NEW AUDITORIUM, PRIDE AT HOMECOMING

12th Annual Ward Lecture

George Loft of UN To Speak

Mr. George Loft, director of the Quaker Program at the United Nations, in New York, will give the twelfth annual Ward Lecture at Guilford College on Friday evening, October 27th, in the Charles A. Dana Auditorium.

Mr. Loft assumed his present U. N. responsibilities in September, 1961, after directing the American Friends Service Committee's African program for a year. From 1957-60 he was the Service Committee's representative in the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, where he was active in African leadership. He visited the Union of South Africa, the Belgian Congo, Kenya, Ghana, Nigeria, Libya, the Sudan, Egypt, Ethiopia and other important points of the African continent. He was an observer at the All-African People's Conferences at Accra in 1958, at Tunis in 1960 and at Cairo in 1961.

To his present position he brings five years of previous work with the American Friends Service Committee, seventeen years in tax, economics and public relations departments of several major American business firms, and three years in Washington as civilian chief of the subsistence requirements planning section in the Quartermaster General's office.

Mr. Engleman Joins Faculty

Mr. Al Engleman, new teacher of ethics and philosophy, and co-ordinator of Convocations, comes from Queens College in New York, where he taught contemporary civilization. Born in Poland, he received his college education in Germany, France, and Switzerland.

During World War II, he spent time in the labor camps of Siberia and Asia.

Upon arrival in the United States in 1951, Mr. Engleman was granted a teaching fellowship in history and philosophy at Wayne University. He received his M.A. in philosophy at Brandeis University and was instructor of philosophy, history of education, political science, and seminar. At Simmons College he taught philosophy and psychology.

Mr. and Mrs. Engleman live in the Frazier Apartments on campus.

UN Assembly Model Held

A United Nations Model Assembly is to be held in Raleigh, North Carolina, on the weekend of October 27-29. Being sponsored by the N. C. Methodist Student Movement, it is for all interested students.

This assembly is organized to promote an understanding of the functions and operations of the United Nations, and to give the student an opportunity to participate in the discussion of present world affairs.

Each group who attends the United Nations Model Assembly represents a country in the form of a delegation. With the modern world in its present turmoil, this assembly should provide the participants an unexcelled opportunity to examine, define, and identify themselves with the present state of world relations.

MSG Notes

by Dick King

Plans for homecoming were begun at the M. S. G. meeting on October 10. The M. S. G. will supervise the homecoming parade and activities at the football game on Saturday, October 28.

The president of the North State Student Government was a visitor on campus a week previous to this October 10 meeting, and spoke with some of the students concerning Guilford's membership in the N. S. G. The M. S. G. decided unanimously to rejoin the N. S. G., to which they had belonged in years past. From this membership, the M. S. G. will have the opportunity of studying ideas and systems of other student governments.

A plan was presented which suggested the creation of an Advisory Board to the M. S. G., which would handle minor judicial problems arising within the men's dormitories. A committee was appointed to make further study of this matter.

Dedication Address by William Archie

Dr. William C. Archie, a native of Salisbury, North Carolina, will deliver an address at the dedication of the Charles A. Dana Auditorium on Friday, October 27, at 3:30 p.m. Dr. Archie, who is now director of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education, received his A.B. at Davidson College, his M.A. at Wake Forest College, and his M.A. and Ph.D. in Romance Languages at Princeton University.

For four years, Dr. Archie taught preparatory schools: Gulf Coast Military Academy, Gulfport, Mississippi, and Oak Ridge Military Academy, Oak Ridge, North Carolina. He was dean at Wake Forest College and taught the French language and literature there and later at Duke University. In 1956 he became Associate Professor of Romance Languages and Associate Dean of Trinity College. At Emory University from 1958-1961, Dr. Archie was Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, as well as professor of Romance Languages.

During World War II Dr. Archie worked overseas under Intelligence, Public Relations and Military Governmental assignments. At meetings of Allied Control Authority in Berlin, in 1945, Dr. Archie was the French interpreter of General Eisenhower and General Clay.

College Education Evaluated in Society

A missile on its launching pad can blow up as a result of incompetence of its design or its mechanics, believes Mr. John W. Gardner, president of the Carnegie Corporation. He states that educators feel that a society's welfare depends as much on its mechanics, as upon its Physicists. College, he felt, should not be seen as the only preparation for happiness, but as only one kind of education for those who have abilities which would fit into the college atmosphere.

"Being a college graduate involves qualities of mind that can never be universally possessed," he

Music and Religion Departments in Dana Auditorium

A new Religion-Education-Music building, with a seating capacity of 1,000, will be used to serve the general Greensboro area and the Guilford community, as well as the college students. Programs will include Friday night lectures, plays produced by the college Reveler's Club, the A Cappella Choir concerts, music recitals, convocation speakers, and guest performers.

The building's Georgian-Colonial architecture is in design with the general layout of the campus and its stage facilities will enable versatility in drama productions. The auditorium is equipped with an organ, orchestra pit, and balcony.

The right wing of the building houses the Music Department. Offices, studios, ten practice rooms, two classrooms, a listening room, and a choir rehearsal room containing a small stage, which will be used for student recitals, are available.

All religion courses are taught in the left wing containing offices, four classrooms, a lounge, and kitchen. A small chapel, the Moon Meeting Room, can be used for small devotional and Sunday morning silent meetings.

This $750,000 auditorium has been the largest construction of the Guilford College expansion program which has been directed by President Milner for twenty-seven years. Presently a men's dormitory and a women's dormitory are being constructed and will be ready for students in the fall of 1962.

Dr. Godard to Give Sermon

Dr. James M. Godard, executive director of the Council of Protestant Colleges and Universities, with offices in Washington, D. C., will deliver the convocation sermon at Guilford College on Sunday morning, October 29, in the Charles A. Dana Auditorium.

Dr. Godard, who obtained his A.B. from Park College and his A.M. from Duke, also has four honorary doctor's degrees. His educational experience includes teaching at Duke University and Park College as well as at Queens College. He was for six years executive vice-president and dean of administration at the University of Miami before taking his present position. He is well known in North Carolina as he has held many offices in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, as well as serving on the Committee of the North Carolina College Conference which collaborated with the State Department of Public Instruction, and as secretary-treasurer of the Southern Association of Colleges for Women.

Dr. Godard has also been very active in community service. He was president of the Charlotte Mental Hygiene Society and on the board of the N. C. State Mental Hygiene Society, Protestant co-chairman of the Charlotte Roundtable of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. He is a past president of the Charlotte Kiwanis Club. In Miami he was on the board of the Family Service Association and the Children's Home Society.

DR. JAMES M. GODARD

Cafeteria Service, Food, Inspection To Be Studied

Presently a committee is being formed on campus to lead and hold discussions concerning cafeteria service, preparation of foodstuffs, and food inspection. Each dormitory serviced by the college cafeteria will elect or appoint a representative to this committee which will in turn meet once a month with Mr. Harold Ray, cafeteria manager.
