BIRTHDAY DOIN'S.

Yes'm! There was a birthday party in "Jo" Shaffner's room Tuesday night, and this was an unusual one, for instead of the one conventional guest, there were three claiming the day as their own. As the snowy Angel's food did not give the ages singly or collectively of these three lucky maids, their names are subject to alphabetical order: Ella Aston, Marion Cooper, and Eleanor Shaffner.

For half hour, merry pandemonium reigned, intermixed with lovely bonbons, "more" cake, and the Vic's latest. At the last tap of the light bell, there was a unanimous chant of,

"Second by second, in every way, we've enjoyed this party more'n we can say", by the following: "Jo" Shaffner, Dot Sessoms, "E. P." Parker, "Pud" Griffin, Hannah Weaver, "Jim" Pfohl, "Strowd", "Hickory" Lyerly, and Elizabeth Connor.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS BRIGHT McKEMIE ANNOUNCED

A Fisherman's Wife.....Nettie
A Gas Man's Wife.....Meta
A Marksman's Wife.....Amy
Misses Bright McKemie, Julia Bettea, and Alice Lyerly tied for the prize—each of these having scored a hundred. They drew straws for the prize and Miss McKemie won. She was presented with a box of beautiful hand-made linen handkerchiefs.

A newsboy, impersonated by Miss Ruth Reeves, entered crying "Extra Salemite! News of great importance!"

A copy of the "Extra" was presented to each grade. It read as follows: "Announcing the engagement of Miss Carolyn Bright McKemie to Mr. William Richard Turman.

"The many friends of Miss McKemie will be interested to learn of her engagement to Mr. Turman. She is the attractive daughter of Mr. W. B. McKemie of Atlanta, Georgia, and has been a student at Salem College for the past four years. While here she has maintained a very high standard of scholarship, and has made many friends in the student body.

"Mr. Turman is also of Atlanta, and holds a responsible position with the Southern Railway Company. He is known to us here, as he has visited at the college on several occasions.

"The friends and classmates of Miss McKemie join in wishing her much success and happiness in the years to come."

Miss McKemie was presented with a lovely hand-made linen towel by the hostesses of the occasion.

Refreshments, fruit salad, sandwiches, coffee and salted nuts were passed.

After the defreshments a social hour was held during which many of the guests contributed original stunts by way of entertainment.

Many happy wishes were extended the guest of honor and many thanks to the charming hostesses for the pleasure afforded all.
