MILNERS PLANNING TOUR OF EUROPE DURING VACATION

Will Spend Entire Summer in Extensive Tour of England and the Continent.

LECTURES ARE ARRANGED

Dr. Milner Is Selected to Represent Friends in American Education to Foreign Audiences.

Dr. and Mrs. Milner will leave June 11 for a three months tour of England and the Continent. They will sail from New York on the liner Britannic of the White Star Line. They will first visit England, remaining there perhaps five weeks. Dr. Milner will lecture at a school in Birmingham where he previously studied. Incidentally, this stay in England is of special interest to Mrs. Milner, it being her first visit there.

From England the Milners will trek to Denmark. An interesting and very complimentary story accounts for Dr. Milner's visit there. For some time the Society of Danish Friends have been urging Friends in America to send them a lecturer to speak on "Friends in American Education." The American Friends selected Dr. Milner to represent them in Denmark.

From Denmark the Milners plan to go to Holland, where they will be the guests of personal friends during their stay in the Netherlands. Leaving Holland they will journey to Switzerland, and there, after lecturing in three countries, they will enjoy a well-earned vacation. Dr. and Mrs. Milner plan to spend a considerable length of time in Geneva, where they were married in 1928. The anniversary of their marriage, July 5, must, unfortunately, be spent in England.

Leaving Switzerland behind on August 27, the Milners plan to be seven days at sea, arriving in New York on September 3.

DOUGLAS STEERE IS CHOSEN FOR SERMON

Baccalaureate Address Will Be Delivered by Prominent Scholar.

WELL-KNOWN AS AUTHOR

Douglas Steere has been selected this year as the Seniors' choice for Baccalaureate speaker. In view of Dr. Steere's academic life and activities, he promises to bring a real message of encouragement and guidance.

Interestingly enough, Dr. Steere started out as an agriculture major at State College in Michigan. Receiving a Rhodes scholarship, he spent three years at Oxford in studying and teaching. On his return to this country he went to Harvard where he completed his work for a Ph.D. degree. He worked for several years as an assistant to Rufus Jones in the department of philosophy at Haverford College, later succeeding him as head of this department, in which place he has been located for the past six years.

Dr. Steere is the author of many books. His latest publication is one called "Prayer and Worship."

PHILOSOPHY CLASS TO GO TO WILLIAMSBURG

Approximately 50 members of Mrs. Milner's philosophy 10 class will go to Williamsburg, Va., May 12, substituting this trip for the usual philosophy project. The group has chartered a Greyhound bus for the occasion and plans to make the entire trip in one day.

Mrs. Milner will accompany the group to Williamsburg, where the class will be directed to all points of interest by the local Williamsburg guide. All those who do not go to this old city, which has been rebuilt as it was in colonial days, will be required to make the usual art creative project required in the course.

SEVEN Y CABINET MEMBERS ATTEND NAWAKWA MEET

Spring Officers Training Conference, With Carol Strauss of Duke, as President.

EASTER HIKE IS ENJOYED

33 Students Attend Breakfast Meeting of Old and New Members at Jefferson Club.

Seven members of the Guilford Y cabinet yesterday joined representatives of colleges throughout the state in the annual meeting of the State Y cabinet for the spring officers' training conference at Camp Nawakwa, located about 18 miles south of Greensboro near Randleman. The seven Quaker students were Marianna Dow, Y. W. president; Pete Moore, Y. M. president; Barbara Hamlin, Milton Anderson, Fred Binford, Linden White, Edwin Boring, Hampton Price and Teddy Mills.

The Nawakwa conference, which lasts from Friday afternoon through Sunday afternoon, includes discussion groups, addresses, and recreational activities. The Guilford students were in charge of two devotional periods, Friday night and Saturday morning. Carol Strauss, of Duke university, is president of the group.

With the departure of this group to Nawakwa, the sponsorship of early Sunday morning hikes moves off campus, although the plan may be continued at the retreat. Last Sunday morning the new Y cabinet members entertained the old members with a breakfast hike at Jefferson club shortly after 6 o'clock. The hiking and eating, even after the early start, were faultless, but the swimming was cool. In spite of the temperature, five stalwarts took to the deep for a refreshing dip. The number included Milton Anderson, Butch Wilson, Freddy Binford, Gloria Leslie and Corky Parker.

On Easter Sunday morning, a group of 33 students, representing all walks of life on the campus, arose and left Founders about 5 o'clock in the dark. The sun did not come up, that is, visibly, but the group stopped on one of the hills for a short service and then continued the hike through the woods and back by road considerably before time for breakfast.

RALPH CASKEY WILL GIVE VIOLIN RECITAL

Ralph Caskey, Guilford senior, will conclude his musical career on the campus with a recital in Memorial hall on the evening of May 9. Coming to Guilford from Elon, Caskey has appeared many times, both as a soloist and with the college Chamber Orchestra. He is well-known as a musician, having studied in Raleigh, taking lessons in piano and band instruments as well as violin. For the past two years he has been a member of the A Capella choir and has appeared on many programs, both with that organization and as a violin soloist.

His accompanist for Monday night's recital will be Mrs. Jess Alderman. The scheduled program is as follows:

1. Sonata in F Major (first, third and fourth movements), Beethoven;
2. Serenade Melancholique, Chalkovsky; Wellenspiel, Edwin Grasse;
3. Perpetuum Mobile, Ries; From the Cane Brake (for fiddle and piano), Samuel Gardner, IV. Concerto in B Major, Mozart.

Librarian Requests Search for Books

The librarian requests that all faculty and students make a check of any books which they may have taken out of the library and return any which have been taken out by mistake without a proper record being made in the library. The following books cannot be traced and are badly needed: "Text Book of Histology, Cowdry; "Red Badge of Courage," Crane; "The Minister's Job," Palmer; "As I See Religion," Fosdick; "Othello," Arden Edition.

There are others which cannot be traced. The library service at Guilford is based on the honor system, and this request is made in good faith that there will be a prompt response.

SCHEDULED CONCERT POSTPONED WEEK

Date Has Been Moved Forward on Dornseif-Behrman Program.

RECEIPTS TO GO TO GYM

The joint vocal concert by Mayes Behrman and Eileen Dornseif which was scheduled for last night has been postponed one week. As the arrangements now stand the program will be presented in Memorial Hall on the evening of Thursday, May 5. Sponsored jointly by the two athletic associations on the campus, the concert is expected to contribute materially to the ever-growing fund that is being raised for the new gym.

The forth-coming program, including several duets, will consist of both classical and modern compositions.

Although both performers on next Thursday night's program are freshmen at Guilford they are widely known, both on campus and off, and have distinguished themselves as singers well above the average. Miss Dornseif, soprano soloist with the college choir, recently won first place in the southeastern division of the National Federation of Music Clubs contest, and was among the winners in the national contest.

Mayes Behrman only recently won very encouraging comment from Norman Condon, a bass-baritone with the Metropolitan Opera company, as a result of an audition with him. The young baritone has previously had favorable auditions with both Lawrence Tibbett and Frank La Farge, Mr. Tibbett's teacher.

BANQUET DATE OF JUNIOR - SENIOR IS ANNOUNCED

May 7 Is Set for Annual Affair of Upperclassmen; Many to Attend.

BIG TIME BEING PLANNED

Social and Promotion Committees Are Active in Trying to Make Banquet the Year's Feature Attraction.

Plans for the annual Junior-Senior banquet, which will be held the night of May 7, are in the process of completion under the direction of Alvin Meibohm, junior class president, and the social committee of that class.

The college roll carries a list of 57 juniors and 47 seniors who are eligible for the banquet, which is traditionally one of the feature social events of the spring semester. Members of the class are now consulting each of these people as a step preparatory to purchase of food and completion of details for the program.

It is customary that members of the upper class be ignorant of the plans of their inferiors concerning the motif of the program. That is true this year. Some seniors have accused their junior friends of announcing plans, similar to those of "The Pot Boiler" playwright, and not having the ending prepared. Junior officials refute that accusation, however, so there is no way to determine the truth of the matter. Juniors affirm their belief that the banquet will be worthy of acclaim, and anticipate the night which will carry the proof.

Assisting Alvin Meibohm as members of the social committee are Cora Worth Parker, Catharine Beittel, and Pete Moore. Members of the promotion committee are Emily Cleaver, Lois Wilson, and Eunice Holloman.

MARSHALS CHOSEN FROM RANKS OF SOPHOMORES

Six Students Are Selected in Annual Faculty Election to Act as Ushers for College.

The annual election of marshals by the faculty was held at its last meeting. In the voting, scholarship is considered, although candidates need not necessarily be in the highest scholastic standing. They are chosen from regular members of the present sophomore class. Those elected this year are: Wilbert Edgerton, chief; Guy Thomas, Ralph Deaton, Mariana Dow, Mary Gray Coltrane, and Alice Swick.

The marshals act as ushers at all public functions of the college. The new marshals will assist the veterans at the commencement exercises.

Criminologists Go Churching With Road Gang on Sunday

Churching with the road gang, an un-studied phase of the criminology course, was experienced by sociology 104 last Sunday at the Battleground prison camp.

Praying, preaching, and singing went on as religiously as if the congregation had gone to church to reveal their new spring outfits—but may be there is something to this compulsory business after all, for Milton Anderson attended his first church service since discovering that there was no Santa Claus. Philip Kelsey observed that the convicts were little different from other church-goers for, even though the meeting was held outdoors, the men all ran for the back seats, differing from the usual run of congregations in that they were trying to get as far away from the door as possible.

A pen of bloodhounds, conveniently placed just outside the gates, lifted their voices vociferously in the hymns, assuring the men that "A Charge to Keep I have," and "Fear Not, I Will Follow Thee."

After this pleasant ceremony was completed the criminals, many of whom were serving sentences for gambling, went back to the only recreation that the camp offered—gambling; and the

Baseballs, Steak Balls, Screw-Balls Feature Guilfordian Picnic

The night was clear and cool. Thirty-nine people were sitting around a campfire. One people said to another: "Ruth, tell us a story." Ruth sang out, "Nobody's business what I do." (Incidentally, Dan wasn't along.) Then she turned to R. K. and pleaded, "Robert, sing us a song." "Yes mam," said court marshal, "I was working on the railroad. Patsy-ory-ivy-ay."

Then a great wave of voices led by one blonde voice pleaded, "Ed, give us the "Prodigal Son," but Seattle wanted to be coaxed. Finally he gave in and preached a magnificent sermon! There were thousands of conversions and some were so enthusiastic as to beg for Baptism by immersion. This, however, was denounced as impractical, since in the afternoon had been decided that in April water was for the eyes only.

Yes, these thirty-nine people with
