

J. Robert Schaetzel

WILSON FELLOW

GREENSBORO -- The former American Ambassador to the European Communities, J. Robert Schaetzel of Washington, will visit Guilford College Nov. 3-8 as a Woodrow Wilson Senior Fellow.

While at Guilford, the authority on U.S.-European relations will give lectures, take part in seminars and attend conferences and informal social encounters with faculty members and students.

The Senior Fellows Program, funded by the Lilly Endowment and administered by the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation, seeks to promote greater contact, understanding and sharing of ideas and experiences between the academic community and the outer world.

Most of the 67 colleges usually visited by Senior Fellows are described as small, private, liberal arts colleges with high admissions standards. Last year, the first of a three-year program, Guilford's Fellow was energy expert Peter Stern.

Schaetzel entered the service of the federal government upon completion of his formal education and in 1962 had risen to the highest obtainable grade in the Federal Civil Service.

President Lyndon B. Johnson appointed him U.S.

Ambassador to the European Communities in 1966. He resigned from this position and the government service in 1972 and now is writing a book on European-American relations under the auspices of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Schaetzel received the Rockefeller Public Service Award for the year 1959-60, and in 1972 was awarded an individual grant from the Ford Foundation.

He is married and has two daughters.

Are you going to settle for reproductions of the "Mona Lisa" or Delacroix's "Massacre at Scio" when you could see the original masterpieces in the Louvre? How would you like to sit in a gusty, jovial Guesthouse in Munich, munching on soft pretzels and roasted chicken, washing it down with delicious dark German beef? Or would you prefer sipping red wine in an open cafe in Rome, after working up a thirst wandering through the famous catacombes. On the other hand, baking in the sun at the Acropolis or taking off for the Greek islands does not sound bad either. If Europe really does not appeal to you, how about the exotic continent of South America? How many people do you know who have been to Bogota, Columbia?

You have all these opportunities to travel plus an enjoyable way to earn eight credits if you enroll in the Guilford College Summer School Abroad. There will be six Summer Schools Abroad: London, Paris, Greece, East and West Germany, Italy and Cali (Columbia, South America). Each will be led by two

Biophile Briefs

This Sunday, weather permitting, the Biophile Blue is planning a century bike tour to Hanging Rock State Park. A century tour, as the name implies, is one of a 100 miles or more, and is the first major triumph in bicycle touring. If you're interested in the ride, or in driving a "sag wagon", please contact Scot Oliver immediately.

Mr. Jim Rees, of Greensboro, spoke to the Biophile Club Tuesday night on his campaign for the Guilford County Soil Conservation Board of Directors. This board, according to the soil and water conservation Districst Law, has a great deal of potential power, which in the past has been largely unused by its former members. Mr. Rees is concerned about the environmental problems of the county, which its commissioners have tended to ignore and for which he, together with two other candidates. Forrest Loy and Hal Lewis, think something can be done. Vote for them on Tuesday in the spirit of environmental concern.

faculty members - one from UNC-G and one from Guilford. If you have the desire but not $975.00, start working your ass off or find a benefactor. Remember that each school gives eight hours of credit which costs only a little more than a credit taken on campus. It is also possible to meet the language and non-western culture requirements with these courses.

If you have the money but you are not sure, come to the first meeting at the Ragsdale House (the home of Grimsley Hobbs) 7:00 P.M. on Wednesday, November 6. Faculty members who will lead the 1975 group as well as students from the programs last summer will be there to welcome you and answer any questions, doubts, or fears you may have.

If you have the money and the desire, pick the program which suites your dreams and schemes the best.

The Milner Times

Three weeks ago, prior to the beginning of fall break, a new newspaper appeared in the halls of Milner Dorm. Christianed "The Milner Times", it is basically an informative publication funded by Milner Hall. The paper, distributed twice a month, is specifically for the use of all students residing in Milner, containing any articles of interest to its residents (as well as other students) be they amusing stories or comments, informative articles, or complaints.

The first of its kind (a dorm paper) in Guilford History, The Milner Times will hopefully better serve to reach the residents of the hall through its announcements, keeping them informed with past, current and future events. Along with providing interesting reading, it will give milner residents the chance to express their needs as individuals, and as a whole.
