

Cage Practice Begins

Coach Dave Meredith blew the starting whistle for the 1951 basketball season on October 31 with approximately 35 aspirants out for the team. With seven returning lettermen—Venable, Woodall, McLeod, Ringle, Crews, Callicut, and Ferrell—prospects look better this year than they have any time during the past several years. This year the Quaker floormen have the height that has been lacking in the past. An abundance of reserves should make every man have a fight for his position, and Coach Meredith emphasized that all positions are open. Several freshmen are making the lettermen really fight to obtain a starting berth this season.

As Coach Meredith said the first day of practice, "We are out to win the North State championship," we believe and hereby predict that, if the student body gets behind the team and supports it, Guilford will not finish below third place in the standings.

Faculty Displays

After a short intermission during which cookies and cake were sold, the grand act came on, Act V, "Free from Mother's Apron Strings." The songs, cleverly rewritten, were also very well handled. The chorus consisted of Harold Bailey, Edward Burrows, Lyn Bradshaw, Eva Campbell, Frederic Cornfield, Charles Hendricks, Hiram Hilty, Gurney Gilbert, Harvey Ljung, Treva Mathis, Martha Meredith, Maxine Ljung, Garness Purdom, Muriel Tomlinson, E. Daryl Kent, and Mildred Marlette. Miss Ware played the piano for the numbers.

Soloists for this eleven scene act were Daryl Kent, Frederic Cornfield, Hiram Hilty, Harvey Ljung, Lyn Bradshaw, Garness Purdom, and Treva Mathis.

Among the high spots of the evening was Scene 2, which was a duet by Daryl Kent and "Freddy" Cornfield entitled "Things Are Seldom What They Seem." The lines for this were quite good, for example, "Things are seldom what they seem; Homogenized milk often does for cream," and "Mama's darling meek and mild at college is a different child."

Harvey Ljung practically stole away the show with his prancing back and forth across the stage in the solo and chorus number, "I am the Captain of the Guilford Crew!"

When the curtain rang down the finale, "They Are Guilfordians," the applause was tremendous. During the curtain calls, Mrs. Cornfield was led on stage and received the grand ovation she greatly deserved for a wonderful show.

about verb agreeing with antecedent—or something like that?

But Buddy, why? Why? What were you doing in Korea? I mean just that. Why? What were you doing in Korea? I'm sick of the whole mess. Sisters and parents come in here at the office every day and I have to write the obits of their 17-year-old brothers and 18-year-old sons who got their guts blown out by mortars and cannons and I just sit back and write it about the same way I'd write a story on a rare disease discovered in the mountains of Idaho or the election of Miss Turkey Grower, 1951. I'll admit it. I haven't even read a Korean story in the last week. Meanwhile all these kids are catching it . . . some quick and others not so lucky. I hope you didn't have to wait for yours, Buddy. I hope you got one of the quick, clean ones without any messing around. What really hurts is the fact that if you had spent just eight more days in the Navy in that other mess we had a few years ago, you'd be alive today and probably still be working with the Duplan Corporation down there in Lincolnton.

But it didn't work out that way. You're a neuter now, Buddy. You won't even vote in the next election. Your Dad and Mom, two of the finest folks I've ever met, have only each other. I wonder why. I mean it, I really wonder why. I wonder what I was doing on the night of August 27th. Wonder what your folks were thinking. And Buddy, did you know that a fellow by the name of Truman is coming over to Winston-Salem tomorrow? Joe Leslie is staffing that for us. Just wonder what Truman would say if Joe walked up and said to him, "Mr. Truman, how come Buddy Alexander was killed over in Korea? Kim Smith over in High Point also caught one. Any idea why?"

Wonder what he might say, Buddy. Wonder if he'd change his tune about this just being a skirmish with a bunch of bandits? It's a mess and I don't know the answer. Put in a few good words up where you are and perhaps we can get the whole damn mess straightened out someday soon. Meanwhile, we'll miss you. And thanks for what you've done. Getting yourself spread out in Korea for me and a lot of other guys who really appreciate everything you've done, but we're all lost in this rotten tied-up political mess and degradation in Washington. That's why I ask you, "Why?"—I want somebody to tell me why your mother and father will be alone from here on out.

Be good, Buddy. I'll tell the gang hello for you and I'll catch a cold one next time I run over to Tuck's.

As ever,
Bill.

victories but the aforementioned were most notable.

Most fans agree that the most surprising phase of this year's championship chase has been the only so-so record compiled by the defending champion Yankee Stadium crew. Sonny Dillon is the star for the Yankee sextet and he has led them several impressive games but it looks as though it will be a difficult task for the Yanks to repeat as champions. Probably their most embarrassing defeat in history was recorded this year when the smooth-clicking Archdale squad drubbed them 56-6.

Although the first half has been discussed herein the second half play has begun and the first game played in the latter half has been termed by many as the best game of the year. The first half champs Whiz Kids were riding on the crest of a five-game winning streak when they clashed with the heretofore winless Section of Selection (New North). The New Northerners were as low as whale faces on the bottom of the ocean, but in this game the Craven-coached squad forced the Whiz Kids to fizz and settle with a 27-27 tie. This is indicative of the much closer second-half race that is expected.

Professor Dixon Dies at Elkin

Taught Here 1890-91

ELKIN, Nov. 6.—Funeral services were held here today for Zeno Hadley Dixon, former Guilford College professor and Board of Trustees member, who died last Sunday from injuries received in a fall ten weeks ago.

"The Professor," as he was affectionately known, taught in the commercial department at Guilford before the turn of the century, in the school year of 1890-1891, and was a member of the Board of Trustees from 1918 until 1931. He was 81 years of age at the time of his death.

Lynch Hospitalized; Out for Season

All-Conference candidate and Quaker co-captain, Sam Lynch, will be sidelined for the rest of the season. The stellar tackle, who teamed with "Big Ab" to be the best tackle combination in the conference, suffered a blood clot in the leg. "The Nick" had been turning one of the best seasons of his career, and was a strong contender for all-conference honors. His loss will be sorely felt for the rest of the season.

Sam is a senior this year, president of the Monogram Club, and a great all-around guy, as you all know. To fill his position in the Quaker forward wall, Coach May-

SAB Sponsors Chest Drive

The Student Affairs Board has met twice this year. At the first meeting the proposed budget, as set up by the Budget Committee, was presented and accepted. (A copy of the budget was printed in the first edition of the Guilfordian.)

At the next meeting, Dr. Milner spoke to the SAB on behalf of the Community Chest Drive. In previous years, the SCA has sponsored this drive on campus. Since it is quite an undertaking for one organization alone, Dr. Milner asked the members of the Board if they would be willing to sponsor the Campus Chest Drive this year. A decision was made in the affirmative.

The student-faculty goal is $800. Students are urged to give generously in order to make the "red feather" grow.

sure not even the highest leaders know exactly what's going on.

The only thing we do know is that another war would be the end of our civilization, and we pray to God that He may prevent it. If there is anything left like common sense in the heads of all the statesmen in this world, they must know that. But sometimes it is hard to believe.
