BEG YOUR PARDON

We apologize for the unusual amount of typos in the October 11 issue of The Guilfordian. We experienced massive computer troubles and had to retype all copy in time for printing.

On the same note, we'd like to give exorbitant amounts of praise to everyone who helped us during our misfortune. We can't thank you enough!!

SECURITY REPORT

The following are cases that were handled by Security from October 1, 1996 to October 28, 1996.

Security investigated three acts of vandalism. Two of these three occurred in Founders Hall:

Oct. 1: Security responded to a call from Marriott workers in reference to vandalism they discovered upon reporting to work. An unknown individual threw apples against the wall and scattered broken glass all over the floor in front of the I.D. desk in the cafeteria.

Oct. 8: At 9:30am Student Activities personnel reported to Security that a hole had been put in a wall of the Founders Basement Game Room. The hole was approximately one foot long and was located on the wall across from the doors, between the two windows.

Oct. 23: At 8:32am a member of Housekeeping reported to Security that a table had been vandalized in Bryan Hall. Upon arriving, the security officer found that the table, labeled D31, had in fact been thrown into the Quad. The table was destroyed.

There were two incidents of stolen bikes reported to Security for the month of October:

Oct. 7: A gray Specialized Hard Rock bike with yellow lettering was stolen from the Student Apartments. According to the victim the bike was stolen between 5:00pm and 7:00pm. The bike was taken from the second-floor balcony in front of Apartment 722. Value of the bike is estimated at $170.00. The bike was not locked at the time of theft.

Oct. 14: A black Bianchi Ocelot mountain bike was stolen from the front of Founders Hall. The owner reported that he left the bike in front of the steps at Founders between 6:30pm and 7:00pm. The bike was not locked at the time of theft. Estimated value is $200.00

If anyone has any information on these incidents, please call Security at 316-2909 or "0" from any campus phone.

Profs granted study leaves for '97-'98

STACEY VINCENT
 staff writer

If you notice some familiar faculty faces are missing next year don't be worried, they'll be back eventually.

Eight members of Guilford's faculty will be on leave next year, but this is no holiday. They will be hard at work improving their courses or pursuing other scholarly endeavors.

The Faculty Affairs Committee has approved study leaves this year for: Carol Clark (Economics), Dean DelaMotte (French), Claire Helgeson (Education), Adrienne Israel (History), Beth Keiser (English), Mel Keiser (Religion), Jonathan Malino (Philosophy), and Claire Morse (Psychology).

Each year the college grants study leaves for up to eight full-time tenured faculty members. According to the guidelines printed in the faculty handbook, "The primary purpose of study leaves are scholarly activity and personal renewal and refreshment, benefiting the individual, the individual's students, the teaching profession and the College."

Martha Cooley, Guilford's academic dean, says, "Teaching is a labor intensive-profession." There is little time for instructors to improve themselves, develop their courses, or pursue other scholarly objectives, such as writing a book, without being granted a leave of absence.

Tenured instructors are allowed to apply for a study leave every seven years. During this time they are released from all college duties and free to focus on whatever projects they are pursuing.

The leave periods may be one or two semesters in length. Instructors that take advantage of this opportunity retain all benefits and, if they are granted a full year, will receive 2/3's of their salary. Instructors taking only one semester will retain their full salary. This is considered a job benefit and is funded by the college.

The Faculty Affairs Committee considers each proposal and decides who will be granted leave based on the instructor's proposal to the college, the instructor himself, and the students. They also consider how the instructor's absence will affect their department, and whether or not the instructor's department will be able to cover their classes.

Adrienne Israel, a Guilford history instructor who has been granted a study leave, has more planned for her leave than even she thinks she can complete. She plans to work on polishing up some new classes, research African women in relation to Pentecostalism, and work on some chapters she is writing for a book. Israel definitely does not plan to kick back and take it easy, but says, "I find this work so interesting that I feel rejuvenated."

Claire Morse intends to look at how other schools teach research methods, Mel Keiser will focus on a Quaker theology manuscript, and Claire Helgeson will be working on how to teach science in schools. According to Martha Cooley, "All of the faculty members have interesting plans for their leaves. What makes them so interesting is that they are all so specific to that person and that person's interests."

Although they will be missed around the campus their return will be much anticipated, not only for the reunion of friendships, but for the new knowledge they will be bringing back with them.

"All these faculty members have interesting plans for their leaves... they are all so specific to that person and that person's interests."

- Martha Cooley

SECURITY AND SAFETY COMMITTEE REPORTS POSSIBLE CHANGE

Security and Safety Committee is looking into the following pos-
