The only Union executive ticket to file by the Feb. 7 deadline is comprised of:

- Andy Swanson, president,
- Tanya Haggerty, vice president, and
- Rebecca Rostand, secretary.

Uncontested tickets are the norm for Union executive elections, because candidates must be members of Union to qualify.

Crimes incite preventative measures

Lately, Guilford has been plagued by a rash of security problems. The problems have been highlighted by the presence of intruders in the Shore and Milner residence halls. The recent incidents caused a rekeying of Milner and a twenty-four hour lock-down of Shore last weekend.

A suspected Milner perpetrator was apprehended by Security on February 1st. The arrest followed the timely notification of Security by a Guilford student. Police were then notified and the suspect was immediately detained.

The accused Milner intruder is an African-American male between the ages of thirty and forty.

He was caught and charged with the misdemeanor of trespassing. Two other young males, who have not yet been caught, have also violated the privacy of certain Milner residents. Security is currently considering putting locks on second floor bathrooms as a result of these violations of privacy.

The residents of Shore requested a twenty-four hour lock-down of their residence hall from Fridays at 7 P.M. to Mondays at 7 A.M., due to the many incidents of uninvited males in their dorm. Security is also contemplating putting call-up phones outside of Shore. There have also been robberies within the Shore rooms.

Details on Arrested Intruder

- Arrested for rape, 1979. (Source: Security Bulletin)
- Knocked on residents' doors, and asked for people who did not exist. (It is assumed that this was because he wanted to find out more about residents who were living there.)
- Found passed out on female resident's bed.
- Found going through another female resident's personal possessions.
- Spotted at the Binford Formal, and reportedly even danced with a student.
- Caught by college Security on the morning of Feb. 1 on a walkway between Milner and Bryan. They detained him in the Residential Life office until the Greensboro Police Dept. arrived. The college is pressing charges, and so far the man has been permanently barred from campus, and is subject to immediate arrest by G.P.D. if he is ever found back on campus.

1995-96 Senate Executives

The choice is yours

Burton ticket offers "experience, ideas, solutions"

There are two tickets for Senate executive elections. One of those is the ticket of Brian Burton, who currently serves as Senate treasurer.

Burton's ticket consists of vice presidential candidate Benjamin Ford, first-year; treasurer candidate Laura Davis, sophomore; and secretary candidate Marie DeSimone, also first-year.

All candidates currently serve on Senate.

Brian Burton has long Senate experience. For two consecutive years he has been chairman of Senate Budget Committee. He has also served on the Judicial Board, the Admissions Committee, the Student Loan Fund Auction, the School Budget Committee and the Board of Trustees.

He explains his desire to be president: "I feel that I have a lot to offer to Guilford[I have] ideas and possible solutions to make Guilford a better place for the community."

He asks "Guilfordians" to evaluate the experience of each of the candidates to determine if they are qualified to be the next president of Senate.

Senate secretary Stephanie Jennings exclaims that her executive ticket is, "committed to making Guilford College a better place."

Jennings, who is running for Senate president, heads up a ticket comprised of vice president candidate Amanda Sabin, junior; treasurer candidate David Fleig, first-year; and secretary candidate Rachel Christensen, junior. Tanya Haggerty is their campaign manager.

Jennings emphasizes, "Each and every person on my ticket is committed to Guilford, and has shown that through their activities and actions."

A political science and international studies major, Jennings began the year as appointed junior rep. and ascended to secretary in late October.

Sabin, a political science major, is co-chairperson of the Bonner Scholars' AIDS about AIDS Conference and clerk of Project Community. Fleig serves on many Senate committees, is a co-president of Hillel and volunteers extensively. Christensen, also a political science major and a Bonner Scholar, served on Senate last year.

Senate stops approvals of new club constitutions

❖ Overextensions of funding and student involvement cited as reasons

Luisa Constanza

Senate/Club Coordinator

The executives of Senate have temporarily halted consideration of new club constitutions.

As Senate President Rich Ewell explains, there are three constitutions for new clubs frozen right now.

As the situation stands, no constitutions will be revised or brought to Senate meeting discussion until careful revisions are made to rules and regulations about the creations of clubs.

"This might take a long time to solve," said Ewell. In the meantime, no more new club constitutions will be approved.

On Wednesday, Feb. 1, the executives sent a three-page document by e-mail to all organizations on campus. As the document explains, there are three main reasons that led to this freeze.

The first is the "over-extension of student power." The executives believe that there are too few students that are actively involved in student organizations. As Ewell explains, there are difficulties in finding members for many existing clubs.

Ewell says the creation of new clubs can only result in overlapping membership, instead of recruiting more students in different organizations. An example of this situation could be noticed in the creation of the new club, New Generation Ministries. Many members of this new Christian group were members of InterVarsity Christian Fellowship.

The second point of the document reads an "over-extension of funding capacity." At this point, there are around 45 clubs at Guilford College; of those, 43 have received funding from Senate. According to the document, most clubs historically do not spend the entire amount of money allotted to them. However, this year Senate has already taken $20,000 from the reserve funds.

The third and last point addresses the issue of "multiple officership." According to the document, some clubs exist only because of the interest of a couple of people. It explains that there are some cases in which two people serve as the president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer of the organization.

The document ends by asking members of the organizations to give some ideas and suggestions in order to solve what Senate executives believe are problems concerning the creation of new clubs on campus.
