

Fashion Show

The fitted coat is fashion news this spring, and you could see why as Frances Morrison modeled her Redingote suit.

If you have not bought your long summer formal, you should have been interested in Julia Parker's strapless checker-board blue and yellow pure silk organza. Organza is also worn beautifully to teas and afternoon parties all summer, and Anne Carrington wore hers with a lovely hat of veil and flowers. Carroll Johnson wore white organdy with a hand painted flower motif on the full skirt.

Betty Kincaid was both sophisticated and charming in her picture hat of black straw and black linen dress worn under a striped knitted bolero jacket and styled by Helene of California. Just picture yourself walking down the broad avenues of Paris in the outfit! Another suggestion for summer evenings at home or abroad was Betty Griffin's navy gorgette that was tucked from the shoulder to below the waist graduating into a soft fullness in the skirt.

You could just see those lucky girls who have June wedding plans, casting admiring glances at the bridal sets that were shown! Models for these sets were Sue Stowers, Connie Neiman, and Lucy Harper. Jane Fearing and Joyce Whitehurst showed what the bridesmaids would wear. B. J. Knoss was our June bride, and the wedding dress of the evening was in sheer nylon net over satin with bands of satin to accentuate the full, flowing skirt.

Letters

(Continued from page two) ing for the Pierettes as are spent on other major organizations. The Pierettes should get more credit and recognition for the amount of work and the creative effort that they put into the production of plays.

A petition will be submitted to the Legislative Board of the Student Government requesting that the Pierrette Players become a major organization on campus.
