

Dyer's open door establishes communication

McDonald, another intern, feels Dyer has been lenient. "He could be much more strict than he is if he wanted to be," he says.

Dyer also has an open door policy. All residents know that Dyer is always available to talk to or there to attempt to resolve any problem that may arise. Residents respond in different ways to this policy.

Many view Dyer as one genuinely interested with others. "I think he is interested in helping people," one resident says. Still there are others who view his policy in a different light. "He should come to us so that we can feel more comfortable coming to him," another resident says.

It is important to keep in mind that before progress can be made, effective communication must be established. Dyer's open door policy is a step in this direction. "While I was in the process of moving from one place to another in an attempt to find the most compatible roommate, Dick was most helpful."

As a first time coordinator, he is doing pretty good," one resident says. This statement is very important and one that is helpful in understanding Dyer. Many individuals in first time situations are expected to adapt slowly. Dyer seems to have adapted to his position quite well.

A possible cause for this may be due to the fact that Dyer enjoys his work and the people he encounters. "I really love the guys in this dorm because they are great guys. Whatever you give them, they give back," he says.

As for other co-ordinators and interns on campus, Dyer views them as "great people attempting to do a difficult job in the most non-conflicting manner as possible. "Bob White has been phenomenal."

To view Dyer on a broader scale than that of Milner coordinator is to view him as an asset to the Guilford community. Dyer is the editor of the Resident Hall Newsletter; he has conducted a lecture on the subject of "Death and Dying;" and he does the publicity for the Residence Hall Programming

Board.

As for Milner, "There has been a great change," says Bob White, director of the Housing Office. While Dyer remains moderate in his view of himself contributing much accomplishment, interns and residents alike view him as a positive factor in that change.

Dyer and Guilford College as a whole have some great things in mind for Milner. "We are thinking of working out four year contracts for rooms," Dyer says. Ideas and progress such as this may well transform Milner into one of the most valued dorms on the campus.

Journalism scholarships offered

The Ralph McGill Scholarship Fund offers scholarships for the 1980-81 school year of up to $1,500 each to students with southern backgrounds who have completed at least two years of college. Jack Tarver, chairman of the Scholarship Fund said today.

May 1st is the deadline for applications. A number of scholarships are awarded each year to students who have demonstrated a long-time interest in the news and editorial phase of newspapering.

Scholarships are limited to those young men and women whose roots lie in the south. Applicants must also convince the Awards Committee that they firmly intend to pursue a career in daily or weekly newspapering. Tarver said the Awards Committee wants to give scholarships to those who are likely to become leaders in the newspaper field.

Successful applicants will be required to maintain a "B" average in order to keep the scholarship.

A letter of not more than 500 words telling why the applicant wants a scholarship, together with a photograph of the applicant, must accompany each application. Applicants also must have a letter of recommendation from a college authority.

Application blanks may be obtained from: The Ralph McGill Scholarship Fund; Box 4689; Atlanta, Georgia 30302.
