

Jenny Crocker was properly prim and prissy as "Helen Gant Barton," Eugene's sister. Here she admonishes her intoxicated father, W.O. [Dan Nicholson], as Dr. Maguire [Shawn Jones] looks on.

A little bit of real life and love is characterized by the frank relationship between Mrs. "Fatty" Pert [Dee Smith] and sickly, suave Ben Gant [Tom Abrams].

Order meets chaos. Eliza Gant, convincingly portrayed by Lisa Morton, also convinces Laura James [Lizabeth Allen] to board at Dixieland.

Gant, gave the audience another of his consistently excellent performances. His "secret" romance with "Fatty" Pert, played by Dee Smith, was very well presented. There seemed to be a very real attraction between them. Their tender portrayal of the relationship added immensely to the performance.

Director Rick Prouty deserves credit for the success of the play as does the technical crew. All in all, the Revelers handled the demands of the play very well.

Eliza Gant breaks down and lets a hearty laugh loose when high-spirited Luke Gant [David Bradley] comes back from the services to be at Ben's bedside.

Laura James and Eugene Gant [John Steely] daydream as the younger Gant tells her of one of his ambitions.
