Golschmann To Conduct

The Cleveland Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann will be presented as the last concert in the current Civic Music Series at 8:30 Saturday evening in Reynolds auditorium.

Golschmann, a Parisian-born musician, is internationally acclaimed as a stylist and perfectionist in orchestral performance. He made his American debut in 1924 as guest conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra, and in 1931 he was chosen permanent conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Golschmann now heads the list of guest conductors who have occupied the podium of the Cleveland Symphony since its conductor Eric Leinsdorf joined the army in 1944. He is serving as guest conductor during a five weeks tour which includes Winston-Salem.

The program will include: Toccata in D Minor, "Dorian" by Bach; Symphony No. 7 in A Major, Opus 92, by Beethoven; Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan and Isolde" by Wagner; and Symphonic Excerpts from the ballet "Daphnis et Chloé", Second Suite by Ravel.

Vladimir Golschmann will conduct the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra when it appears in concert here Saturday evening, March 24, at Reynolds Auditorium. The concert will be the last of the Civic Music Association's current series.

Miss Kark To Leave

It has been announced by the Administration of Salem College that Miss Naomi Kark, assistant professor of art, will not return to her duties following the Easter recess due to the illness of her father in Capetown, South Africa. Miss Kark expects to obtain passage from this country within the next few weeks and will leave for New York on Wednesday in order to complete arrangements for the trip.

During her four years in the United States, Miss Kark has been awarded a Master of Fine Arts degree by Yale University, and she has met with splendid success in the teaching field. Miss Kark has stated her intention to return to America just as soon as home and war conditions make it possible.

Polly Starbuck of Scarsdale, New York, was elected today by the student body to be president of the Athletic Association for the year 1945-46. Betsey Casteen from Leaksville, North Carolina, was the other candidate.

Polly is a Public School Music Major and plans to do graduate work in that field after her graduation from Salem. She has been an active member of the student body since her freshman year when she was captain of her class hockey team, a member of the German Club, and was elected to the Legislative Board of Student Government.

For the past two years the new A. A. president has been a member of the Athletic Association Council. Last year she was hockey manager and at the present she is treasurer of the Association. Also for these two years Polly has been a member of the International Relations Club. In addition to these activities she is, at the present, a member of the War Activities Council, a Red Cross Supervisor, and Fire Chief for the Student body.

Robin Hood To Caper In May Dell

by Lucille Newman

For the first time since 1935 Salem will skip back to the enchanting days of Merry Old England for its annual May Day celebration. This year beneath the ancient trees and among the periwinkle Robin Hood and his lads in Lincoln green will roam. The dale will be none other than Sherwood Forest and over across the hill lies Nottingham town.

Right merrily they dwell beneath the shades of Sherwood Forest until one day a fair minstrel, Allen A. Dale, comes to Robin for help. Though Allen A. Dale is in love with fair Ellen and though Ellen loves Allen A. Dale it seems that she, by her father's choice, must marry old Sir Stephen Trent—who has more money than love.

Now Robin could never see one unhappy; so it's off to Nottingham town to rescue poor Ellen. And who is there among us to outwit Robin? None a'tall to be sure—least of all Stephen Trent! On May Day then you will see how Robin Hood and Little John save poor Ellen and how they bring her back to Sherwood Forest for a far happier wedding.

The merry rogues of Sherwood have pranks and dancing to entertain all. Allen A. Dale will charm you with a lilting voice and Old English airs and folk tunes. Friar Tuck will be there also in a right jolly mood, as well as many pretty little shepherdesses who will dance for you. A wandering minstrel fiddles for a small fee—a bit of pleading, to be exact. So hear ye . . . hear ye—come one and all. Bring along your gay laughter, and lot's of merry sunshine!

Old Clothes Drive To Begin Soon

"What you can spare, they can wear" is the slogan of the Old Clothes Drive which will be sponsored by the War Activities Council. The drive will begin right after Easter vacation, and is part of a nation-wide drive.

The donated garments will be shipped to the war-devastated countries of the world. All types and sizes of usable clothing are needed. Boxes will be placed on the halls of the dormitories, and everyone is urged to cooperate in this urgent plea. Remember, WHAT YOU CAN SPARE, THEY CAN WEAR!

Home Church Holds Services

The Passion Week Services, a custom of the Home Moravian Church, will begin Palm Sunday night with the reading of "The Triumphal Entry." Salemites are urged to attend this service, which should prove to be both interesting and inspiring.

These services will be held every night throughout Passion Week and each night another part of the story of Christ's Passion will be read, terminating finally in the Resurrection Service on Easter Day.

The story that will be read is a harmony of all four Gospels, and may be found in the "Passion Week Manual," a copy of which is owned by almost every member of the Home Church. The words are exactly like those in the Bible, and are interspersed by appropriately selected hymns and anthems.

Jane Jeter Is Contest Winner

Jane Jeter, freshman from Raleigh, has been informed that she is the winner of fifty dollars in cash and a twenty-five dollar war bond as first prize for the Walter Hines Page Essay Contest.

This contest, which is sponsored by the Aberdeen Book Club and interested persons at the University of North Carolina, the University of Virginia, and in Rocky Mount and Raleigh, was held for the purpose of promoting Anglo-American friendship. The tough fighting continues on all fronts in Europe. The hard driving American 7th and 3rd armies have joined in the Saar area in a pincers movement. Their joint action has cut off the 10,000 remaining troops of the Rhine sector and all organized resistance has collapsed. The offensive, which was begun a week ago, will eliminate the Nazis on the west bank of the Rhine when the mopping up operations are completed. The Americans have taken the city of Ludwigshafen, an important German chemical center.

The Reds are driving hard on the Western front in their attempt to reach Berlin. Their efforts now are to take the important port of Danzig. Danzig was a free city on the Baltic Sea at the tip of the Polish Corridor in 1939. At the present time the Russians are some thirty-odd miles from Berlin.

In the Pacific, the Marines have succeeded in raising the American flag over Iwo Jima after twenty-eight days of the bitterest and the bloodiest fighting of this war. The Marine casualties were appalling. The number killed was 4,189. Admiral Nimitz announced, however, that the Japanese lost five men for every American killed.

The Americans have invaded the island of Panay in the Philippines and are making rapid gains. The capital city of Iloilo with all harbors and docks intact, fell to the doughboys of the 40th Infantry Division sixty hours after the invasion. Approximately seventy per cent of the city had been destroyed by fire.

Mandalay, a strategic city in Burma on the Burma-Lashio highway, fell to the British after a twelve day siege. Mandalay had been occupied almost three years by the Japanese.

The air forces in Europe and the Pacific have been supporting the operations of the ground forces by unusually heavy bombardment of the enemy. On the home front, meanwhile, the Senate is beginning an investigation of the food shortage prevalent in the United States. There is a general shortage of food which may be due to a number of causes.

Dr. Mauze Emphasizes Christ In Daily Living

"Come On, Let's Go"

Dr. George Mauze, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Winston-Salem, who is conducting a series of talks at Salem this week, spoke to the student body in Assembly this past Tuesday. He took as his theme, "Come On, Let's Go."

This phrase is a common one which has been glorified by the war, one which fuses people of all classes. He likened it to the words spoken by Jesus to his disciples as they left the Last Supper, "Arise, let us go hence."

These two phrases are inseparably bound. First, they are both calls to leave one's present position of rest and safety and to go into darkness and danger, carrying always the idea of going forward. Also, each of them carries with it the implication of a leadership that discovers the path, sets the pace, and shares the dangers.

Dr. Mauze presented a challenge to be "clean in body, chaste in mind, and courageous in spirit," and to be true to God, accepting Christ without timidity, shame or indifference. These college students are privileged youths, he said, who are allowed in times such as these to sit in the halls of learning, and it will be for these to face the big task ahead.

Hi School Pupils Give Program

Music Hour yesterday presented a group of high school students who are studying music at Salem. Those appearing in the recital were Juanita Smith, who sang "Laschia Chio Piango" by Handel; Doris Lasley, "Elves" by Holler; Jean Payne, "My Country" by Haydn; Mary Jane Johnson, "Verdi Prati" by Handel; Rose Ellen Bowen, "By the Sea" by Schubert; Cora Lee Poplin, "The Lotus Flower" by Schumann; Nell Tuttle, "A Heart That's Free" by Robyn; Evelyn Tatum, "Chanson Triste" by Tschaiikovsky; Genevieve Gallen, "Low Tide" by Williams; Betty Pfaff, "The Plague of Love" by Wilson; and Alice Geitner, "Elfin Dance" by Grieg.

"What to Do With Christ"

"Today we are the judges of Christ," said Dr. George Mauze, minister of the First Presbyterian Church in his talk on Christ in assembly Thursday. "What shall we do with Jesus who is called the Christ? He is on our hands."

Dr. Mauze told the story of Pontius Pilate who let sin creep into his faith. Pontius Pilate held a petty post in the Roman Empire. A judge of excellent birth and education, who wanted to shirk his duty in the condemning of Jesus he said, "Take him and judge him in your own laws; leave me alone." Jesus was then sent to King Herod but Herod was not to be caught in the trap. Back Jesus went to Pontius Pilate who said, "What shall I do with Jesus who is called the Christ?" Finally Pontius Pilate made a compromise and then said, "I find no fault with him," for he did not want to crucify Jesus. But a Roman friend said "If thou let this man go, thou art not the friend of Caesar." Jesus was crucified. Pilate lost his soul, his self-respect, and his sense of right. Pontius Pilate failed in a pinch.

Christ is on our hands and a compromise is impossible when dealing with Him. For Jesus has said, "He that is not with me, is against me." And you can not get Christ off your hands without a decision. The "hound of heaven" will make our lives a "living hell" until we have done what we should—go to Calvary and God and find our faith.

Sin has defeated us many times as it did with Pontius Pilate. Therefore we must search our hearts for the truth to the question "What shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?"

Local Students Are Entertained

The seniors taking college preparatory courses in the three Winston-Salem high schools were entertained informally Monday and Tuesday afternoons in the Day Students Center.

Miss Hixson, Peggy Witherington, and Sarah Hege spoke briefly on college life and the part a day student plays in the extra-curricular activities.
