

Study in sunny Spain

By Roger Lifson
Staff Writer

This year's summer school to the land of maracas and bull fights will be leaving for Spain from New York on May 18.

From May 19 to May 25, the group will be in Madrid. On May 24, the group will be on its way to Escorial and the Valle de las Cardos. From May 26 to the 31st, the ports of call will be Seville, Cordoba, and Granada.

On June 1, the group will go back to Madrid until June 28. From June 28 to July 19, the group will be on independent study. On July 20 the group will depart for New York.

There will also be side trips to the Palacio Real, Toledo, Segovia as well.

"Spanish Culture and Civilization," taught by Jose Almeida will be a cultural history of Spain. Subjects discussed in class will be coordinated with field trips. A study of the Arabic influence in Spain will be followed up by a trip to southern Spain. Discussions of Spanish painters will be in conjunction with a trip to the Prado.

"Spanish Conversation" is not just a conversation course. It will include a development of the Spanish language as well as its colloquial expressions. The final for this course, which is taught by Maritza Almeida, will involve an actual talking situation.

For instance, a student will have to participate in the buying of an article from a store, or actually registering at a hotel.

Classes will be held in the hotel where the group will be staying. There will be two hours of class in the morning followed by afternoon trips to museums.

Breakfast will be provided for by the hotel. The program also includes lunch, but dinner will have to be purchased by the students.

In order to participate in this program, three semesters of college Spanish is required. Selection for the program will be based on a personal interview.

Cost of the trip will be $1,695. Anyone interested in going may obtain information from Maritza Almeida in Duke 304, or from The Center for Off Campus Education, located in Frazier Apt. #21.

Jose and Maritza Almeida will lead the 1980 Spanish Summer School.

Residents vote for increased security

Housing lessens tension in Binford

About two weeks ago trouble began in Binford Hall. Non-Guilford males were found roaming Binford's Halls and several girls reported that one male entered their rooms while they were sleeping. One girl was about to shower when a male visitor sneaked in the bathroom. That same night he was also seen in rooms in Mary Hobbs.

Binford's coordinators, Carey and Julie Ritmeester, called the police. It was agreed that the police would be called again if any of the peeping toms were seen again. Days later the visitors returned. This time three of them were caught.

The man who entered the bathroom was arrested, and all of them were ordered never to return to Guilford's campus. One of the visitors was scheduled for trial for armed robbery, and another had been charged with rape, yet had gotten off on a technicality.

This chain of events led to some security changes in Guilford's women's dorms. Binford Hall made the first move since most of the trouble has hit them. Binford is the largest female dorm on campus, and it is easily accessible from College

Rd. The girls had meetings and passed around a ballot which included the following:

1. The three wing doors be locked at 9 p.m. All visitors will enter through the front door.

2. Off campus men will be required to show identification and sign in.

3. If the nature of the visit seem suspicious off campus men will be escorted to the room of the individual by the individual or the desk tender.

4. Guilford students will be allowed to enter without signing in. If a male student is not recognized by the desk tender he will be asked to show his ID.

5. Any visitor or resident would be allowed to leave by any exit.

6. The check-in system will operate between the hours of 9 p.m. and 1 a.m.

The girls voted to impose security on themselves by a 3/4 majority 91-28. Bob White has assisted the girls by using work-study students on Friday and Saturday nights. Monday through Thursday each floor is responsible for one week of covering the door. This works out to be about an hour every week for each girl.

Binford's coordinators emphasize the fact that the proposal does in no way "curtail or hinder visitation." It is designed with the single purpose of safeguarding the residents from future harassment. They have no intention of stopping Guilford students from visiting the dorm.

Shore Hall, being much smaller and less accessible than Binford has talked to all its residents and warned them of the problems. The girls have all been told to bolt lock their doors when going to bed. Beth Swindell, co-president of Shore, explained that there is an unwritten rule in Shore that the residents all look out for each other.

Mary Hobbs is also having meetings and, says coordinator Terri Bowers, "We will probably form a check-in system similar to Binford's."

Bryan Dorm, says Bob White, "is probably the best set up as far as security goes." Wanderers stand out in Bryan and any girl having problems just needs to yell and the guys in the dorm will come."
