EDITORIAL

THE NEW YEAR.

And now that the glamour and tinsel of Christmas is over and we come once again to the beginning of a New Year we naturally stop to wonder just what it has in store for us. In truth, it has many things. The doors which form its entrance, are flung wide and '22 invites us to enter in order that we may partake of its joys and pleasures, but above all, avail ourselves of its manifold opportunities.

A new beginning, a time when we can, in a sense, blot out the past and start life anew with a clean sheet, is truly a joy. Each day contains but twelve precious hours which pass with incredible rapidity and then are seen no more. Yesterday is gone; tomorrow may never come; today is here. Therefore this is the psychological moment, not only for the formation of new and higher resolves, but at the same time, for the exertion of more strenuous effort toward the realization of at least a few of those ideals and aspirations.

At the birth of each New Year we have offered to us a chance to change everything; however, "a complete rejuvenation never comes until we have the courage to take what we want! This is the great outstanding virtue of the young—they never sit around and wait for things to come to them but they go out and take them." With this truth before us, let us ever be mindful of the fact that the strength of our ability is wholly equivalent to the strength of our will—so, "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us" in this swiftly passing New Year.

000 of the new coins, one-half of them dated 1921. The first dollar was sent by special messenger to President Harding.

General Diaz of the Italian army has been adopted into the tribe of the Crow Indians. Three Indian chiefs of that nation adopted the generalissimo into the tribe in Washington with appropriate ceremonies. They danced, chanted songs with tom-tom accompaniment, dressed the general in tribal costume trimmed with ermine and bear's claws, hung a war bonnet on his head, placed a necklace of teeth around his neck, and gave him a pipe-sack. The general said that as a boy he had read and dreamed about the American Indians but never thought he would be one.

North Carolina was deeply saddened on Dec. 28 when the death of Thomas Walter Bickett, the ex-governor, became known. The state has probably never mourned so much since the death of Charles B. Aycock. Bickett was not an office-seeker and probably no one was more surprised than he when he was made attorney-general in 1908. He had this office for 8 years and in 1917 he was made governor, which office he held for four years. It was probably the arduousness of his task during those years so crucial in the state's history that hastened his death at the age of fifty-two. He died comparatively poor but left a rich legacy, the value of which cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Not all the gold in the world can buy the memory of his life and work which will forever live in the hearts of North Carolina.
