

MAY DAY CHAIRMEN AT WORK

Here are Wyatt Wilkinson, Chairman of May Day Committee, and Marguerite Bettinger, Chairman of the May Day Dance Committee "putting their heads together" to make this year's festival one of the best ever produced at Salem.

MEET THE SALEM BEAUTIES

Maid Barbara Hawkins of Blackstone, Va., is blond, easy to get along with, and fond of practical jokes. She hopes gentlemen prefer blonds and she likes them to be dark. Sensible and moody all at the same time, she likes Brahms and knitting.

Miss Ceceilia Nuchols of Charlotte, N. C., adds the striking note to the Junior list — Ciel is the tall willowy lass who can be demure and devilish, angelic and abominable at practically the same moment. Of tremendous vitality — or limp as a wet dish rag — she is known for her clothes (the Carmen Miranda variety), her cracks, and her "manner." Ciel doesn't believe in hasty marriages — she's practically a conservative on a number of such points but with all that, she's impulsive, has a wonderful touch with budgets, and underneath is the "gay young thing."

Maid Carlotta Carter of Washington, N. C., completes the Junior list. She's tall, has a ready smile, and a smooth soprano speaking voice. She likes ruffled dresses — but doesn't wear them, although she does dress only to please herself and the mood of the moment. There's something of the poet in "Cootie" and she likes to analyse things — but mostly she's a family girl. She loves her family and wants someday to have one of her own complete with six children. She loves uniforms (this has no connection with the last item) and especially those of the air corps; she likes masculine men — tall and dark.

Petite brunette with wise brown eyes adds up to Mary Jane Kelly Sophomore Representative from Fayetteville, N. C. She admits she doesn't trust women, likes her men dark and not too tall — in proportion sort of. She answers yes to war marriages though she's not planning one, and she's shy with strangers and talks a blue streak with friends. If she had a million dollars she'd buy clothes with it and then Defense Bonds.

Marian Burvenick of Woodhaven, N. Y., is the smooth brunette who is that rare oddity — a Yankee with a southern drawl. Serene and sweet always, Marian is hoping to go to work this summer with, of all glamour jobs The Conover Modeling Agency. Burvenick likes her men conservative, easy to get along with, and not too heavy in conversation. She likes clothes too, and is eventually hoping to get married and settle down to suburban life. Her favorite date occurs in "The City" — New York to us — and consists of dancing and dinner, perhaps a show.

The Freshmen have two beauties, both brunettes, as their entries. Miss Mary Tennille of Winston-Salem, N. C., has very black hair, creamy white skin, and eyes that flash out almost hidden by her cheeks when she laughs. She loves nothing better than to speed down a highway on a moonlight night in a convertible — unless its taking a ride in a plane. Her favorite color is blue, and as for men — she refused to describe him.

Hailing from Brooklyn, N. Y., is a shy little, sweet little Freshman by the name of Rosalind Reisman. Naturally she's been homesick but her comments on Southern girls are pretty pertinent. She thinks they are slower than Northerners but a lot more friendly — she doesn't know any Southern boys so she hasn't any comments to make on that subject. Her favorite song is "Faithful to You," and "this interview is slanted with a certain person in mind" she added.

There they are — Salem's beauty concentrated into one Royal assemblage. Greek maids and maidens will they become for the ceremony of crowning which will bring the pageant to a triumphant close, then the Maids will drop their titles and put their tresses back into pig-tails.
