

Saturday Night - It Rained

College football is a sport of two faces. It can be a crisp, exciting and colorful Saturday's entertainment—as crisp, exciting and colorful as the fall day we like to see it played on. However, at times, certain times, it has been known to be an unglamorous, bogged-down nightmare in mud. Such was the manner in which overly-loyal Guilford fans found Burlington High School Stadium on Saturday night, September 28. It was a night to dampen the spirits of all but the most hardy people. The hardy Guilford supporters that did make the trip to Burlington saw our boys caught on the short end of a 28-7 score.

The team's bus ride to the game was a story in itself. As the bus departed from Guilford, with not a soul to say goodbye or to wish us well. There was little to say. Whatever conversation there was concerned itself with anything but the game. The bus reached the Elon field house and locker rooms. The boys would now have to get out, change into their work clothes, come back on to the bus and then ride to the Stadium, which was a few miles in Burlington. Soon the boys were back on the bus, ready for the trip. It was dark inside and as we passed small homes and stores their lights played tricks on the boys' donned helmets and shoulder pads and silhouetted them, making them look even bigger than they were. There was not a sound as all heads faced forward and all thoughts drifted into a happy past or a hopeful future. The scene was that of a grim invader, stealthily sneaking through a quiet village with only one thought in mind—to even an ancient score.

The bus pulled to a stop outside the rain-soaked Stadium. Dillard Norman was the first to break the silence. "Okay—Let's get these guys. We've waited long enough."

J. V. Football

This past spring the Guilford College Athletic Department announced that they would initiate a Junior Varsity football program for the purpose of giving football experience to those boys who desired it and for the purpose of building depth into a Quaker varsity which has usually been lacking in it.

For their first game, Sept. 14, the Junior Varsity was pitted against Ferrum Junior College. The little Quakers upset Ferrum by 6-0 and handed them their first opening game loss in ten years. This feat was accomplished mostly by the team's Freshmen (all but one Freshman played offense; all but two played defense). To make matters better for us the Ferrum team beat the Catawba Frosh in their next game, by 14-0.

The coaching staff has shown mixed emotions toward the Junior Varsity program. They are happy with the brand of football that the boys have been playing but rather annoyed with the small turnout this fall. There were many boys who, last spring, indicated that they would want to play Junior Varsity football but never showed up for this fall's session.

Coach Stewart has indicated his desire to continue the Junior Varsity program next fall but emphasized the fact that the program will not succeed unless there is sufficient and active participation on the part of seemingly interested boys.

Schedule

September 14	Ferrum Jr. College (H)	6-0.
September 19	Chowan Jr. College (A)	cancelled
September 27	Carolina Military (A)
October 4	Open
October 11	Gardner-Webb (A)
