a petition voicing concerns about the decisions being made asking for an open forum for students. In a meeting with members of the Guilfordian staff on Saturday, some of the Trustees said they were touched by the petition and would make every effort to keep students informed about what is happening.

The trustees also wanted to address the student's worries. "Believe in our sincerity," Frank said. "We believe in Guilford or else we wouldn't spend the time we do."

Janet Dickerson, trustee, said "We want to make progress without change, but those two things go together." The trustees expressed the belief that the struggle going on at Guilford right now will only make it stronger and better.

"I would prefer to be here now," said Bruce Stewart, a trustee and an alumnus who was at Guilford during the civil rights movement. "I can't think of a more exciting time to be here."

communicate with our listeners and provide up to date information for those interested in WQFS."

Kim O'Connor, promotions director, stated that the website and the new 'zine were ways of "expanding our audience, and introducing new people to WQFS. Before, listeners' access was limited to the radio."

The station's number one goal for the coming year is to beat Tulane and be rated the best college radio station in America.

Andy described what it would take to make that happen, saying, "I believe that WQFS has a potential that has been under used for a very long time, and though we have one of the greatest staffs in the world, we will have to put a lot more energy into making us number one."

He did acknowledge the station's significant accomplishments, stating proudly "Number two isn't that bad."
