

SERENDIPITY 2011

RAIN RAIN GO AWAY - G-SIDE, THE COOL KIDS, AND DRAG SHOWS ARE HERE TO STAY

Students in wild, glittery face paint and bright tutus wandered through Alumni Gym. Live music filled the air as students were duking it out in the inflatable boxing ring, while others were busy tying the knot at the Shotgun Wedding booth.

Outside, crumbs and bits of bread flew through the air as students stabbed and parried at each other with day-old baguettes during the fencing club's "Baguette Fencing Tournament." Throw in some cotton candy and tie-dyed t-shirts and you've got one swinging street fair, courtesy of Serendipity 2011.

The street fair, held indoors on Saturday due to weather, was only one of the many events that made up Serendipity this year. Although the festival comes every year, it's a little bit different every time.

"Each Serendipity manifests differently as your old friends leave and new ones are made, so this Serendipity was of course different than then last," said senior Marcus Edghill.
