Last week's game with Elon closed the 1949 baseball season for the Quakers and also ended the college careers of five starters, "Toad" Davis, Quakers and also ended the college careers of live starters, "Toat" Davis, hard-hitting catcher; Bill Powell, versatile mound man; Jack Chatham, first baseman; Bill Stamey, middle-man in the double plays; and the North State Conference's own Tommy Jones.

This season's aggregation has done a fine job and, with the exception of Catawba, has defeated every team in the conference at least once. Coach Paul Lentz, who took control after Coach Newton's resignation, has brought the boys through with a better conference record than in

Walter "Derb" Simmons has proven to be an important asset to local mound staff this year. On several occasions, he has been called on to relieve, and has gotten the starting nod from Coach Lentz twice. Last week, he held the High Point Panthers to three safeties and no runs during the short five-inning game . . . While dressing before the Catawba game, Tommy Jones was talking in his usual half-joking manner. Suddenly, he noticed that he needed clean socks, so he went to the Indian supply room and came back with a pair that looked as if they were torn off the feet of Catawba's fullback, Lee Spears, in the 1948 were torn off the feet of Catawba's fullback, Lee Spears, in the 1948 Tangerine Bowl game; however, Tom did manage to get them on. In his disgust, he said something to this effect: "I think I'll bit that ball right over the fence the first time I come up." The first inning of the game saw Ballinger, Ralls and Hall go down in order, then the Indians were retired in succession. Top of the second, no score, Jones batting, first pitch called strike, then a ball, the third offering from Catawba Ace Bill Greene came in, letter high, and split the heart of the plate. ng and watched the ball disappear far over the center field

In their return trip to High Point, the baseballers soundly defeated the Panthers 7-0 in a short four-inning contest which, according to the record book, were four outs short.

The Quakers, having rallied for one tally in the first, were held scoreless in the second and third; however, they belted everything that was thrown at them in the fourth for five tallies. This, strangely enough, was the rally that defeated the purpose, for Coach Ralph "Jesse" James and his pupils were set to stall for rain.

Four teams remained in the running for the Guilford College Intermural softball championship at the time of The Guilfordian deadline. In the Dorm League, Archdale and Center vied for the championship while the Hi-Toms and the Married Vets remained in the Independent League, Archdale fought their way till the fifth round in their division by beating Center in a close one, 12-11, Center returned to beat Old North in another close one, 16-15, to get another crack at Archdale. Old North had previously eliminated New North by a 16-7 count.

In the Independent round, the Hi-Toms won out in the winners' bracket by defeating the Married Vets, 17-10. The Vets, however, bounced back to beat the Jockeys, who had eliminated the Pick Ups 8-5, winning by an 11-9 margin.

The division finals were played last week with the playoff for the campus championship being held before exams.

Track is included ... By JIMMY MANN In Teague's Plans: Cheek Is Assistant

Coach Teague has announced that he plans to bring track back to the cinder paths of Hobbs field next year. The sport, absent for the past few years because of lack of competition within the conference will not only include the spring meets, but if enough material is available, a fall cross country squad may be organized. Plans have already been completed to fix up the track and jumping pits for next

The Quaker coaching staff was completed last week with the appointment of Emmett Cheek, former Carolina football and baseball star. The coaching arrangement will be as follows. In football, Teague, head coach, will handle the backs; Cheek will work with the line; and Lentz will coach the centers and ends. In basketball, Lentz will be head coach with Teague handling the J. V.'s Baseball will be managed by Cheek and Lentz. If track is initiated, Lentz will be given charge.

opening battle with Appalachian. He plans to stick with the split "T" that was used in spring practice. The Quakers will not only be one of the most hustling clubs in the North State, but also one of the best dressed. A complete set of new uniforms have been ordered. They will be silver-grey with red stripes and numerals and silver grey plastic helmets. Also, to allow for big Southern Conference games nearby, several of the Quakers games have been moved to Friday night when the High School is away. All home games will be played in the new stadium now being constructed in Greensboro.

Post-Mortem of Baseball Given; Lentz Is Successful

The baseball season has come to an end so far as the Guilford College diamond squad is concerned. The Quaker Conference record for the season stands at 6 wins against lift fifth place in the North State Conference standings.

Now for a backward glance over the season. Before the season got underway, the Quaker baseball scope seemed to be somewhat confused. No one was sure whether or not Guilford would even have a baseball coach. There was a lot of talk of "Doc" Newton's resignation and whether or not he was to handle Guilford's Spring sports program. During early season baseball practices, "Doc" was the baseball coach. Paul Lentz was handed the job just before Spring vacation on Newton's departure from the Guilford ampus. Coach Lentz handled the baseball comercial content on the was compared to the season of 12-8 and 11-9, respectively, in the Davidson game, Guillord story seconds of tively. Coach Lentz handled the baseball team rather well in spite of numerous difficulties. Outside of having the job thrust upon him so suddenly, Lentz's biggest handleap was Jim Phillips' sore arm—Jim is one of the ablest pitchers in the conference. This left Lentz with only two good, experienced hurlers, Bill Powell and Dewey Wolfe. Another handleap was the lack of competent outfielders, Lentz remedied this by making an outfielder out of third baseman Sam Venuto and alternating Jack Chatham between left field and first base. In spite of all these troubles, the Quakers managed to maintain a .500 average until the final game of the season against Elon. They lost a 3-1 heartbreaker to the Christians even though the Quakers outhit the Christians 10 to 8.
