Me, run for office? No way! Due to a last minute drop-out and a missed filing deadline, both slates win by default.

Candidates run unopposed

By Brian Carey
Editor

Both slates of candidates running for the Student Community Senate and the College Union will be running unopposed, Election Committee Chairperson Marie Branson reported Sunday.

Jan Earl, Martin Jones, and Stan Givens will be running for President, Vice-President/Treasurer, and Secretary of the Senate respectively. Jim Henninger, Becca Newbold, and Sandy Beer will be running for analogous positions in the Union.

Earl said her slate had not "latched onto specific issues," but feels that the Senate needs to be more exciting for the students. "This year's Senate worked well with the Administration, but it didn't have much a student could be interested in. We must make sure that stutee.

"We're also excited about the fact that Guilford has a new president; we want to work closely with him," Earl said. "He's got to be a part of what's going on with the students."

Jim Henninger, the candidate for Union President, feels that his talent tickets best qualification is that they work well

Senate President Spence Hamrick announced

Monday that elections for Senate and Union would be cancelled.

"It's unfortunate at best," he said.

April in Greensboro

Everybody must get. . . Dipity!

Serendipity, Guilford's celebration of spring, will undergo a major face-lift this year, turning the weekend outdoor concert into a week-long, multifaceted celebration.

Peter Reichard is chairman of the group responsible for coordinating the week, the Serendipity Steering Committee. Reichard said that the committee hopes to attract not only students, but also faculty members, administrators, and students from other Greensboro and area colleges to Serendipity.

In order to achieve the goal of filling an entire week with activities, the Committee is soliciting help from almost every group on campus, from the choir, to the P.E. Majors Club to the Guilford College Women.

Reichard and the committee hope that by spreading activities all over the campus and all throughout the week, they can really make Serendipity great -- complete with opening ceremonies and all the trappings.

Students can drop any ideas for Serendipity into a suggestion box available at the Information Desk. Ideas can also be submitted to any Committee member. Members include: Mans McLeod, Lisa Rice, Robyn Smith, Lisa Cobis, Roy Porter, Brian Carey, Eric Johnson, Juliana Pontone, Hugh Stohler, Con Hemrick, and Charles Almy.

Organization leaders are invited to a scheduling meeting and discussion at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, February 20, in Founders Gallery.

dent's problems are identified and worked on."

The diversity of their ticket should bring several view points together to bear on a problem: Earl is a woman, Jones is an older, work-experienced student, and Givens is black.

When asked to mention several things needing change or work, Earl mentioned low morale on campus, cafeteria food, and the increasing exodus of students every weekend. Earl also said that she would like to see more extensive revisions in the Alcohol Policy than those recently submitted by the Residential Life and Policy Committee. Henninger has two years of Union experience, and is currently co-chairman of the Coffeehouse Committee.

One change that he would like to see is the re-establishment of the Fine Arts and Lecture Committee, a group that would be responsible for talks similar to that given by Jerry Rubin in November of last year. But he foresees no other major shake-ups right now.

Henninger would like to make the Union more cohesive. "It's happening right now," but I would like to have the Union work much more closely together."

While Angels revel, actors play

Look Homeward Angel, by Ketti Frings, will be presented by the Revelers this week from Thursday, February 21, through Sunday, February 24. Showtime is at 8:15 p.m. in Sternberger Auditorium.

The author of the novel, Look Homeward Angel, Thomas Wolfe, was a native North Carolinian. He was born in Asheville, on October 3, 1900.

In 1916, he entered the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. There Wolfe took part in many campus activities and gained a record of student honors and achievements.

In 1929, Look Homeward Angel was published and years later the play was presented at UNC-C. In fact, the Revelers were able to obtain the original angel used in that historic production at UNC-C.

Much of Wolfe's work is considered to be autobiographical to a large extent. One can gain somewhat of an insight to Wolfe from Lookward Homeward Angel, where Wolfe is portrayed by Eugene Gant.

Members of the cast include Tom Abrams, Brian Beard, Gene Cline, John Steely, Howard Brandon, Dennis Kirschbaum, Dan Nicholson, Peter West, Shawn Jones, David Bradley, Dee Smith, and Jenny Crocker.

Also appearing are: Lisa Morton, Lynn Summerill, Sarah Putnam, Jo Johnson, Susan Chiddie, Liz Allen, and Gretchen Poricert.

Rick Prouty is directing his final production for the Guilford College Revelers.

Sophomore John Steely will star in Ketti Frings Look Homeward Angel starting Thursday, February 21.
