18 Million Goal Capital Fund Drive

Guilford College officials are making final preparation for a multi-million dollar capital funds campaign.

An 18 million dollar goal has been set for the long-range program, which will begin this fall.

Through these funds, Guilford administrators anticipate both an expansion of physical facilities and an increase in program funds to be used for scholarships, professorships, and endowment.

Directing Guilford's campaign is Jay Longacre of G. A. Brakely Co., Inc., of New York.

Extensive preparation for the campaign includes a feasibility study, which assessed Guilford's needs and potential financial support. As a result of the study, it was concluded that Guilford did have the potential to meet its capital needs in a major fund-raising program, similar to the type conducted in recent years at Duke, Haverford, and many area colleges.

A capital funds campaign, as a part of Guilford's long-range development program, is one of many activities, some of which are currently in operation, such as an increasing Loyalty Fund, expanded public relations program, and an improved alumni journal.

Vietnam Moratorium Escalates Protest

WASHINGTON-- The Vietnam Moratorium, a series of national, escalating anti-war actions, will begin October 15. Students at more than 500 colleges are already committed to spending the day in the community with door-to-door campaigns, teach-ins, rallies and vigils.

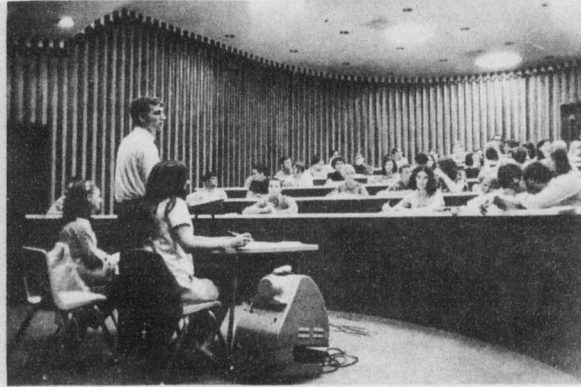

Accompanying the campus-based actions will be organized efforts by businessmen, clergymen, community groups and labor. All activities are directed against continuing United States action in Vietnam.

The Moratorium has the endorsement of the National Americans for Democratic Action, the National Student Association, the New Mobilization Committee, and the National New Democratic Coalition.

Coordinated by a Washington office, the one-day October action would be expanded to two days in November, three days in December, escalating until the war is ended.

The National office is staffed with veterans of the McCarthy

Committee Forms To Study Hours

At a meeting sponsored by the WSC Thursday, September 18, a committee of eleven was formed to prepare a survey to determine what the majority of women students think should be done about women's hours.

The meeting was conducted by Judy Turner who is the only member of last year's committee on women's hours remaining on WSC. The purpose of the meeting was to allow women from the entire campus to participate on the committee rather than just WSC members.

Those girls who wanted to be on the committee signed up according to whether they favored changing the hours or leaving them as they are, and five girls from each group were chosen at random to be on the committee.

and Kennedy campaigns. Among those are Sam Brown, 26, one of the principle organizers of the youth wing of the McCarthy campaign; David Mixner, 24, another McCarthy staffer who currently serves on the Democratic party reform commission headed by Senator George McGovern; David Hawk, 26, a draft resister and former southern civil rights worker who was an all-American diver at Cornell; Marge Sklenear, 23, the former student body president at Mundelein College who is a veteran of numerous political campaigns.

Rejecting recent announcements by administration spokesmen of token troop withdrawals, the coordinators said:

"The announced displacement of 25,000 and 35,000 American troops would bring the total to 60,000, the number former President Johnson said could be brought homewithout damaging the war effort.

"We will continue to work against the war until United States policies have changed and the war is ended."

Of the approximately seventy persons present, all but six favored a change in hours. The committee members are Mildred Williams, Dot Bliss, Debbie Keens, Brenda Pickard, Susanna Coxe, Carla McKinney, Sue Clontz, Marie Anderson, Lucy Tinker, Burwell Jackson, and Judy Turner, WSC representative.

The duty of the committee is only to make the survey and to present the results to WSC. It will make no proposals of any kind.

Seminars Abroad

Fifty-nine college students participated in the 12th annual Seminar Abroad last summer. They represented Guilford College, UNC-CH, UNC-G, and six other schools.

The students visited 13 countries including Belgium, Holland, France, Switzerland, Germany, Italy, Greece, Hungary, Austria, Russia, Poland, Denmark, and England.

According to Claude Shotts, director of the Seminars Abroad, the purpose of the trip was to introduce American students to the life and culture of Europe. The purpose was accomplished with meetings with European students and with lectures by government representatives and university faculty members.

One student, replying to a questionnaire regarding the trip, said, "The summer has been one of the most memorable of my entire life. . ."

The Guilford Student Legislature voted overwhelmingly for the second time Monday, to hold a limited number of required convocations during the academic year. According to Dan Hulburt, President of the Legislature, the convocations would be few in number, and would be called only by the legislature for the purpose of giving information of special events such as elections, or the President's State of the College address.

The original bill included a stipulation that any student who cut more than two of the convocations would not be permitted to register the following semester. However, a motion by representative Bob Milan was made and passed to delete the punishment and form a committee to investigate a lesser penalty.

Earlier in the meeting a motion by Steve Wessells to abolish required convocations was defeated 32 to 5. (Please note the record of each legislator's vote on this motion in the column below.)

The Convocations bill was first voted on at the final Legislature meeting last year after a College Union Retreat committee proposed required convocations as necessary for communication between faculty, administrators and students of Guilford College.

Under Legislature rules, a decision can be reconsidered at the following meeting.

Debate on the bill Monday centered on the issue of the effectiveness of intra-campus communication at a required meeting. Opponents of the bill argued that forcing students into a meeting would automatically make them disinterested, as it had in former required convocations. One observer, John Kuzma, asked how there could be communication between the faculty and students if the faculty were not required to come to the convocations.

Those in favor of the bill argued that students were disinterested in the past because convocations were required every week and had guest speakers. The proposed convocations, they argued would be few in number and would only concern affairs of the college. They said that it would be a good start in campus communication.

About thirty students came to observe the First Legislature meeting of the year and many participated actively in the debate. Five students walked out of the room before the vote was taken. Debate lasted for an hour; only two dissenting votes were cast.
