

HANDS ACROSS THE TABLE

Dear Miss Builder Upper,
I went home for the Christmas holidays feeling like a cool million. Honestly, I'd never looked better. My new permanent was nothing less than a golden glistened halo. And my skin! — not even the smallest suggestion of a blemish. Of course, I'd paid a dear price for the peach bloom effect, having gone sweet-less for weeks before hand. I was slim, too, and thought I was a budding Sheba, until . . . Well, it's like this. The handsomest man about-town came to see me the first night I was home. Instead of complimenting me on my hair and complexion as I had hoped he would, he kept glancing at my hands, holding the bridge cards across the table from him. I can't say that I saw what the attraction was, because my fingers looked like a brick mason's. My nails were painfully cracked and broken, and the cuticle was ragged and red looking. Worst of all, my polish was on in sorry, uneven streaks. Why can't I get it on evenly like some people do? Oh, I was miserably hand-conscious all evening. I was hurt and couldn't keep my mind on the game at all because I somehow sensed that he was disappointed in me. Of course, he didn't come back to see me again, just as the heroes in the Listerine ads don't.

What'll I do?
Sorrowfully,
Salem Senior.

Dear Salem Senior,

Some men, indeed, most men, are acutely hand-conscious. In fact, I've had several go so far as to tell me that they can fairly accurately judge a girl's character by the way she cares for her hands and nails. Untidy nails mean an untidy housekeeper nine times out of ten. Remember that, when you're husband-snaring
Here's a routine that I hope you'll follow from now on.
During these cold days, don't fail to rub a good non-sticky, penetrating lotion into your hands after every washing.
Once a week before retiring for the night it's a good idea to massage warm olive oil well into your hands, slip a pair of old cotton gloves on, and then hop into bed, of course, without removing gloves or oil until morning.

It will be absolutely necessary that you give yourself a thorough manicure at least once every week. Use a lotion-tipped orange stick well soaked with soothing hand lotion to push your stubborn cuticle back. (It would be fine if you could perform this little act every day until you get the cuticle under control.) Faithful use of olive oil should help correct the brittle nail condition as will proper filing. Remember to use the smooth side of an emery board, and never a steel file, in shaping your nails.
Buy liquid polish with a creme base. It goes on smoothly without streaking if you don't get too liberal an amount on the brush when applying.
One more thing—be sure to massage cold cream or a cuticle cream around the base of your nails every night like a good girl.

Best of luck with your lily whites when you flash them gracefully in the fastidious gaze of Mr. Handsome when Easter comes!
Yours,
B. Upper.

An Idea of Size
From actual experiment it has been proven that the shell of an average ostrich egg will hold 18 or twenty hens' eggs.

Miss Blanche Stockton

If it's candy, hockey sticks, or a "Weiner" roast that is your heart's desire, you have only to see Miss Stockton to have your wish granted. Miss Stockton must have her calendar marked with red circles around important dates, for she never seems to forget them. On Halloween are we not greeted in the dining room by merry jack o'lanterns and food to match? When we have forgotten that George Washington ever had a birthday are we not cheered from low spirits to high by decorations and food that old George himself would envy? And, in spite of the heresay—it doesn't take very much to put a college girl into good spirits. It is not every college dietitian that will so artistically shape a cookie or make a homely grapefruit handsome, as does our Miss Stockton, and yet through it all, Miss Stockton, how do you stay so calm, when most housewives would tear their hair at the thought of serving six guests?

Miss Blanche Stockton graduated from Salem in 1924 with a B. S. degree in Home Economics. She was associated with one of the public schools until Salem decided that it couldn't do without her any longer.

Mr. Snavelly

Rightly occupying just as big a place in our affections as Miss Stockton and her cookies are Mr. Snavelly and his notebooks. Who wraps up packages to be mailed; who ties up teacher's Christmas present at the last minute; who cashes the welcomed check from home; who charges the irristible bracelet before the check comes; who lets the various campus organizations sponsor profitable days at his store; who does anything for a Salem girl from putting the best beau's "pitcher" in a new frame to searching the town over for a special pen point which he hasn't in stock? The man of all these trades and kindnesses could be none other than Mr. Snavelly at the bookstore. He is the very personification of accommodation and patience, and even if Salem students are guilty of dashing in early in the morning only half awake in demand of a pack of paper and dashing thoughtlessly out again without one word of thanks, just the same they have the deepest appreciation and gratitude in their hearts and recognize a good man when they see one.

SPORTS SIDELINES

One of the biggest events of the year will be the basket ball game between our manly co-ed and the hefty male members of the faculty, which will be played soon. It will be "fetching" to see such athletes as McEwen, Curlee, Downs, Schofield, and Campbell tearing up and down the floor of the "Hut." The members of the co-ed team will probably be Stone, Plaster, F. Campbell, Blumenthal, and Dunford. This interesting contest is being sponsored by the Athletic Association. More will be said about the game later.

We hear that the co-eds, headed by Albert Blumenthal, wish to challenge the girls in a basket ball game using girls' rules. More power to youse guys!

The present Junior Class certainly does miss the fine playing of F. Seales, J. Rondthaler, and V. Lyons. We hope some team is using them this season.

"Neely" Maslin has promised faithfully to come down to practice basket ball. Here's hoping she will keep that New Year's resolution.

Gertrude Schwalbe, Rachel Carroll, and Mildred Carter are on the sidelines this season because of recent appendix operations.

Willena Couch is not only a champion tennis player, and star hockey player, but also an excellent basket ball player. She is going to cause the upper classmen plenty of worry.

WITTY KITTY

By NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

The girl chum says if people feared exposure to the sun as they do exposure to ridicule, there would be no cases of sunburn.

There was a young lady named Binder,
(In South Carolina you'll find her)
She bought a dime ring,
The lovesick poor thing!
Everybody was fooled but Miss Binder.

HOW NOT TO LIGHT A BRIDGE TABLE
Think of trying to play bridge by the light of two candles, stuck in bottle tops. Yet that is the equivalent of the light in many homes — a level of illumination that will make any party drag.
For gayer, livelier parties, use an indirect portable lamp. It provides the ideal light shadowless and glareless — for playing bridge and other games in comfort . . . and an equally efficient light for a quiet evening of reading.
Phone Southern Public Utilities Co. and ask for a free demonstration of the new type direct-indirect lamp in your home.
