AT LEISURE

The Man-in-the-Moon fell out of the sky.
One night through the mist and the dew,
The clouds grew drowsy and lost their hold,
And down fell the moon like a lump of gold
To the depths of the sea's clear blue.

The clouletts woke in a terrible fright
To find the moon not there,
And they all clasped hands to form a chain
Which reached to the earth and back again,
And they searched for him every where.

At last they looked in the midst of the sea,
Where a shaft of gold pierced the blue,
Down at the base they saw him lie,
And they leaved him back up into the sky;
And the old world never knew! —G. S.

THE CYNIC

The Wall I built of doubt and disbelief
To ward off disillusion—gives relief.

From Life,
Kept me secure within its strong confines
From whence I watched the broken, serried lines
Of strife . . .

I read of how an ancient, tranquil sage
Kept peace within their well-gilt dwelling place;
But fond
Of peace did they so dally live and die
And never wonder what might lie beyond!

—Wisconsin Literary Magazine.

"Does Mary know much about motors?"
"Heavens, no; she asked me if I cooled my car by stripping the gears."

"I hear you've given up singing to the prisoners."
"Yes, they complained that it wasn't in the penal code."

"Hear 'Em and Weep' A Success

On Saturday evening, March 5, an interesting entertainment, entitled "Hear 'Em and Weep, or the Song You Forgot to Remember," was presented in Memorial Hall under the auspices of Miss Annie Maude Pollard's Sunday School class of the First Presbyterian church. The program took the form of a story told by Miss Collins, who, taking the part of the Grandmother, told the story of her life. Her narrative was illustrated by charming tableaux given by members of the class, and by many old-fashioned songs, sung by a quartette composed of Mrs. Reece, Miss Lupo, Mr. Lupo, and Mr. Anderson. Both songs and tableaux were very effective, and the entire presentation was very delightful and entertaining.

Miss Forman Judge In Thrift Contest

Members of Education 6 have been very interested during the past week in the thrift projects of the Grammar schools of Winston-Salem. Each grade carried out a project during one week, making thrift posters and bulletins concerning the projects. The children did many interesting things, one class making visits to banks and other commercial houses of Winston-Salem. Several classes wrote plays on the theme of thrift, showing what they did during the week. One bulletin started with the words, "Every thing in our school was turned into thrift last week."

A prize will be given for the best posters and bulletins, the judges, one of whom is Miss Eleanor Forman, being people interested in education.

JOKES

Captain: "Fix bayonets!"
Voice from the ranks: "There's nothing wrong with mine, sir."

"This is the place for me"

For here whene'er I tell a joke
The breakers simply roar."

Prof. in Psych. I: "What do you associate with the word mutton?"
Freshman: "Jeff."

Visitor (at funeral): "Is that her coffin?"
Widower: "Not, that's my daughter. She has the croup." —Technician.

Kid: "Father, I passed Cicero today."

Father: "Did he speak?"

Prof. on Street: "Do you know who I am?"

Student: "No, sir; but if you can remember your address I'll take you home."

Advertiser: "This is the stadium."
Student (beginning): "Here, now take us to the curriculum. They say they have a good one here."
—Punch.

It is easy enough to be happy
When life is a bright, rosy wreath.
But the man worth while
Is the man who can smile
When the dentist is filling his teeth.
