afterwards. This was the Educational Day of North Carolina, and Dudley D. Carroll in the role of president of the board of trustees made the charge. Dr. Milner's reply was short, lasting only about six minutes. The essence of his speech was as follows:

"It is with a sense of awe that I assume the responsibilities inherent in accepting the presidency of Guilford College."

He then went on to commend the three preceding presidents. In continuing his speech he said:

"If there had been no members of the Society of Friends concerned about education, there would have been no New Garden Boarding School. If there had been no forward looking and progressive Quaker educators there would have been no Guilford College. . . .

"I am assuming the office at a time when higher education in the United States is receiving close surveillance. At its best, education is the development of the whole personality, and it is therefore only as new truth is not only mentally grasped but also is integrated into the feeling and volitional self that the high educational values can be realized. If Guilford College could so train its students that they would not only know, but also do and feel in relation to each emerging situation, the contribution of the college during this second century is assured.

"Deeply aware of the rich heritage of the past, I pledge my physical and spiritual energy to incarnate anew and dedicate this heritage to the future

Brownhill's College Corner

You know, we've really discovered that college girls—even when they have a fat allowance—are always strapped for money. They're a tight-fisted, cold-blooded, bargain-driving lot—they twist a quarter, squeeze a dollar, wring a five.

They want low prices and then they have the temerity to demand high quality.

Well, that's what we like about them—they keep us on our toes. Our qualities have to be right. Our styles have to be correct, and our prices have to be low—and they are.

And that is why our College Corner is growing so fast.
