Action in Girls' Intramural Basketball

Basketball Windup

ALL HAIL TO YANKEE STADIUM for they have just won another title in intramural basketball. The boys have proved themselves to be real champs, and I guess it will be many a moon before anyone comes along to stop them.

For a while it looked as though the Old North-South squad would cop the title, however the Stadium rallied to the cause and finally beat them 57-47 in the final game. Unfortunately the phys. ed. department has not compiled the scoring records so you will just have to wait until the next issue to find out who were the leagues leading scorers.

The members of my all-star team are as follows: Guerere, Trafford, Nunn, Cornish, and Peace. You place them, it gave me too much of a headache to try. The final standings are as follows:

	Won	Lost
Yankee Stadium B	8	0
Old North South	6	2
Black Hornets	6	2
Center	5	3
New North PB	4	4
Archdale	3	5
Day Hops	3	5
Yankee Stadium A	1	7
New North Cubs	0	8

And there you have it, the wrap-up of another season. So I'll say so long to basketball for another year, and may the coming years be even better, and a championship for someone else other than the Stadium, however that will sure take some doing.

W.A.A. News

The basketball tournament will soon be completed, according to Bonnie Ferrell, tournament manager. The standings are as follows:

	Lost	Won	Tie
Evie Cline	0	3
Ann Newton		2	1
Bo Wooten	1	2
Bev Broome	1	2
Kat Shumaker	1	1	1
Mut Wellons	2	1
Ruby Tolbert	2	1
Mary Ella Clark	2	1

Also under way is the badminton tournament under the direction of Ruth Burton. The finals will be completed before the holidays. The ping pong tournament is running simultaneously with badminton.

For the first time, golf will be offered for girls as a regular physical education course this spring. Two classes will be taught by Coach Ben Baker and Miss Margaret Reynolds.

The W.A.A. Cabinet has voted to sell racquets and balls to the students as a money-making project. The balls will be sold at $1.10 per can or $.40 a ball. The arrangement is being made with a sports equipment store in High Point.

Guilford College is participating with about twelve other colleges in North Carolina in a project to send one or more CARE packages to Korea and, if possible, to the Philippines later. Each package costs approximately forty-six dollars and will include such equipment as balls, nets, and games. Miss Reynolds is directing the Athletic Federation of College Women project.

Quaker College Announces Graduate Assistantships

Haverford College's President Gilbert F. White announced today continuation of the Graduate Curriculum in Social and Technical Assistance for the fourth year.

The suburban Philadelphia Quaker college has pioneered in this training course in international social and technical assistance to equip mature students for positions under Point IV and other similar constructive programs.

"It is our hope," President White said, "That the young men and women we are training in this program will furnish a peace force for the task of building healthy and prosperous communities both in this country and abroad."

Leading to the Master's degree, the program includes applied as well as theoretical work and such on-the-job training as a week on a self-help redevelopment housing project and six weeks with the Cherokee Indians of North Carolina.

Already the graduates of the past two years are holding responsible positions, such as: work with Point Four in India, social work with the Grenfell Association in Labrador, and at several community centers in this country; a teacher-training program for Jewish communities in North Africa and the Near East; teaching in Mexico, Jordan, Turkey, and with the Sioux Indians; community development work in El Salvador; research analysis for the Tennessee Valley Administration, making a study of juvenile delinquency for a community agency. Several foreign students have returned to their homes to apply their training and one holds the position of Personal Assistant to the Charge d' Affairs of Pakistan at the Pakistan Embassy in Tokyo.

A five-year grant from the Christopher Reynolds Foundation makes it possible for Haverford to offer fellowships of from $2,500 to $4,000 to a few mature people who, preferably, have had experience with agencies of the United Nations or of the U. S. government.

Members of the present graduate unit have been spending six weeks (Dec. 21-Feb. 4) in on-the-job training with the Cherokee Indians of North Carolina. This is the second time the Indians have invited the students. This year they wanted the group to join them in a house-to-house survey of the needs of their Big Cove Community.

Women's Athletic Association Banquet

Plans for the annual Women's Athletic Association banquet are being made by the W.A.A. Cabinet members headed by a committee composed of Ruth Burton and Betty Jane Beaman.

The banquet will be held in Meyers' Tea Room, Friday evening, April 2. Entertainment will be provided by the various classes, each one being responsible for a skit or act.

Awards are presented each year at this time to all those who have earned numerals, letters, or sweaters. Investigations are being made by the cabinet members concerning the possibility of awarding a blazer in Guilford's colors, rather than an athletic sweater. The jackets would probably be charcoal gray trimmed in maroon with a Guilford College seal on the pocket, if the plans are approved by all the girls.

All Guilford College women, automatically members of the W.A.A., are invited to attend this dinner. Transportation will be furnished.

Baseball

By Lee "Jake" Jacobson

Coach Maynard and the Guilford College fans this past week got their first glimpse of the 1954 model Quakers. If after it was all over, the Ol' Professor Maynard still had any doubts it could only have been on the score of whether his own lads would make it.

The old weatherman has thus far played havoc with the practice sessions, however the boys are slowly rounding into shape, and by the time our first game rolls around they should be ready to go. The practice sessions have thus far been concentrated on fielding and batting drills, and by the time this issue reaches your hands the boys will have played a few intra-squad games.

The squad thus far shapes up like this: Leary on first, Schmidt Adams, or Beck on second, Cashen on short, Charlton, Atkins or Angel on third, and Percise catching; however the second, third, and shortstop positions still remain in great doubt and only time will tell who will win out a starting position at these three spots. The start-outfield figures to be made up of R. Redfern in left, Chic Trafford in center, and Bill Francis in right. The pitching chores will be handled by Davis, Mikles, and Dowd, righthanders, and by Mike Jones, the only lefthander on the squad.

The squad also will be deep with reserves, and this should serve to give us a strong bench, if all goes well. Since the Quakers will take time out from practice during the spring holiday they will have to be in top shape by March 20th.

Our first home game will kick off the season for this years Quakers. The game will be held on April 3rd, against East Carolina. Let's all get behind the Quakers from the start instead of waiting until the very end like we did with our basketball team. They will be out there to bring us a winner, and we can help them a great deal with strong school support.

Marion: You must then consider my refusal final.
