

Hardy Undismayed By Lacrosse Record

by Jim Shields

After Guilford's 7-5 loss to the VPI lacrosse team last Saturday, Coach John Hardy was unaffected by that post-loss paranoia common to many in his position. Hardy, who volunteers his services as coach, is the same way when viewing his 1-3 overall record.

"I'm pleased with the team's progress", stated the Greensboro lawyer. "We played VPI on a muddy field during a rainy day, but we saw some particularly good play out of our inexperienced team."

After the Virginians got five goals in the first half, Guilford tightened its defense, and began scoring, but time ran out on the comeback.

Hardy felt the team could have won, and further describes Guilford as able to hold its own when equally matched, such as it was Saturday. To be truthful, Hardy noted, "that's the only team we've been equal to."

Appalachian wasn't included among the equals, after Guilford smashed the Mountaineers 9-1 two weeks ago.

Even though the Quakers have been wiped out once or twice themselves, Hardy is anxious to compliment his team, especially his close defense, formed by Val Bristow, Dan Waetjan, Marshall Doler, with reserve help from Tom Mattocks. They're as good as any Hardy has seen in the state.

Versus VPI, Guilford also got outstanding performances from Dick Singleton on attack, and Don Scarr in the goal, with close to fifteen saves. The Quaker midfield did well in containing VPI's experienced group.

Guilford plays at East Carolina this Saturday, another team with which the Quakers should be equally matched. And on April 14, Guilford's last home game, Hardy says there is going to be a very good lacrosse game between the Quakers and N.C. State.

Contesting such a large school on competitive terms does not faze the coach, who believes that continued hard work is going to make lacrosse an adornment to the athletic program. Improvement is noticeable even from last year, Guilford's first full year in the sport.

Though faced with a possible, even probable, non-winning season, Guilford's coach says, "I think we have to get through the initial years of inexperience and getting beat, until it pays off."

It's paid off once this year, and Hardy feels it will again in the remaining three games.

Girl's Tennis Team Beats High Point

The girl's tennis team did to their High Point counterparts what High Point was doing to the Guilford men, that is, win to the tune of 9-0. To complete the contradictions, Guilford won at High Point, and vice versa, on Monday afternoon.

After losing 3-6 to Catawba in their first meet last week Kitty Steele's squad rebounded quickly, prompting the coach to say, "I thought we played better. We had a little more practice and got more consistency." She added, "I hope the trend continues," with the Quakers facing Catawba and Salem on Wednesday and Thursday, and participating in a day-long sports marathon at Chapel Hill on Saturday.

After his team got off to a 1-3 start, John Lambeth could only say, "We got started." With only one regular returnee from last year, the Quakers have been outmatched in all but one of their meets, a 6-3 win over Catawba last week.

Losses, beside that to High Point, have been to UNC-G, and Elon.

Several of the Quaker men have never played competitive tennis before, but Lambeth described them all as hard workers. Aubrey Forlines, a junior, is the returnee and is the team's top man. He is backed up by John Lamiman, a part-time starter from last year, and Jack Grossman, Tom Scott, Giles Carter, and Dan Perry, plus several alternates.

Guilford played at Greensboro on Wednesday, and will play at Pfeiffer on Friday.

For the women, who stand 1-1, Ann Izlar and Marsha Wilson remain undefeated after they accounted for two of three Quaker points against Catawba, Izlar came back to win 5-7, 6-4, 6-1, and Wilson took 6-3, 6-2 sets.

Only Jenny Rawlings, and Joan Portwood had trouble at High Point, going to three sets before winning. Wilson, Izlar, Biggs Barksdale, and Barbara Johnson picked up easier triumphs, and the three doubles combinations won handily also.
