

Ten New Faculty Members Join Staff

Library Extension

The expansion and remodeling program of the campus library is fast approaching conclusion. Barring unforeseen interruptions, the open house date is scheduled for October 24. An open house program in the library at 10:30 a.m. is planned for the occasion as one of the events of Homecoming Weekend. This will also mark the completion of the $225,000 Dana Developmental Program.

On that date students will be able to fully enjoy the completed extension which is equipped with new furnishings. The extension has doubled the floor space to 14,000 square feet.

A reserve reading room has been added in the basement to facilitate reserve reading and house reserve books. Three new levels of stacks, equipped with individual study desks, will provide room for 65,000 new books. This addition more than doubles the current number of books. The former periodical reading room and a new supplemental extension are being converted into combination rare book and Quaker rooms.

The present reading room will be converted into dual periodical rooms. A new reading room will replace the converted one. In order to process and care for the increased volume of books, a work room for the staff has been added. In addition, return shelves will be provided for the return of books taken from shelves for reading in the library. It is hoped that this will reduce the number of misplaced books.

Carpeting will reduce any sound greatly and air-conditioning will make summer studying more comfortable. The reduction of sound and the year-round control of temperature along with new furnishings, which will include lounge chairs in the periodical room and desk sets distributed throughout the library, will greatly aid in creating an atmosphere conducive to studying.

The staff of the library has also increased with the addition of Mrs. A. Schnell, cataloger; Mrs. Bowie, part-time assistant; and Dr. Ralph Fritz who will serve as part-time consultant.

With the additions to the staff and the expansion of facilities and space, the serving capacity of the library increases greatly. The library staff, headed by Mrs. Mathis, expresses readiness to assist students.

The administration and the library staff have worked tirelessly to provide students with a resourceful library. All that remains is for the students to use it.

Freshman Orientation—

A Reaction by Edith Winesett

Students from many parts of the country and the world began arriving at Guilford Sunday, September 13, 1964. The day was cold and wet but the student leaders and advisors met us with smiles and warm greetings.

Sunday night the class of 1968 was received by the faculty during social hour in Friends Meeting-house. The welcomes were many and freshmen appreciated the friendly encouragements.

Most freshmen came to Guilford looking forward to college life. To them, college presents a whole new concept of life as well as the chance to realize and accomplish future goals.

To a few students, college life revolves around fun, dance, and social functions. Freshman Week has been fun, with all the dances and receptions but it has also shown, through the constant pressure of tests and leadership of strict student advisors, that hard work, ability and initiative are the necessities of success at Guilford.

Speeches by different members of the faculty were presented each morning along with scheduled tests. The speeches were very educational but the new excitement and late hours were responsible for some lack of enthusiasm among the new Guilfordians.

The student body, as a whole, has been very friendly. Also, the various stores at the shopping center have been very considerate and cooperative. The post office has become a second home to most of us. Freshmen venture to and from their post office boxes at least twice a day, hoping to receive a letter from home or from their sweethearts left behind. However, with each hour of the day being planned during the week no one has had a chance to become homesick.

Freshman Week has accomplished its purpose of preparing the class of 1968 for its future at Guilford College.

International Experiment

by BARBARA HAGY

"People are the same everywhere," says Guilford College Junior Gloria Phillips. She was speaking of her experience this summer, which she spent in Switzerland as a member of the Experiment in International Living Program. Through an application given to her by Dr. J. Floyd Moore of the Religion Department here, Gloria was chosen by the Greensboro Inter-club Council as its representative. She was also the recipient of $1,000 from the council, to be used for expenses abroad.

Gloria flew out of New York on July 4, 1964. After she arrived in Brussels, Belgium, she took a bus to Paris, and from there a train to Zurich, Switzerland. Here she spent four days at the Albushaus House, a hotel, for an orientation program.

Gloria next went to Urnasch, a small village of 2100 people, in the Appenzell, a German-speaking canton of northeast Switzerland. She spent two weeks there with her new family, the Irnigers. Her "Palti" is a medical doctor. There are six children ranging in age from fourteen to twenty-nine years. "I really became a member of the family," says Gloria, who found that emphasis was on the family as a unit, rather than on the individual member.

Each morning Gloria rose at seven to help with the housework. One of her regular jobs was that of picking fresh vegetables for salads. The Swiss eat a heavy breakfast which includes a cup of a milk-coffee combination. The main meal is at noon and takes about two hours, after which everyone takes

Quakers Begin New Era; Cream W. C. C. By 20-12

by HANK SIEGEL

CULLOWHEE, Oct. 3—The Guilford College football team decided that it had enough of defeat today and snapped a thirteen-game losing streak right in the face of the Catamounts from Western Carolina. It seemed from the outset that nothing could stop the determined Quakers from gaining the victory which they had smelled since the beginning of the present season.

The Guilford defense, which is quickly gaining respect throughout the area, set up two touchdowns by causing WCC to fumble on its own four and six-yard lines. Earnie ("The Toe") Vadersen added six more points by route of two beau-

The game opened with the Quakers kicking off to the Cats. On the first two plays from scrimmage the bulldog Guilford defense broke through the opposing line to throw WCC for losses of nine and eight yards, respectively. With third down and seventeen to go, WCC Quarterback John Ruta faded back to pass. He was hit hard by charging Guilford defenders and the ball was knocked loose. The Crimson and Gray recovered the ball on the four-yard line and on the next play Fullback Bob Blevins powered his way, going off tackle, for the TD.
