

Milner Speaks Up

BY MIKE KINNAIRD

Last semester, there was a general consensus among the House Councilors, the President, and the Coordinator of Milner that the campus was not made aware enough of what Milner, as a dorm, was doing. It was decided that this semester an attempt should be made to inform the campus of our activities, and I agreed to write an article for each issue of The Guilfordian. This week, I will concentrate mainly on what is planned for this semester so far.

Interest has been expressed by people in Milner to create a program of mini-courses, in various subjects. The courses would be taught on a voluntary basis by anyone willing to teach them. The classes would meet only a few times, depending on the subject.

This idea is still in the planning stages and we are open to suggestions for classes and volunteers are needed for teaching. We would like to encourage the entire campus to participate in this project, and we feel that the classes can be very useful and fulfilling to all of those involved. If you have any ideas and/or suggestions about courses, or would like to volunteer to teach one, see either Mike Kinnaird in Milner 349 or Reid Moore in Milner 209. More information will be given later as to a list of courses, teachers, times, places, etc....

A football contest will be held later on this semester in Milner. The winners will receive either trophies or placards. Because the football table was paid for by Milner, and because Milner funds pay for its upkeep, a nominal entry fee might be placed on all non-Milner entries. Everyone is encouraged to practise up and enter into the "Mister Football" Tournament.

Some changes have been made in the student government of Milner recently. Don Hemrich replaced Walter Fox as the House Councilor from 2nd North, and Reid Moore was elected by the House Council to take over for Dick Parry, who resigned the presidency. Reid will remain in office until the spring elections are held. Reid's first official action was to rewrite the Milner Constitution, which needed some semantic changes. The new constitution goes before the Community Senate next week, and approval is expected.

Look for Milner Speaks Up each issue of The Guilfordian to keep in with what is going in at Milner. See you next issue.

Edward Asner appears in Roots on ABC this week.

"Roots"

Edward Asner played the captain of a slave ship in the first episode of Roots, a 12-hour television series, that was seen on ABC TV January 23. The series, based on the best seller of the same name, concerns itself with the experiences of a Black family from the 1750's to the present. The dramatizations offer a different historical perspective than is usually given of life in America from colonial days to the present. Fred Hunt and Jim Gifford are offering a course inspired by Roots. The course uses the book and TV series but is augmented by academic materials that provide the necessary historical background. For more information on the course call Fred Hunt at Ext. 143 (Bryan Hill) or Jim Gifford at Ext. 223 (Archadale 201).

NOTICES

Anyone interest in applying for a position of the Guilford College Housing Staff for the 1977-78 school year can pick up an application in the Housing Office on the 2nd floor of Bryan Hall.

This year's application procedure includes a spring training session. If you have any questions or know that you would like to apply drop by the Housing Office and see Bob White. Applications should be returned between February 1 and 15.

The current status of the Freon-ozone layer controversy will be reviewed by an Environmental Protection Agency research scientist at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 26, in the Leak Room of Duke Memorial Hall at Guilford College.

The guest speaker will be Philip Hanst of the EPA in the Research Triangle park, who has recently completed a major video taped presentation on the Freon-ozone problem for all EPA centers.

Interested high school and college groups as well as the general public are invited free of charge for the special meeting sponsored by Guilford College and the Central North Carolina Section of the American Chemistry Society.

Hanst gave the first spectroscopic proof of ozone formation in Los Angeles smog in 1956, and he earlier discovered peroxy-acetyl nitrate in urban photochemical smog.

Currently he is directing a research program being carried out at major research centers on the fate of halogenated pollutants in the ozone layer.

This semester the Counseling Center will be conducting a group emphasizing the verbal and non-verbal aspects of communication along with various assertive techniques. The purpose of the group will be to help students become aware of more effective ways of communicating including: improved listening behavior, attending skills and body language. In addition, various assertive skills will be practiced to enable students to combine both the verbal and non-verbal in being assertive.

The group is open to any student. Meeting time will be once a week for approximately 12 weeks. Each session will be an hour and a half in length. Anyone interested should contact Paula Swonguer in the Counseling Center, Bryan Hall, extension 183 or 184 before Feb. 1.

New Deadline...

Any information you have for the Student Community Newsletter must now be in by Tuesday of every week. We hope this will assure that everyone has the newsletter by Friday morning. You can bring your article to the Information Desk, Founders Hall, or sent it through the campus mail addressed to Linda Jessee, Founders Hall. Thanks for your cooperation.

On Tuesday, January 25 at 8:15 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom at A&T State University, Dr. James H. Cone of Union Theological Seminary in New York City will address the public on Liberation Theology from the black perspective. The public is invited free of charge.
