

Dear Susan

My boyfriend and I have been living together for almost a year now and lately I've been feeling as if maybe I should move out. It seems like most of the excitement in our relationship is gone and to tell the truth, I'm a little bored. I do love him and care about him but I'm beginning to think maybe we aren't right for each other. I don't know what to do.

—Confused

Dear Confused,

Don't leave him yet! Most relationships go through natural changes and ups and downs. After living together for a year you and your boyfriend may have fallen into regular daily routines that seem mundane to you. The initial excitement of living together and learning new things about each other's lifestyles may be wearing off as you get used to the pattern.

Though things can't always be exciting, there are ways you can work on making your relationship more fun. Recapture some of the feelings you experienced while dating by planning to get dressed up and go on a "date" with your boyfriend. Or, plan a weekend away with him that provides an escape from ordinary daily routines.

Most importantly, discuss your feelings with your partner. He too may be concerned and want to work together to make your relationship more satisfying.
