

Leah Harris to Go Abroad For New Living Experiment

By KAREN BALDWIN

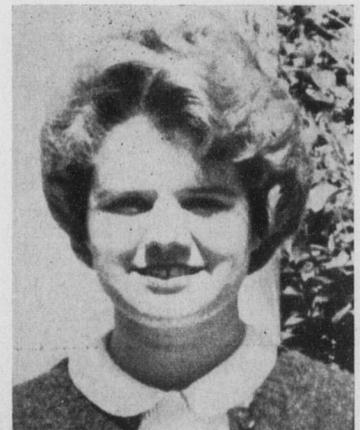

The Experiment in International Living was founded in 1932 as a private non-profit organization in the field of international education. The philosophy of the experiment is that significant advances toward world peace can be made at the individual level, by introducing the people of one country to the people of another country through the basic social structure of the family. The essential feature of each Experiment program, therefore, is approximately one month spent living as a member of a foreign family, in the pure meaning of the word foreign. The approach, undoubtedly, is realistic, but it is a practical idealism acknowledging that each nation has its own perspective on its problems, and that this perspective can only be fully understood when observed from within, from the viewpoint of its own people. This type of idealism thrives on the realization that it is not the similarities between people of various countries that are important, but the differences and that a mature and intelligent recognition of these differences is a major step towards understanding and appreciating another people and another culture. Experiment groups are not introduced to another people as tourists; they meet a country on its own terms, and see it through the eyes of its nationals.

Despite the fact that the Experiment is basically an educational program, educating the people of one country to live with the people of another, it is not primarily a highly refined intellectual experience. The homestay is as much an emotional and visceral experience as it is an exercise in tact, understanding and adaptability. The challenge it presents is constant; the benefits it can provide depend entirely on the individual.

One of the individuals who will take part in the Experiment this summer is Leah Harris, a rising N. C. senior. Leah became actively interested in the Experiment through Dr. Pete Moore and made application last March. Just a few days ago she was informed that she had been one of the many applicants accepted for that part of the Experiment which is to take place in England this summer. She will spend approximately two months with her Experiment group in England. Part of her time will be spent living with an English family, and the remainder will be spent traveling around the country with her Experiment group. One member of the family with which she has been living will travel with her and the rest of the group since there will be no remuneration to the family for her stay. Previous to her departure, Leah will take part in an orientation program with the rest of the group in which will be discussed the culture, customs, politics, and language of the host country. At the end of the Experiment, she and the rest of the American group will spend four or five days in a major city of the country, sightseeing and learning further about the culture of the host country.

Leah is presently the secretary for the S.C.A., and next year she will assume the full responsibilities of senior representative from Hobbs to the W.S.C., May Day Chairman, and marshal. She is proficient at the piano and at dress-making and enjoys outdoor sports. There are a number of impressive reasons for going that one could offer, but Leah simply says, "Anyone would want the chance

Men's May Day Is Great Success; Gentility Plus?

May Day festivities began very early for some of Guilford's more ambitious and energetic young men as they began constructing new walks to facilitate transit between the bookstore and the sundial, painting the traffic signs and trash cans for easy identification by the visitors, and posting pictures of some of the campus celebrities on the doors of frequently used buildings in honor of the festivities.

These preparations completed by the time the sun rose, the boys launched into a well-organized program of tastefully rendered skits taken from well-known fairy tales for the enjoyment of the young children and professors in the audience. Under the direction of the new M.S.C. officers, the boys spent several weeks preparing their presentation in honor of the coming of the May. Each group presenting a skit was carefully rehearsed in the course of mass practices held every night in the gym for the two weeks preceding the actual performance. By preparing and rehearsing in advance of the actual performance, the boys were able to eliminate the distasteful elements which were so prevalent in last year's production and present a highly entertaining program full of mature wit and delightful puns of which even our "royalty" could be proud. Congratulations go to the boys who were instrumental in preparing and presenting the early morning enjoyment, and to all the participants who worked so hard to start this year's May Day off right.

Fine Arts Program

Jimmy White, president of the Fine Arts Club, directed a talented cast of Guilford musicians in an accomplished recital of fine musical achievements.

The material included three solos by Carolyn Lineberger, Judy Justice and Jimmy Williams. Martha Breitenhirt and Mrs. W. I. English displayed a delightful ability at the organ. Judy Hill added an interesting testimony to Tschaiikowsky's "Troika." By far the most brilliant performance of the night flowed from the sensitive fingers of Roberta Davies as she played Khachaturian's "Toccata."

Mr. Appenzeller Resigns Posts As Dean and Coach

On May 15, Mr. Herb Appenzeller announced at the Men's Student Council meeting that, as of June 1, he would be resigning his positions as Dean of Students, Director of Athletics and head football coach. Mr. Appenzeller intends to complete his doctorate in education over the next year either at Carolina or Duke. He announced that while he will be teaching some classes here at Guilford during the next year, his work on his doctorate will not allow him to continue in his present positions. In addition to his work in athletics and as Dean of Students, Mr. Appenzeller has been teaching at Guilford High School. "All in all," he says, "it has been a full year."

Mr. Appenzeller earned his Bachelor's degree in Latin at Wake Forest College in 1948. Three years later he received his Master's degree there with a major in education and a minor in physical education. He began work on his doctorate in 1960 at UNC.

Mr. Appenzeller first came to Guilford in 1956 as Director of Athletics, and became Dean of Students in 1962. Over the past six years "Coach" Appenzeller has held a warm place in the hearts of all Guilford students.

In taking this temporary leave, Coach Appenzeller says, "I would like to express my appreciation to the students for their cooperation this year and for all the help they have given me. We have had a real fine group."

Monogram Club

After a week of initiation climaxed by "rat night" on Friday night, fourteen new members were elected to the Monogram Club on Tuesday evening, May 14. New officers for next year were also elected.

The new officers are Jimmy Earp, president; Mickey Faulk vice-president; Paul Updegraff, secretary; and Joe DeVault, treasurer.

The Men's Student Council wishes to take this opportunity to publicly apologize to those individuals offended by the program on May 4th.

We want to assure everyone that measures are being taken to prevent a recurrence of such a program in the future.

Sincerely,

BOB DAVIDSON, Pres.
GARY YORK, Vice-Pres.
RAY KELSEY, Sec.-Treas.

G'boro Colleges Issue Statements

On the morning of Monday, May 20, the student government of Guilford College submitted a statement of policy to the student body for approval. The statement concerned the actions of Guilford College students during the recent anti-segregation demonstrations in Greensboro.

The text of the statement reads: "We neither support nor condemn their participation. Rather, we prefer to leave to the individual student the responsibility of his own actions. Such actions by individual students either for or against the issue are not sponsored by the Student Body of Guilford College."

The official tabulation of the votes on this policy statement shows 448 students voting "Yes," and 65 voting "No." Thus 87.3% of the student body, or nearly seven-eighths, approve of the statement.

Earlier in the week, the student legislature at Woman's College met in emergency session and voted by acclamation to support picketing at the Cinema Theatre, the Town & College Restaurant, and the Apple House Restaurant, all located on Tate Street near the school.

The day before, the Student Co-ordinating Board of Greensboro College voted to support the picketing at these establishments by the WC students, and recommended "selective buying" by the students. The Greensboro College group voted as individuals and not as representatives of the students.

Steere and Larson Are Commencement Speakers

Douglas V. Steere, Thomas Wistar Brown Professor of Philosophy at Haverford College, will give the baccalaureate sermon at Guilford College on Sunday morning, June 2nd, and Arthur Larson, Professor of Law at Duke University and Director of the World Rule of Law Center, will deliver the commencement address on Monday morning, June 3rd. The baccalaureate sermon is at 11:00 a.m. and commencement ceremonies begin at 10:30 a.m.

Born in Harbor Beach, Michigan, Douglas Steere received the B.S. in agriculture from Michigan State University, then took his M.A. at Harvard. As a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford, he holds a B.A. and an M.A. from that institution. His Ph.D. is from Harvard and he also holds several honorary degrees.

Professionally, Douglas Steere has been active with the American Rhodes Scholars, the American Philosophical Association, and as a member, and president for one year, of the American Theological Society.

Born in Sious Falls, South Dakota, Arthur Larson secured his A.B. from Augustana College in that city, and attended the University of South Dakota Law School. A Rhodes Scholar, he has a B.A. in Jurisprudence from Oxford, as well as the doctorate in Civil Laws. He is an honorary Fellow of Pembroke College, Oxford, and holds several honorary degrees from various institutions.

Larson practiced law in Milwaukee, and was Assistant Professor of Law at the University Tennessee Law School. He served as Division Counsel, Industrial Materials Division CPA, Washington, D. C., and

Dana Challenge Is Sparked By Division Challenge

On Monday, May 13, Dave Miller, president of the Student Legislature, announced in convocations that Guilford College accepts the challenge of the Greensboro Division in the fund-raising drive for the Dana Challenge. The Greensboro Division, in their newspaper Frontier Phoenix, challenged the campus to a "campaign contest" in raising money for the Challenge.

The campaign is directed towards the faculty, the administration and the students. The goal for the students is $13,000. The WSC, MSC and Day Students' Council have agreed to organize and carry out the campaign.

BACKGROUND OF THE DANA CHALLENGE

In the spring of 1961, Mr. Charles A. Dana, prominent New York financier and philanthropist, presented the city of Greensboro and the Board of Trustees with a challenge: if the businessmen and industrialists of Greensboro and the Board of Trustees of the college would each raise $750,000 for the college, Mr. Dana would contribute a third $750,000 himself. The challenge was accepted; the Greensboro Associates was set up to handle the campaign among the businessmen and both they and the Board set up an intensive campaign to raise the funds.

By December of last year, the Greensboro Associates had raised more than half of their amount, and Mr. Dana had already contributed $400,000 of his donation in order to get the building program started. But the Board of Trustees had raised only slightly over $260,000.

In January of 1963, Mr. Dana wrote to the Board of Trustees, emphasizing that this money would have to be raised promptly. An intensive campaign was immediately set up. A professional fundraiser from Chicago was retained to direct the campaign. Contacts were made with alumni, Quaker churches across the state, and friends of the college everywhere.

On Monday evening, Dr. Milner personally addressed the men students in the New Men's Dorm to explain the campaign. The response from most was enthusiastic.

As the week of the campaign came to an end, well over half of the goal had been reached, and it was anticipated that the total would surpass the goal.

acting price executive, Lumber Branch. He was also chief of the Scandinavian Branch, Foreign Economic Administration. Later, he served as Associate Professor of Law at Cornell Law School, Professor of Law and Dean of the University of Pittsburgh School of Law, Under-Secretary of Labor, 1954-55; Director USIA, 1956-57; Special Assistant to the President, 1957-58. Since 1958 he has headed the World Rule of Law Center at Duke and served as a Special Consultant to the President.

A member of Phi Delta Phi, the American Bar Association, Oxford Union Society, and of many legal organizations, he has been active in promotion of the study of international law. His interests also include the President's Council on Refugees, and on Aging, and The Council for Private Economic Development planning committee.
