Orchestra Will Give First Fall Concert

Dr. E. H. F. Weis Directs Group In Classical Program On November 20

The Guilford College Chamber orchestra, in cooperation with the Friday evening lecture series, will present a program of familiar, classical music in Memorial hall on November 20 at 8 o'clock.

The program announced by Dr. E. H. F. Weis, director, is as follows: Poet and Peasant Overture by E. von Suppe, Gavotte Celebre by Martini, Largo by Handel, Intermezzo by Bizet, Hungarian Dance No. 5 by Brahms.

The second half of the program will consist of: Theme from the Second Symphony by Beethoven, Andante Cantabile from Tschaiikowsky's Fifth Symphony, Excerpts from Operas by Wagner, Excerpts from "Bohemian" by Balfe, and the William Tell Overture by Rossini.

The orchestra personnel is composed of the following: violins—Miss Rossie Andrews, Doris Shute, Violet Shurr, Nell Hubbard, Evangeline Antrim; viola—Bebe Bailey; celli—Dr. Curt Victorius, Margaret Huber; clarinets—Joe Leak, George Short; flutes—Austin Scott, Frederick H. Tyler; trumpet—Hugh Brown; saxophone—Richard Campbell; french horn—Elvin Strowd; piano—Mary Belle Clark; organ—Patricia Lockwood.

Guest players from Greensboro may join the group for this concert.

Austin Thomas Describes Sinking Of Carrier 'Wasp'

Austin Thomas, a survivor of the torpedoed aircraft carrier, the Wasp, spoke in freshman chapel last Thursday morning, telling about the sinking of the carrier and the rescue of its survivors.

The attack occurred at 2:30 in the afternoon, the first two torpedoes striking the bow in quick succession, the third following five seconds later. The blast put the water system out of commission and fire spread rapidly. The ammunition exploded and ignited the gas and oil. A number of the planes were pushed overboard to help lessen the load on the ship, and then the men were given orders to lie down on their backs and wait.

About 45 minutes passed before orders were given to abandon ship. Although the distance from deck to ocean was about 80 feet, several jumped or dived. One sailor went over with his steel helmet and gas mask clamped to Forty-eight more shopping days till Christmas, and, slowly as the time may seem to go, there will soon be only 14 more shopping days till Christmas, and the teeming metropolis of Greensboro will teem still more with gift-buyers. So much so, that there will be 500 temporary positions open to interested and capable and willing—especially willing—workers.

Now, being willing is a matter of your personal make-up, and there's not much anyone can do about it. But capability can come as the result of experience, and experience can come as the result of so many things. Working in a department store for one

'Y' Cabinets To Hold First Meeting For All Members

The cabinets of the YWCA and YMCA are planning a series of meetings for all members of the Christian associations. The first of these meetings will be held on Monday, November 16, at 8:30 p.m. in the Music building.

Old and new "Y" members will meet with the chairmen of the committees which they checked on the Interest Locators distributed during the membership drive. These groups will make plans for their work during the year. Everyone interested in doing "Y" work this year is urged to attend the first meeting.

N. C. Friends Contribute To Buck Creek Camp

Charles Hendricks, former Guilfordian, and other men from Buck Creek camp, C. P. S. No. 19, were on campus Friday, November 6, with a station wagon, to collect canned goods, clothing, and live chickens from members of Guilford College Friends Meeting and from all students who wished to contribute to the support of those in the camp. The project, which is sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, extends through High Point, Springfield, Mt. Airy, and Guilford College communities.

Canned goods were brought to the meeting house, and clothing to the home of Mrs. A. D. Beittel. The group collected more than 60 live chicks with which to start a poultry farm. Over 12 dozen cans of home preserved fruits and vegetables were also collected.

afternoon, for instance. Selling a sweater, for instance.

You may think that all there is to selling a sweater is giving the customer the package and accepting her money in return for it. That is not true; there is a definite and complicated routine which you must follow if you desire the proper results.

You start by trying to sell someone a skirt. This is known as the round-about method. This particular customer only likes skirts that are too small for her, but her mother won't let her buy those, so you spend a lot of time not getting much of anywhere. Finally she decides she'll settle for a

Council Changes Cast of Fall Production, "Letters to Lucerne"

Townsend And Leake Attend Legislature

Report On Activities At Student Meeting In Raleigh, October 30-31

Representative Margaret Townsend and Senator Roy Leake, Guilford delegates to the annual North Carolina Student Legislature, have returned to the campus to report the activities of October 30-31 to their constituents.

Meeting with some 150 other student lawmakers, from State, Carolina, Meredith, Mars Hill, Wake Forest, E.C.T.C., Elon, Lenoir-Rhyne, and Campbell college, at Raleigh, the delegates approved such bills as the allocation of labor by the federal man-power commission, the enforcement of school attendance of children up to 16 years of age (the present North Carolina law requiring attendance only until 14), and two years compulsory military training for all high school pupils.

Pacifist Margaret Townsend introduced to the above bill an amendment granting that all students with religious convictions against participation be exempted. The amendment met with the approval of both houses, and the bill was passed, Miss Townsend voting against it.

Both houses passed the bill stating colleges should give full cooperation to the war effort.

The legislature voted down the following proposals: (1) The United States should take the lead in a world federation and should guarantee its security by an air force 50% greater than the combined forces of the world; (2) India should not be given its complete independence now.

P. T. A. To Sponsor Gym Classes For Community

The Parent-Teachers Association will sponsor adult gym classes for the community of Guilford college, starting the week of November 16. The classes, which will probably last throughout the winter, will be held in the Guilford high school gymnasium.

The purpose of these classes is to offer some form of entertainment for the men and women of the community, and at the same time step up the program of better living.

The program will consist of dancing, volley ball, and various other forms of amusement. Miss Christine Foster, director of physical education for women at Guilford college, will direct the classes. She will be assisted by Winifred Ellis and Judy Nelson, students at the college.

Students Attend Tertulia

A tertulia espanola has replaced the Spanish club. The group held its first meeting of the year in Founders dining hall on Thursday, October 29.

A tertulia is a social club meeting and is usually held in a cafe or restaurant. In accordance with the Spanish custom, tea was served to the group.

Those attending the tertulia were Dr. Francis Hayes, Virginia Ashcraft, Hudson Bowne, Winifred Ellis, Corinne Field, Marjorie Hoffman, Ria Jeffrey, Renate Klepper, Roy Leake, and Lee Poole.

There will be a tertulia each Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Tickets in the non-reserved section of the auditorium will be distributed free to the students. A student wishing to sit in the reserved section may do so by paying the difference between the prices of the two tickets, that is, 16c.

Obstacle Course Affords Gruelling Tests for E. R. C.

By BETTE BAILEY

Vaulting cross bars, straddling planks, fording creeks, running mazes—name your obstacle—it's there in the new half mile obstacle course erected behind the gym to either break or make the young men of Guilford, especially those in the Enlisted Reserve corps.

Over rocky, hilly pastureland, the victims run, stumble, stagger, or fall, depending upon their proficiencies in such sport. At top speed, could you run under a cross bar, then recover from your crouched position quickly enough to forestall a possible concussion as you leap eagerly over the next bar? Or are you perhaps more adept at running down hill, leaping a fence, then scaling several bars nailed horizontally between two trees?

Crawling through a box with the ends out would be simpler if the box were bigger. For all leopard-skinned enthusiasts, there is plenty of opportunity to play Tarzan. Just let out a jungle cry as you cling to a frayed rope and swing out over a creek, so we'll know you're up in the air.

The best time for racing is during the rainy season when you can easily slide over the course, thus storing up sufficient quantities of energy for the sprint back across the field to the finish line—a distance, which, according to Ben Brown, cannot properly be termed a sprint. If you're a campus expert, you'll tumble into the finish ditch at a little over 3 minutes by the watch; if you're slow you'll be clocked at 7 minutes; average time insuring complete exhaustion is 4 to 5 minutes.

The football boys of the E. R. C., because of their rigorous daily training on the gridiron, are exempted
