JOKES

When a man decides to "cut out the gay life" it is not so often for lack of interest as for lack of capital, dearie.

"Did you see my sunburst last night?" inquired the pompous Mrs.
Newrich of her poorer neighbor.
"No, I didn't," said the neighbor,
caustically, "but I certainly thought
he would if he ate another bite."

* * *

Wigg—"That detective has been hovering about the Bureau of Information all day.

Wagg—"Well, I suppose there are always a lot of questionable characters around a Bureau of Information.

* * *

Sillicus—"What is your idea of a perfect man?"
Cynicus—"One who is willing to acknowledge his faults."

* * *

Nell—"She's a cold-hearted sort
of a girl."

Belle—"I guess your heart would get cold, too, if you wore it on your sleeve like she does."

Woman—"I hope you thank the Lord for the hand-outs you get?"

Tramp—"Lady, I'm a bum, but I thank the Lord that I ain't a liar."

* * *

Anna Long (at lunch, quoting a very notable saying)—"A man's heart can be reached through his stomach."

Lo Short—"Huh, how can a woman's be reached?"

Anna—Oh, through flattery, of course, Lo.

Lo (amazed)—In other words,
stuff them and they are yours."

* * *

"I would like to give a good recommendation, Eliza, but my conscience compels me to state that you never got the meals ready at the proper time. I wonder how I can put it in a nice sort of way?"

"You might say that I got my meals the same as I got my pay."

* * *

When warring nations patch up
their quarrels they waste a whole lot of time looking for a needle in a haystack.

* * *

The bill collector is also in pursuit of wealth, but it is generally somebody's else's.

* * *

Miss Hall (quoting a joke)—"It
is the little things in life that tell,
said the girl as she pulled her little brother out from under the sofa."
