

IMPORTANT NOTICE
Hours of Registration

College students registration is limited to the following hours on Wednesday, September 12th:

9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; 2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.; 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

These hours must be strictly observed. Students should make every effort to register immediately upon arrival. This is of the utmost importance and failure to observe this request may be attended with very serious delay.

Special Postoffice Notice

No postoffice drawers will be rented to buildings or classes or other similar groups.

Separate postoffice boxes must be secured by individuals either singly or in groups of three. The general use of the postoffice drawers has been discontinued.

There is no charge for the postoffice box. A deposit of 25 cents is made for each key which deposit is refundable when the key is returned.

All postoffice keys, locker keys and room keys for which deposits must be made must be secured by Thursday 1 p.m. at Mrs. Best's office. The set of room, dresser, and closet keys may be obtained by depositing $1.00 which is refunded when the keys are returned in the spring.

ROADS TO AND FROM THE POSTOFFICE

If all roads lead to Rome surely some lead from Rome. What's the Rome of Salem? It is the place where everybody, with one accord, meets—"Where is the Post Office?" is the first question asked by a new comer. The boarders can't forget that and the day students won't; for it is just next to the Day Students' Room in Main Hall.

From this important spot you can find any place on the campus. Turning to your left and going through a narrow hallway, you come to a covered board walk. Follow this walk until it terminates and you will reach the Science Building, in which meet the Chemistry, Biology, and Physics classes. Just above these class rooms is the infirmary in which Miss Turner, the nurse, is always ready to administer first aid.

Now go back to the Post Office to see if the mail has been "put up"—then turn to your right, cross the back porch, and climb the stairs at your left (Don't miss them), push open the door very softly and you will be welcomed into the library where you can do almost anything you wish except make a noise.

Every class room in Main Hall is numbered. You can't miss chapel if you get in line and follow the crowd into the Auditorium of Memorial Hall. From the little elevator room at the right of the stage, Ollie will take you to the music practice room. Bible classes are held in the Sunday School room of the Home Moravian church, the entrance of which is just opposite Memorial Hall.

And then—
If there's anything you want to know, Just ask us, we can tell;
We've all been here for many a month And know this place quite well.

SALEM OPENS THURSDAY WITH REGULAR CHAPEL SERVICE

On Thursday morning, September 14th at 10 o'clock Salem College and Salem Academy will open with usual chapel exercise. On this occasion, however, several added features will lend interest to the first meeting of the student body for the year 1923-24.

It will be interesting to watch class mates as they exchange hurried greetings. The enthusiasm will in no wise wane, however, when the first strains of the processional are sounded.

Down the left aisle, in Academic array, will move the new Senior class; just yesterday, it seems, they were Juniors. Every one has progressed—the Freshmen of last year, having acquired a bolder countenance, will have forfeited their places in the Hall to the incoming Freshman class, and the old Sophomores will have claimed the Junior benches as their own.

Every year a portion of the first exercise is devoted to the reading, by our President, of the greetings which have been received from Alumnae of many states. Salem girls are always expressing their desire to stand with us at "the Portal of the Opening Year."

Announcements concerning classes and other matters of student interest will be made. Dr. Rondthaler, Bishop Rondthaler, Mr. Heath, and Dr. Kenneth Pfohl will each say a few words to the students.

After an hour together, the student body will be dismissed as the bell in Main Building rings for the first class, since Salem prides herself on the fact that real work begins the very first day of school.

SUNDAY SERVICE AT THE MORAVIAN CHURCH

Every Freshman rather dreads her first Sunday at college and expects a dreary, lonesome day when she will be entirely engulfed by the homesickness that has threatened her for the past week. But our first Sunday at Salem is a different sort of day. It begins with the eleven o'clock service at the Moravian Church, which the College and Academy students attend en masse, led by the Seniors in all the glory of their newly acquired cap and gown. Dean Shirley at the organ renders a fitting prelude; Dr. Kenneth Pfohl leads in the reading of the litany and delivers a message particularly helpful to the student entering upon a year of school work; and every member of the Home congregation gives a cordial welcome to those who are to be in their midst for the next nine months. It is a service full of inspiration for every one who attends.

College Class Cards! Be sure you have them! Every student must present the cards obtained during registration at the first meeting of each class she attends. No student will be allowed to attend class unless she has her card ready to present. If the cards have been lost, additional ones may be obtained from the office for the sum of 5c each.

Through the use of these cards the class roll may be quickly obtained, the relative number of students in the different sections may be ascertained, and students who have no official right to enter a class will be withheld.

The instructors expect every student to co-operate in making effective this new system of checking up in class attendance.

STUDENT SELF-GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION EXTENDS HEARTY WELCOME TO FRESHMEN.

In the name of the Student Self-Government Association of Salem College, we, the Council, extend a cordial welcome to every new girl entering our school home.

We are delighted to have you as members of our school family, and we want you to feel at home, even though things may appear strange and confusing at first. Remember that all of us were new girls once and, knowing how you feel, we are anxious to become your friends and to help you in every way we can.

We need your help and we feel that without your support and so-operation, the best work cannot be done this year.

We want you to come to see us if you feel the least bit lonesome and want to talk to some one.

Again, we welcome you to our school and eagerly anticipate knowing each one of you.

OLD VETERANS VISIT SALEM—COLLEGE CLAIMS INTEREST

On September 4-5 Winston-Salem was hostess to the old soldiers of the South. Thees old gentlemen, cheerful and full of life in spite of the years which have elapsed since they fought in the battles of '61-65, were entertained with luncheons, banquets, balls, and parades, but there were very few of them who failed to include a visit to Salem College in their list of activities. Each one was interested in the school in which some sister, cousin, wife, or daughter had obtained her education.

Many of the veterans were visiting the College for the first time in fifty years. One soldier asked for the old register in order that he might find in it the name of a relative who graduated from Salem long before 1800. Those who did not visit Salem in person viewed it Wednesday from the cars which passed in a surprisingly long parade. Many were the salutations which Salem, older than any of her visitors received from these fine old men—salutations of which she is justly proud.

EDISON AND BURROUGHS.

Habits of life that are healthful for one man may be disastrous to another. This fact is well demonstrated by an incident recited by John Burroughs in the volume entitled "John Burroughs Talks," written by Clifton Johnson and recently published by Houghton Mifflin & Company. Burroughs, it appears, was once warned by Edison that he ate three time stoo much, and was advised to subsist on a lighter diet. Believing in the experimental method, Burroughs edcided that the only way to determine the value of Edison's advice was to test it in actual practice. Accordingly, when the two of them weer spending a few adys together visiting some friends, Burroughs courageously informed Edison, "While we're here I'm going to keep pace with you in this food business."

The famous naturalist was as good a shis word. When soup was served, he stanchly refused to partake of anything so stimulating. When the fish appeared on the table, he turned it down with a polite "No, thank you." When the chicken was brought in, he scrupulously confined himself to dipping some toast in the gravy; and while he did permit himself the indulgence of some creamed potatoes, he declined to eat anything so luxurious as squash. Ice cream and pudding, of course, were not to be thought of—and as for the coffee, he accorded it nothing more than a sniff of contempt.
