

Persian Rug Beautifies Quaker Room

by Forrest Hughes

The Quaker Room in Guilford's library recently became the proud possessor of a genuine Persian rug. According to Mrs. Treva Mathis, curator of the Quaker Collection, the 12' 4" by 24' 7" carpet is, "one of the largest" made over the Kirman (sometimes spelled Kerman) pattern. It is also unusual in that the scroll and palmette design in shades of blue and red on a beige background is evenly distributed over the rug instead of radiating from a central motif as in most Persian rugs.

The rug, a donation from

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Jefferies of Greensboro, was originally purchased forty years ago as an investment. Due to an increasing dissatisfaction with the storage place, the Jefferies decided to look for a place where the rug could be displayed to its best advantage. The Quaker Room with its ideal dimensions, antique furniture, and large display area was the final choice.

Over Christmas break the rug was laid by members of the Administration, and is now available for viewing under the scheduled Quaker

Room hours. If you get a chance, stop by the Library and take a look at this beautiful addition to the Quaker Collection. Or better yet, get down on your knees and run your fingers through it!

Barn Dance! C'mon Over!

Hey Rube, let's go do the Virginia Reel and your favorite foot stompin' dances over at Sternberger 8 p.m. on Saturday May 1. Sternberger's that new building over on the Quaker farm, just past Clem's. I hear tell they's gonna be live music with two callers from the farm. Come on, you need the study break. It's the last chance this year to kick up your heels.

Looking in from

by David Bradley

the Outside

A slogan on a poster read, "College: A place to keep warm between high school and marriage." The implications of this slogan are obvious. College is the last opportunity for the individual to view the world from the "outside" and make assertions about life before he has to step out into it.

The Summer School Abroad Program at Guilford provides an opportunity for the student to get a firsthand look at other cultures and to really understand all facets of life. It also allows the student to leave college with a broader perspective toward all aspects of life. In other words you are missing a lot by not experiencing life in other countries.

For the student who has already made plans for the upcoming summer, a look at the program for a possible trip in 1977 would be beneficial.

The England School contains two courses. The first Theater in Great Britain will focus on plays in performance, designed to allow the student to witness some of the theatrical history Britain is famous for. The second course Place and Humane Space in British Architecture, deals with how the architecture is influenced by man as an individual and as a member of the community.

The German program courses are The Culture and Political Contrasts of Four German Speaking States and German Conversation. The former provides an opportunity to study a culture which has contributed greatly to the culture of the Western world and of a culture whose origin reaches back to the life of the earliest German tribes.

The French Program includes the course French conversation and the course French Culture and Civilization, the latter analyzing the history, culture, and civilization of France.

The Greek Program courses are The Golden Age of Athens and Greek Drama. The first course is a survey of the political, social and cultural history of Athens from the establishment of Democracy, to the collapse of the Athenian Empire. The second course is designed to add a literary perspective to the survey of The Golden Age of Athens.

Summer School in Spain begins its initial year and its courses Spanish Conversation and Spanish Culture and Civilization are self-explanatory.

The last school, the Russian Program requires, no previous knowledge of Russia. Its courses are Language and Literature and Culture and History of Russia from 988 to the Present. The latter course examines the course Russia has taken; from a Christian society in Medieval times to the present-day authoritarian power.

The student who plans to travel abroad next year may wish to take courses at Guilford related to the country he will be travelling through.

Additional information about the programs may be obtained from Claude C. Shotts.
