JOKES.

Mr. Higgins (talking to class)—So you see, it expands on contracting.

Can't See It.

Anna—Oh, Oh!
Eva—What's the matter?
Anna—Got something in my eye.
Eva—What is it?
Anna S.—Don't know, can't see it.

The slyest—Win-king;
The noisest—Tal-king;
The quietest—Thin-king
The worst—Shir-king;
The funniest—Jo-king
The most useful—Ma-king.

ANNUAL STAFF MAKES SUCCESS.

The Annual staff, after checking up all accounts, finds that it has made a complete success in its business department this year. The returns from the advertisements have been larger than ever before, as a consequence of which the staff finds a surplus amount in its treasury. However, it has decided that instead of leaving the money there for use next year, it will give to the classes amounts proportionate to the expenses incurred for pictures. We are proud of the fact that our Annual has made such a success this year and we heartily congratulate our editor and her staff.

DEMONSTRATION IN FIRST AID.

Longfellow. Mr. Longfellow also showed modes of carrying a person by his arms, clothing, and a sling.

Captain Stag took up the subject of first aid in the water. He illustrated on the platform various swimming strokes, particularly the Australian crawl. Captain Stag demonstrated the ways to approach a drowning person, to break his hold, and to carry him through the water.

Miss Brown, physical director of the Y. W. C. A., invited all college girls to see further demonstrations of first aid to be given Wednesday afternoon in the Y. W. swimming pool by Captain Stag and Commodore Longfellow. This was an opportunity to learn all the water stunts, the different strokes, dives, and, if you wished, the surest and most efficient method of drowning. Especial emphasis was placed on rescue work and resuscitation.

TRANSLATION FROM HORACE, BOOK I, ODE I.

O, most noble benefactor
Boon of gods and royalty
Always my most dear protector,
Bend thy kindly ear to me!

There are some who find their pleasure
In the rougher games of life—
Racing, hunting, seeking treasure,
And exulting in the strife.

There are some who find enjoyment
As they drink and dance and dine,
Lazy and without employment,
Often overcome by wine.

But the gentle art of writing,
And of thinking out a rhyme
Suits me better far than fighting,
So I'll choose it, every time.

JUNIORS ENTERTAIN SENIORS

with which the Seniors were partaking of this delightful occasion. Mr. Gardner Hudson, of Winston-Salem, then made a very delightful talk on behalf of the men present. This, in turn, was followed by a most enjoyable few minutes in which Dr. Rondthaler said various and sundry things.

When the long hand and short hand had both met at the top of the clock, the orchestra let forth the dire ed—and so to the strains of "Home, Sweet Home", the guests departed, wishing that proms came more than once a year, and declaring the Juniors to be most charming hostesses.
