FACULTY SUMMER PLANS ARE QUITE UNDECIDED

- Several Teach In Summer School Here and Elsewhere; Others Have Somewhat Vague Plans.

"I DON'T KNOW" FREQUENT REPLY

Ah Friends, 'tis truly a sad world when those engaged in the soul chal-lenging pastime of teaching the young idea how to shoot, are without ideas concerning that simple, vet not so simple thing, life. After preparing the coming generation to wrest from life and the world the best that these can give, ment of the education and the spirit of those individuals are undecided as to Guilford. The faculty pictures section what life holds for them in the coming is changed so as to include pictures Who else could fit such a paradox of wisdom and indecision, for thought and no foreknowledge, but the

Now what could be fundamentally wrong with such a question, it is respectful to the point of timidity, it is stated correctly and clearly and it shows genuine interest in the affairs of a following in the state of the of a fellowman. Such a question then rightly deserves an answer which takes cognizance of all these finer intricacies of interrogation. But does it get this answer? The preponderance of answers to this question was a simple "I don't know." Not a gruff "I don't know," not an authoritative "I don't know," but a simple, an indecisive "I don't phomores Entertain Freshmen At Annual Picnic Hold In Pasture; "Spring Dances" a Feature.

JUNIORS HONOR SENIORS WITH ANNUAL BANQUET

FULP IS MASTER OF CEREMONIES

The Junior class honored the Seniors urday night, May 18, in Founder's hall. The idea of Medievalism predominated in the program and decorations. King Ernest White and Queen Anne Wiley and the Court of Seniors were wel-comed by King Marvin Sykes and Queen Frances Alexander. Court-jester Jimmy Fulp distributed wittingly and knowingly appropriate favors to the Seniors in the form of police badges, diamond rings, paint brushes, harmoni-cas and other strikingly symbolic sou-venirs. Ernest White replied to the welcome in a pleasing and concise speech. Dr. Eva G. Campbell, Junior faculty adviser, presented eleverly "court proceedings" which proved to be a take-off on the Junior meetings. A playlet entitled, "The Love Affairs of Floice and Covad" and James 1 of Eloise and Gerard" and flavored with the spirit of the Middle Ages, was presented on an improvised stage. It showed the power of Virtue and Beauty. A delicious menu prepared under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Bruce was served.

While the Juniors and Seniors en-joyed their banquet, the merry Sophoores entertained the Freshmen freshmen congregated in front of Foun-der's hall carrying baskets, tooth brushes, and glasses of water. They were not dressed in the latest college style, to say the least. After making a desperate effort to cleanse the new flagstone walk, they were "grotesquely" paired off and set forth for a ramble
