English awardees honored

By SUSAN SHUFORD

Six Guilford College students were honored at a dinner Thursday, Feb. 15, as recipients of the third annual Nereus English Athletic Leadership awards.

Winners were All-American Gary Devlin for leadership in basketball, Mike Ketchum for football, Pekka Kilpio for tennis, Bobby Lloyd for soccer and baseball, Joe Osborne for football and Lynn Zahurak for women's volleyball.

The awards are presented annually to honor the memory of the late Nereus English of Thomasville, who maintained close contact with Guilford, and particularly its athletic programs, from his graduation in 1926 until his sudden death in 1965 at the age of 61.

The English Athletic awards are also a means of recognizing outstanding merit. Each of the recipients are leaders on campus as well as superb athletes.

President Grimsley Hobbs welcomed award winners and their parents. Awards were presented by Director of Athletics Herb Appenzeller and James W. English of High Point, a nephew of Nereus English.

Today, Nereus English awardees are looked up to in much the same way students admire the achievements of Dana Scholars. Since there are only six English awards given each year, a student may receive this honor only once during his college career.

Azali and Co. pursue change

Many students feel that for the past several years, the Senate has done little that is truly beneficial. Meetings are held every Wednesday, minor resolutions passed, and more important issues sent into committees where they are often tabled and never heard from again.

Student input is often small and ineffectual. Each year the Senate is made up of the same type students; those interested but not really motiagainst the Senate leadership.

Keith Houch, a senior biology major, is a transfer from a large university where he feels students are given a much stronger voice in how their school is run. Having seen few changes brought about by students in the past two years, Keith wants to help alter this situation by running for the office of Vice President/Treasurer.

vated enough to accomplish the changes needed at Guilford.

Saied Azali, Keith Houch and Jill Lazenby hope that their ticket will bring needed change into the Guilford College Senate.

Saied Azali is the candidate for president. Saied is a senior chemistry major who has been active in numerous Guilford activities, particularly those involving Bryan dorm. A former Bryan representative to the Senate and member of the Food Committee, he resigned in protest of not being informed of times for committee meetings and because of the fact that one senator cannot stand up as the nominee for secretary. Jill is a rising senior and Dana Scholar nominee, and is majoring in political science and Spanish. Jill has seen the need for change during her three years here and feels the Senate can bring about significant change if leadership is strong.

Saied, Keith, and Jill believe the following changes should be carried out next year:

- 1) A renegotiation of the cafeteria food contract. Students should be able to pay for only the meals they eat, for example a meal ticket for only lunch and dinner, for only weekdays, etc.

Hamrick, Earl and Beeler seek Senate seats

The Guilford College Community Senate is the campus forum for ideas and suggestions concerning student life and the college community as a whole.

The Senate takes ideas and passes policy concerning all aspects of student life including academic, residential life, and students' social life. It works in close cooperation with the college faculty and administration as well as with the students.

The Senate Executive Council is made up of three students who are responsible for acting on input received from within the community as well as initiating action on idea that will lead to a better community.

Spence Hamrick, Jan Earl, and Karen Beeler feel that they can effectively handle the chores and responsibilities that the Executive Office of the Senate entails with aggressive and conscientious leadership.

Spence Hamrick is seeking the Senate's Presidency. He is a junior from Charlotte, North Carolina majoring in Economics. He has been active in student government as a Senator for two years and has served on the Budget Committee both years. He has worked closely in the past with the campus radio station, WQFS.

The Vice-President/Treasurer of this ticket is Jan Earl, a sophomore from Ft. Wayne, Indiana. She is majoring in Administration of Justice and, as a Senator, has served in several Senate committees including the Budget and Residential life Committees.

Karen Beeler is a sophomore History major from Haddonfield, New Jersey. She served on the Binford House Council as a freshman and has continued her interest in student government by being a Senator. She compliments this ticket as Secretary.
