Mrs. Edward Macdowell Will Lecture March 23

Mrs. Edward Macdowell, wife of the famous American composer, will give an address and recital in Memorial Hall, on Wednesday evening, March 23. Mrs. Macdowell is touring the country in the interests of the establishment of a memorial for her husband, the memorial having taken the form of an artists colony in New Hampshire. This colony is devoted to the promotion of all types of art, by offering a secluded, quiet spot where artists may work unhindered and with greater concentration.

Mrs. Macdowell has been engaged in collecting her husband's compositions and in publishing, and her own ability as an artist has won for her a place in the musical world. She comes on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Macdowell Club and the Thursday Morning Music Club of Winston-Salem.

Scorpions Bid Seven New Members Mar. 17

Thursday, March 17, was "sting-day" or bid-day for the Order of Scorpions. Each prospective member was given a small forget-me-not to signify her bid. The new members were: Elizabeth Sifferd, Margaret Pfuhl, Katherine Biggan, Margaret Hauser, Mary Johnson, Margaret Vanger, Sarah Turlington, and Cam Loren.

COUNTY SCHOOL SENIORS DINNER GUESTS AT SALEM

3. How does one begin to effect an entrance into College?

The first two questions were answered by speeches of several of the women. They emphatically stated that College is a place for good times on account of athletics and various organizations; the "best place in the world in which to make friends"; a place where one learns to do individual thinking about studio and life; and a place where one learns when to look for the things that one wishes to know. It was also brought out that it is impossible to know all about everything, but in College one gains "knowledge which means power and opportunity."

In answer to the third question the last speaker explained how to use Catalogues to an advantage, and that self-help is all-important to the girl entering college. Two violin solos were then rendered by Miss Sara Faust, with which the program closed.

At one o'clock the guests assembled in the dining room and were seated at the tables with the college students. During lunch Virginia Welch led the girls in a few College songs. After lunch until two o'clock the seniors were shown over the campus and through the dormitories, which offered them an insight into college life. The visitors left then for their respective schools.

FRENCH CLUB PRESENTS MOLIERE'S LIFE AND WORKS

Miss Letitia Currie played the role of a peasant who later became the famous physician, Mlle. Ruch Platt in the role of the peasant's wife displayed much French wit. Miss Anna Pauline Slatfner and Donald Walker played the roles of the king's messengers while Mlle. Emily Sargent played the role of the king and Mlle. Rachel Phillips that of the princess. The entire cast interpreted their roles in a very realistic and delightful manner and afforded much pleasure to the audience.

Since this was an open meeting, a large number of guests were present and Mlle. Platt, the president, expressed the pleasure of the club in having so many visitors. The meeting was then adjourned.

Little Boy (just finishing prayers): "And Lord, please make Napoleon a Russian."
Mother (when he had finished): "Why did you say that, Son?"
L. B.: "Cause that's what I put on my examination paper."—Seated.

Macdowell Club Presents Picture Starring Arliss

On Saturday night, March 12, the McDowell Club presented George Arliss in "The Ruling Passion." The feature picture was preceded by the ridiculous Aesop's Fables which ended with a famous maxim, "He who laughs last is the one who didn't see the point at first."

George Arliss takes the role of James Alden, a successful business man, who is persuaded by his wife and physician to have an extended vacation at their Long Island home. He consents, but he soon becomes worn out from his eternal "resting" and decides to go into business without letting his family know about it. Under an assumed name he forms a partnership with Bill Merrick (Edward Burns) who owns a filling station. The plot grows more interesting when Alden's daughter, Angie, played by Doris Kenyon, and Merrick fall in love with each other. The story is brought to a climax when Angie discovers her father's secret, and when Bill finds that his partner is James Alden, the wealthy automobile manufacturer.

Miss Elizabeth Sifferd's music added greatly to the enjoyment of the entertainment.

TWO NEW "FINDS" PLAY WITH SILLS

Larry Krst and Alice Waite Cast
In "The Sea Tiger"

Two new faces in First National Pictures—new to the screen altogether—appear in "The Sea Tiger," Milton Sills' latest contribution to the silent drama which comes to the Amusea Theatre next Wednesday.

Alice White, who plays the part of little madcap Spanish actress, never worked in pictures before and surprised everyone by her cleverness. Larry Krst has been in the films for some little time but is new to First National. He enacts the role of Sills' brother in this stirring story of the Canary Islands and a little hamlet of Spanish fisherfolk.

Both are admirable in the cast including beautiful Mary Astor in the feminine lead; Arthur Stone, a sterling comedian, Kate Price, inimitable character actress, and others. Carey Wilson adapted and produced the picture and John Francis Dillon directed it.

Student Government To Elect Officers April 1st.

The Off-Campus Student Self-Government Association will elect officers the first of April. Thelma Evers, president, announced at a meeting of the organization that the new officers will take up their duties the first of May. Miss Evers appointed the following nominating committee to report at the first meeting in April: Helen Bagby, chairman, Eva Lee Kerber, and Nell Culler.

There will be a ballot box placed at a convenient location, where every off-campus student will cast her vote. This is a new method of voting for Student Government officers, and will doubtlessly prove successful.

The nominations for the officers of the On-Campus Student Government have been posted, and will be voted upon on April 9. The nominees for president are: Charlotte Sells and Doris Walston.

Pilgrim: "Is football your favorite game?"
Furlan: "No, I prefer wild turkey on toast."
