A new position called the Dean of Campus Life will combine responsibilities of both the Dean of Student Life (Mona Olds), and the Director of Residential Life (Joanne Toby), and the old positions have been eliminated.

The Dean of Campus Life, a position that may be filled by Anne Lundquist, former Assistant Dean for Retention & First Year Program and currently Dean of Students at Greensboro College, will report directly to Randy Doss, whose new title is Vice President for Enrollment and Student Life. The deadline to apply for the deanship was Fri., April 26.

"My engagement comes from an enrollment management position," Doss said. "I will oversee the whole student life program."

Doss will take on most of the planning and oversight functions of the eliminated positions, and the day-to-day decisions will be handled by the Dean of Campus Life, according to Mona Olds, whose contract with Guilford ends June 30.

Additionally, three Assistant Deans of Student Life, a step up from the current three Residence Life Coordinators, will relieve the Dean of Campus Life of most low-end responsibilities of student life and residence life. The new positions will be paid more than the ones they were designed from, and will require a Master's Degree, with two years of post-Master's residential life experience preferred, according to the job description.

"The design of the three assistants is not just a glorification of residence coordination; these are intended to be administrators with substantial expectations and will be held accountable to those," said Executive Vice President Jerry Godard.

The Operations Planning Group subcommittee of the Strategic Long Range Planning committee (SLRP), both chaired by Associate Academic Dean Jim Hood, created the new Dean of Campus Life position, to be paid less than the former Dean of Student Life, last month in their efforts to save money by "reducing non-instructional staffing," according to Doss.

"I don't think any of it was dissatisfaction with my performance," Olds said. "The redesign allows for there to be savings." Olds has worked at Guilford since 1993.

Olds, who served on the subcommittee, presented alternatives to the restructuring that would have saved money but kept the basic present structure intact, and with
