Archdale

That big bandage Walt Satterthwaite is sporting around campus came to me because his transportation bit him. He was operating the choke lever on the carburetor of his T-model with his left hand while he tinkered with the wiring with his right. The T-model, temperamental by nature, resented this feeling around and backfired through the open air intake, spraying Walt's hand with blazing gasoline. The result was third-degree burns and a determination to sell a T-model—cheap.

Achdale now has a shiny new bulletin board, complete with lettering as soon as Jack Andrews gets around to it, to proclaim the news of the hour and the assignments of the freshmen who are to be captains of the head. The large board, of fiber composition, has met with complete approval of the inmates, who consider it a contribution on a par with the invention of the wheel.

The Guilford-Atlantic Telephone Company (Carr, Collins, Satterthwaite, et al.) is making slow but steady progress toward service for the dormitories.

Founders

Approximately seventy-five freshman and sophomore girls gathered in the parlors of Founders Hall Friday night, October 5, to bring to a close Freshman-Sophomore Day. The sophomores were entertained by the freshmen for the last time.

In appreciation of the good sportsmanship shown by the freshman girls during their initiation, the sophomores served sandwiches and cokes.

The party broke up with a feeling of fellowship between the two rival classes.

Dramatics Council Plans To Present Several Plays

The Dramatics Council, at a called meeting, decided to give a comedy-drama play this fall, but did not reach a decision as to which one, according to Bob Wall, member of the Council. The group discussed the possibility of giving two short plays in addition to the regular three-act plays given in the fall and spring. The shorter plays would probably be two acts, Wall said.

Rehearsals for the first of the regular three-act plays will begin within the next week, and members of the Council expressed the hope that a large crowd would turn out for tryouts.

Last year, the Dramatics Council gave two outstanding plays, "Our Town" and "Death Takes a Holiday," in what was considered one of the most successful seasons the group has known.

Choir Plans Year, Elects Officers

The Guilford College A Cappella Choir has begun another year, this time with 51 members, of which 13 are freshmen. Director Charles Coll Underwood has made big plans for the Choir, and he expresses high hopes for its success in 1951-52.

Highlights on the Choir's calendar this year are a trip to Raleigh on November 4 to open Religious Emphasis Week on the State College campus, a spring concert tour to New York, and possibly the New England States, and a performance of Bach's "St. Matthew Passion" in May.

Rehearsals for the "St. Matthew Passion" are held on Tuesday night from 7:30 until 9 P.M. and are open to anyone on campus, in the community, or in the surrounding area who wishes to participate. The public is cordially invited to come join the regular choir in presenting this great work.

Officers were elected as a recent meeting of the choir. Jeane Walton, president, and Billy Harris, manager, were elected in the spring elections last year. The following officers were elected by the Choir this year: publicity co-chairmen, Bob Ralls and Elsa Neitzka; librarians, Betsy Farlow and Bob Achar, chiefs, and Beamon Griffin, Maitland Freed, Florence Brice, and Carolyn Lindley; robe master, Bill Sartin; robe mistresses, Bert Livezey and Carol Grace Browne; stage manager, Vernon Tyson; transportation manager, James Wade; attendance recorder for Tuesday night, Mickey Peele; corresponding secretary, Betsy Bingham.

Briles Elected IRC Vice-President

At the last I. R. C. meeting, Wilda Mae Briles was elected vice-president, replacing Bobby French. Jim Leake was appointed chairman of the publicity committee, and Jack Ogburn was appointed chairman of the program committee.

Plans were made for the next meeting to discuss Italy. Following that, the Guilford I. R. C. will probably hold a joint meeting with Greensboro College.

SCA Starts Early, Makes Big Plans

The S. C. A. started bright and early this year with a retreat at Quaker Lake the weekend before Freshman Week. There were about 25 people who attended, including a large delegation of freshmen. The purpose of this Fall Retreat was to make out a calendar of activities for the entire year. Bill Utley, chairman of the publicity committee, had made a very large calendar with open dates to be filled in. Sally Haire, president of the organization, and Ruth Beeson, program chairman, led the group in planning out the year's schedule. The calendar may now be seen in the hut complete with filled-in dates.

The prospects for this year are very optimistic. So far the S. C. A. has carried out its scheduled activities quite successfully.

A "Howdy Party" was held for the freshmen in Founders Parlor during Freshman Week. There was plenty of singing and getting-acquainted; upperclassmen and freshmen alike seemed to enjoy themselves immensely. Bill Utley led the singing and Josh Crane introduced all the freshmen to the group.

The following Sunday night, a "Sing" was held on the shore of the lake. Miss Ware led the small group in the old favorites and a few hymns.

The following week, in the Meeting House, the most successful program of the year so far was held. A very inspirational vespers service for the new members of the Association was conducted. Ruth Beeson, Horace McManus, and Josh Crane planned the service and read selections that evening. Betsy Farlow played the organ and Bob Achor and Marilyn Linhart added to the inspirational time with their solos. After the service, refreshments were served in the basement.

And who will forget the hike to the Battleground last Sunday? Although the day was warm, everyone seemed to enjoy himself. Supper, a "sing," and vespers were held at the grounds afterwards.

Plans for many more interesting and varied programs have been made; and judging from what we've seen so far, it looks like a big year for the S. C. A.

Attention, Sociology 20 students! Mr. Stafford found himself taking a course similar to Sociology 20 this summer in order to complete requirements for his doctorate!

Korean Vets Get Certain Benefits

(Special to the Guilfordian) Winston-Salem.—Many veterans of the Korean campaign—both able-bodied and disabled—are joining the ranks of those who are entitled to certain benefits, the Veterans Administration disclosed today.

Ever since fighting started in the Pacific theater of operations in June, 1950, Congress has made more and more World War II benefits available to the nation's newest crop of veterans.

As an example, the VA pointed out, disabled Korean veterans now drawing compensation may get in on the same program of vocational rehabilitation originally set up for their World War II buddies.

Commenting further, VA said: "If they are disabled in combat or on extra-hazardous duty, or aggravated an old condition under those circumstances, they are eligible for study or training, if they need vocational rehabilitation to overcome their handicaps."

Latest available figures show that more than two hundred Korean veterans over the nation already have applied for vocational rehabilitation. In North Carolina, Regional Manager J. D. DeRamus said the number of applications from Korean campaigners for vocational rehabilitation number approximately 12, with four already in training at various points in the state.

Also being fulfilled, VA said, is its pledge to provide unsurpassed hospital care for all veterans so entitled. Of the hundreds of Korean veterans in VA hospitals over the country, better than 50 per cent have been determined to be service-connected cases, VA said.

And then there was the puppy who got sick when restricted to a diet of scraps from Founders dining room. Guess the poor dog just wasn't conditioned to it!
