CONFERENCE

A great part of the student body was, perhaps, unaware of the fact that there were about sixty visitors at Salem a week ago. At any rate, that part didn't have anything to do with these visitors. A few days before our Spring holidays we learned that the S. I. A. S. G. was to have its annual conference here and that representatives were to be sent from most of the colleges in the South. We know from its name that the organization is one made up of student governments from Southern colleges; we know from the very fact that it is a student government organization that its representatives must discuss problems common to all student governments. What we don't know, however, is how this particular conference was conducted and what was accomplished. We are awaiting with interest a report from our delegates.

WHOOOPS!

By Chubby Hayes

Last Wednesday night the Seniors lost a bit of their traditional dignity and enjoyed a mad riotous time with the Silly Sophomores who only had to act natural to have a good time.

There was much discussion in Senior building, Wednesday afternoon as to whether or not pillows would be considered as part of the correct attire of novices (Imagine being a senior and not knowing how to skate).

The Sophomores, as hostesses, did not want to be outdone in skating ability so several pairs of skates were kept busy on Second Floor hall that afternoon. Nothing could have been funnier than Louise Early sailing down the hall screaming at the top of her voice after a hearty push by Lib Dobbins.

Or at the rink nothing could have been funnier:

Than the loud bang with which Frances Turnage hit the floor landing — well you must know where — or the serious looks of concentration on the faces of Agnes Brown and Sarah Turlington, or the time Katherine King gracefully straddled a pole and then slid down to the floor, or the look of astonishment on the face of Lyell Glenn — she thought at least she was safe for the minute — when she fell off of her perch on the railing, or the high "C" Frances Watlington hit when the floor hit her.

Well, everybody had a grand time and lots of laughs out of it. Let's do it again sometime.

JOHN MASON BROWN TO BE LAST SALEM LECTURER

head of the Dramatic Department of the Summer School of the University of Montana. So began his career as lecturer.

Subsequently Mr. Brown has been staff lecturer for the American Laboratory Theatre in New York City, and is now staff lecturer for the League for Political Education, New York City, the Philadelphia Forum and the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. In 1931-1932 he gave a course at Yale University on "The History of Criticism from Aristotle to the Present." He has also taught at the Bread Loaf Writers' Conference, Columbia University and given summer courses in playwriting and the history of the modern theatre at Harvard. From 1924 to 1928 he was Associate Editor and Drama Critic of Theatre Arts Monthly. Since 1929 he has been Dramatic Critic of the New York Post.

This brilliant young authority on the drama is also the author of six notable books on the theatre.

William Lyon Phelps writes that "John Mason Brown is one of the best public lecturers in the United States," and that he is "the best lecturer on the drama among dramatic critics." He is "young enough to be enthusiastic and old enough to be wise," says Burns Mantle. His combination of wide knowledge and good taste with clear delivery and gay humor might be described as a perfect recipe for a successful lecturer.

We look forward eagerly to his visit this year at Salem.

gram proved to be one of the most enjoyable of the entire year, for the opportunity of hearing such a splendid group of voices under capable direction does not come often.

AT RANDOM

THE MAN HE KILLED

"Had he and I but met
By some old ancient inn,
We should have sat us down to wet
Right many a nipperkin!

"But ranged as infantry,
And staring face to face,
I shot at him as he at me,
And killed him in his place.

"I shot him dead because —
Because he was my foe,
Just so: My foe of course he was;
That's clear enough; although

"He thought he'd 'list, perhaps,
Off-hand like — just as I —
Was out of work — had sold his traps —
No other reason why.

"Yes; quaint and curious war is!
You shoot a fellow down
You'd treat if met where any bar is,
Or help to half-a-crown."

—Thomas Hardy.
