

Quakers 6-1; Face High Point Tonight

The Birth of A Winner

BY DICK DIERKER

During the past week the Guilford Quakers took a long step in the right direction with Tom Loftus and Bob Kauffman playing major roles. I saw an improved Charlotte team that played well for the first three quarters then had its poise disintegrate when the Quakers began a full-court press. As the score indicated (100-77) this was primarily an offensive battle. Coach Steele prides himself on the team's fine condition and defense, yet during this first game the Quakers hardly lived up to his standards. However, this is a young ball club and with a few more games we can expect improvement.

Most freshmen are nervous in their first college game, but not Tom Loftus or Bob Kauffman. Tom brought the fans to their feet numerous times during the Charlotte game with his fine outside shooting and excellent ball-handling. Only a freshman, but poise worthy of a senior is the best description of our young guard from Norfolk, Virginia. Tom owns the finest field goal percentage on the team.

Bob Kauffman, our long-awaited 'big man,' made his presence felt under the back boards. Blessed with tremendous strength he, nonetheless possesses an excellent outside shot with a fine touch. Although hampered with fouls during the first four games, he made a vital contribution to the team effort.

At our second home game against Wesleyan, Guilford displayed a remarkable zone press with Loftus, Turlington and Odom clamping their opponents repeatedly. They held them for a scoreless period of nearly twelve minutes at the opening of the second half. At one moment during the second half, with the Guilford defense at its peak, 'Big' Bob Kauffman stole the ball at half court, sped past the opposition, and stuffed it two-handed. This was certainly the high point of the evening. Guilford won easily 95 to 39.

On Saturday, December 5, the Monarchs of Methodist College invaded the Guilford College campus. It wasn't a good game. Guilford played in a rather sloppy fashion. Methodist was outmanned and on a strange floor, yet Guilford seemed to be the stranger. The Quakers threw away passes and let our smaller opponents score on numerous lay-ups.

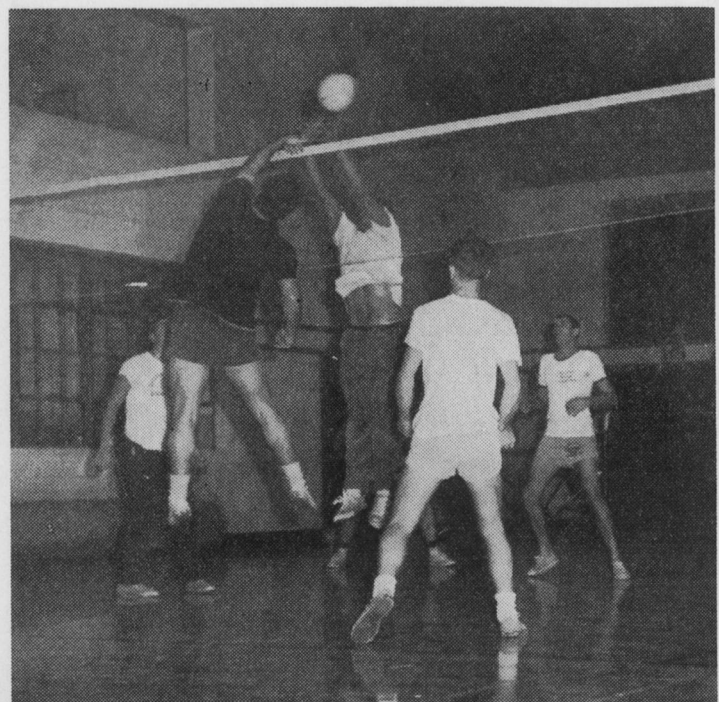

Looking ahead to our first conference tilt we can count on some very tough opposition from Pfeiffer College. Pfeiffer has had some bad luck in running into the three top contenders in the Carolinas Conference—High Point, Lenoir Rhyne and Elon. Having lost to High Point and Lenoir Rhyne by a combined score of six points and upsetting the favored Christians of Elon 68 to 66, Pfeiffer will offer the first real test for the Guilford Quakers.

Williams and York Are All-Conference

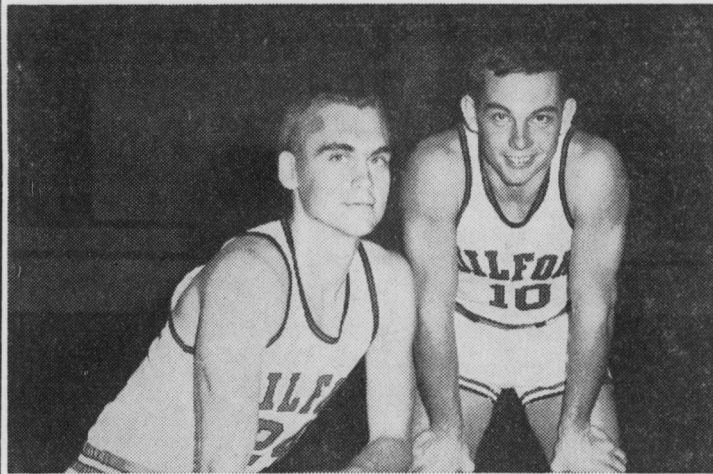

Four years ago two coaches, following a tough practice on a hot, humid day, agreed that a 195-lb. young man, staggering off the field would be a Carolinas Conference All-Star. A freshman, he had just taken on (in drills) the toughest letterman, Jack (Animal) Holley, and came up bruised, battered and beaten. But the way he handled himself made believers out of all in attendance.

The recent announcement of Carolinas Conference All-Stars had two Guilford players listed. One was co-captain Gary York, guard, and repeater quarterback Jimmy Williams, fallen warrior of the Newberry game. York's selection made prophets out of Coach Stuart Maynard, now baseball coach at Guilford (then football line coach), and personable Athletic Director Herb Appenzeller, then head football coach. Head Coach John Stewart expressed pleasure in the well-deserved recognition of the two Quaker footballers, who led the team to a 4-5 season and a 2-3 conference record, best in many years. The team defeated Emory and Henry 7-0 in its final game.

York and Williams are active in "off-the-field" campus affairs. Williams has played in two operas (he's a music major) and is a brilliant guard on an intramural basketball team. York won the Alumni Association Achievement Award for undergraduate students, was Men's Student Council vice-president, and is currently MSC president.

Buck Pearce spikes against English in intramurals.

Big One For Both

Tonight Coach Jerry Steele takes his young basketball team to High Point. The Panthers are billed as the team to beat in the Carolinas Conference, and with good reason. Experience plus added height have made High Point the Conference favorite. Dale Neel, who made All-Conference, is back this year, looking taller and heavier. He teams up with another All-Conference returnee, Barry Smith. Two of the other three starters are also returning lettermen. Kirk Stewart, a 6-5 forward, has led the team in scoring on a number of previous occasions this season. Joe Forte, the other guard, is a good play-maker. Also featured in the line-up is Steve Tatgenhorst, a high school All-American from Ohio, and Bill Green, a 6-9 junior college All-American.

The Quakers also have some impressive credentials. Bob Kauffman, who is 6-8, 245 lbs., is perhaps the most promising big man in the Conference. Reporters have said some wonderful things about him. High Point scouts at the Pfeiffer game were impressed with his surprising mobility. Chuck Scott and Leon Young, who jump like kangaroos, will also make their presence felt tonight. Leon is one of the fastest men in the Conference and Chuck is one of the best scorers.

Well, tonight anything can happen. The last time the teams met, High Point squeezed by, 45-43. Starting time is at 8:00 p.m. We hope to see you there!

thing out of the Quakers. Pfeiffer's John Miller hit a long-range jump shot, Billy Wynne hit a free throw, followed by a lay-up, and Pfeiffer had the lead 35-32.

It did not last long. Chuck Scott caught fire. He hit two free throws, tossed in a lay-up and hit a decisive jump shot from the corner. When the smoke cleared away the Quakers had taken a 44-38 lead. It took the Falcons three minutes to regain their composure and with 6:38 to play they were back in the ball game, behind 44-43.

Now it was Bob Kauffman's turn. He hit a jump shot, tried another and missed but followed with a tap-in. It gave Guilford a 48-43 lead. With 0:47 remaining David Odom tossed in a pair of free throws, to put the game on ice.

Scott led all scorers with 22 points. He was followed by Carver's 18, 13 of which came in the first half. The Quakers outrebounded the Falcons 42-33 and outshot them 43.1 per cent to 39.6 per cent.

Guilfordians in Hockey League

by RIC SCHUMANN

A new sport has been introduced at Guilford College. A few weeks ago, five members of the student body, Mr. Boyd and Dean Atwell began participation in the Greensboro Youth Ice Hockey League program. The league is primarily composed of high school age students from the Greensboro area and is coached by a group of interested men headed by Mr. Justice.

The players have been divided into two teams—the Civitans and the Junior Generals. They play Friday and Saturday evenings, prior to the Greensboro Generals' home games. In addition, they have a two-hour practice session every Sunday morning. The public is welcome at any time.

The players from Guilford have been divided between the two teams. Ted Lapham, Ken Koch, Frank Shantz skate for the Generals, and Wink Cocks and Ric Schumann play for the Civitans. Dean Atwell and Mr. Boyd are player-coaches, the former showing good promise as a wing, while the latter is an up-and-coming goalie.

It is expected that later this year these teams will be able to play other teams from Charlotte, Knoxville or perhaps even Duke and UNC. Hope has been expressed that more players from Guilford will join the league so that in a few years Guilford will have its own team.
