'Consumerism is the 1980's'

Nader to speak out

Ralph Nader, probably America's most famous and most effective social critic, will visit the Guilford College campus on Monday, March 31, at 6:15 p.m. for a press conference in Sternberger Auditorium. The press conference will be followed by a reception for Nader in Boren Lounge of Founders Hall at 6:45 for members of the community.

Capping off the evening, Nader will give a lecture at 9:00 p.m. in Aycock Auditorium on the UNC-G campus. There will be no charge for any of these events for members of the College Community. Students will need their ID's to attend the 9:00 p.m. lecture. A sign-up sheet for transportation to Aycock will be at the Information Desk in Founders.

Nader's appearance is being sponsored by the North Carolina Public Interest Research Group, the Guilford College Community Senate and College Union, and eight UNC-G organizations. His speech is entitled "Consumerism in the 1980's: The Role of Students and the Community."

As a crusading attorney, Nader first made headlines in 1965 with his book, Unsafe at Any Speed, the scathing indictment that criticized the auto industry for producing unsafe vehicles. Since that time Nader's work has grown into a national network of citizen action groups that have had major impact in areas ranging from tax reform to nuclear energy.

One of Nader's many brainchildren was the PIRG movement. First started in 1970 in Minnesota and Oregon, there are now PIRG's in twenty-seven states, including North Carolina and here at Guilford College.

Art Donsky, staffperson with NC PIRG, stated, "Nader's appearance at Guilford will be a great opportunity for members of the community to meet him up close, and to ask him questions." He continued, "This event will be the high point of this year's work. There will be at least 500 seats reserved for members of the Guilford College Community at the 9:00 p.m. lecture."

Admission to the lecture is $2.00 for the general public.

Ralph Nader will hold a press conference in Sternberger, after which a reception will be held in Boren Lounge at 6:45 p.m. The public is invited.

Media Center offers many useful resources

By Mary Busken
Staff Writer

Tucked away downstairs in the Guilford library, down with Dr. Seuss and Johann Strauss, is the Media Services Center. Movie posters and photographs speckle the walls, a colorful invitation to students wandering by.

Charles Dyer, often seen busily sprinting up and down the stairs, is the wizard who magically keeps this operation running smoothly.

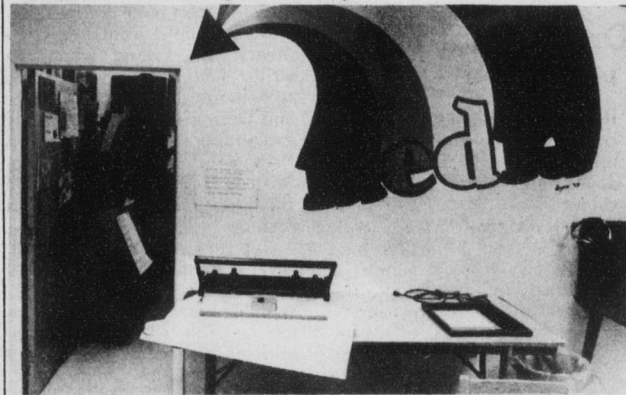

The Center has a three-fold purpose. It houses, maintains, and distributes all audio-visual equipment on campus. This includes projectors, televisions, video cameras, and photographic cameras, as well as audio and listening equipment, all available to students.

The Center also houses all necessary equipment for production work such as plastic laminating, dry-mounting photographs, silk-screening fabric, and lettering. Dyer will happily teach anyone the skills for a small charge which covers the cost of materials. Dyer encourages students to take advantage of the Center, which he describes as one of the most useful resources the library has to offer.

Another important aspect of the Media Services Center is its educational role at Guilford. Many professors and students alike venture downstairs to find useful materials. Music, A.J. and History professors often duplicate ninety minute class tapes in an amazing three minutes. Likewise, students discover overhead transparencies which add the perfect touch to those grueling class projects.

As student use grows steadily, more and more facets are opening up at the Center. Says Dyer, "We're increasing what we do for the people constantly."

The arrow points the way to the various equipment used in the multi-faceted Media Services Center.

Radio-tv money TV

Sign up for scholarships

The university of Wisconsin is accepting through April 1 applications for an $1,800 radio-television scholarship for 1980-81.

Any student of junior standing or above, including graduate students, may apply for the scholarship, which comes from a trust fund established by the late H.V. Kaltenborn, who pioneered in radio news analysis as early as 1922 and who became a national personality during the following two decades.

In selecting the student to receive the award, judges will consider scholarship, special aptitudes and interest in broadcasting with emphasis on news, evidence of planning for a career involving the use of radio and television media, and financial need.

Applicants should furnish transcripts of all college-level credits; a letter of application, presenting interests, experience and ambitions; and three supporting letters. Applications and/or inquiries should be sent to: Kaltenborn Scholarship Committee, c/o Dean of Educational Communications, University of Wisconsin-Extension, 427 Extension Building, Madison, WI 53706.

Pre-law scholarship

Candidates must have an outstanding academic record and at least a 3.25 Q.P.A. In addition the candidate must have demonstrated a high degree of proficiency in written and spoken English.

All qualified pre-law students who are rising seniors are invited to become candidates for the Lawrence T. Hoyle Scholarship. The scholarship will be awarded to a pre-law student during the senior year at Guilford College.

For students to apply for the Hoyle Scholarship they should:

Obtain and complete an application from the financial aid office; provide evidence from course work in the form of papers, quizzes, etc. for consideration by the committee; and obtain recommendations from two members of the faculty which attest to academic ability and English language proficiency;

Finalists will be interviewed by the Lawrence T. Hoyle Scholarship Committee. The deadline for application and submission of all supporting materials is Friday, April 18. The award will be announced on May 1.

AFSC searches for volunteers

By Paul Holcomb
News Editor

The American Friends Service Committee is seeking volunteers this spring for the Disaster Recovery Project in Mobile, Alabama, which was devastated by a hurricane recently.

Unskilled volunteers as well as those with some carpentry experience are needed for repair work and to replace roofs.

The committee will be scheduling individuals or groups (preferably 4-8 at a time) for work until June. There is no minimum stay required, although the work supervisors prefer that the volunteers remain in Mobile for at least a week.

Housing will be arranged by the Friends Committee in Mobile, which will probably be church basements or possibly local homes. It is hoped that Friends Meetings will support volunteers who cannot pay their own expenses. Volunteers will receive insurance coverage from AFSC's project insurance policy.

Anyone who has questions or is interested in volunteering should call Donna Jean Dreyer of the AFSC in High Point at 882-0109.
