Dr. Dale H. Gramley walks around campus before returning to his desk in the President's Office.

Gramley Reports Business Of Administrative Office

News from the President's Office this week came from a familiar face, seated behind a familiar desk. Yes, Dr. Dale H. Gramley has switched headquarters from the second floor of his home to the President's Office.

According to Dr. Gramley, the Governor's School this summer went very, very well. However, the school left Mr. Jack White little time to do repair work before the college opened in September.

The Governor's School will be in operation for two more summers. Money for the school was donated by the Carnegie Foundation in New York and was matched by private, local businesses and industries. The school runs on a budget of $150,000 a year.

Dr. Gramley said that the plans for the Fine Arts Building will be completed this week and will go into the hands of bidders. It will be another month before a contract is awarded.

Already $1,641,000 has been raised for the new Fine Arts Building. But as Dr. Gramley said, "The door is open for contributions."

As co-chairman of the Community-wide Committee on Higher Education for the 200th Anniversary of the Salem Community, Dr. Gramley has appointed members of Salem's faculty to investigate what Salem can do for this project. Besides Dr. Gramley, the committee consists of Dean Ivy Hixson, Dean Clemens Sandresky, Mr. Jack White, Miss Barbara Battle, Mr.

Jim Bray, and Dr. Inzer Byers. Also on the committee are Mrs. Anna Cooper, Miss Lelia Marsh, Mrs. Vern Mock, Mr. John Mueller, Mr. Edwin Shewmake, and Dr. Elizabeth Welch.

Salem's committee will meet within the next week to discuss what Salem may do in the way of a Symposium, art exhibit, and musical performance. They will also discuss the possibility of professional meetings.

As the familiar voice discussed the business and activities of the administrative office, Salem affairs were again back to normal.

Wolfersteig Will Direct 'Elijah' By Mendelssohn At Presbyterian Church

Elijah, an oratorio by Mendelssohn, will be presented by the First Presbyterian Church choir, under the direction of Dr. Robert Wolfersteig on Sunday. The performance, which will begin at 7:30 p.m., and is open to the public, will be held in the sanctuary.

The part of Elijah will be sung by Professor Richard Brewer, head of the music department at Pfeiffer College. Other soloists include Eloise Wolfersteig, Ethel Kalter, and William E. Honeycutt. The part of the angel will be sung by Clara Allen and that of the youth, by Martha Siceloff.

Part one of the two-part oratorio consists of the prophecy of the drought, the raising of the dead son of the widow by Elijah, Elijah's conflict with the priests of Baal, and finally, the coming of the rain.

The second part opens with the conflict of Elijah and Jezebel, continues with Elijah's journey into the desert, and concludes with the ascent of Elijah into heaven in the fiery chariot.

Committee Evaluates Salem's Plan Studies To Include Six Standards

Thirteen members of the State Visitation Committee, which will evaluate Salem's teacher education method, will arrive Sunday and will begin their intensive study of every aspect of Salem life which in any way affects teacher education. After securing the facts, the committee will report to the Evaluation Committee which will decide upon the acceptance, rejection, or changes needed in Salem's plan.

Every department at Salem which is involved in teacher education will have specialized representatives from the Visitation Committee check its particular functions to see that they are effective. The specialized committee members are the following: Dr. Cameron West, Academic Dean, Pfeiffer College—chairman; Dr. J. P. Freeman, Director, Division of Professional Services—consultant; Dr. Catherine Dennis, State Department of Public Instruction—home economics and facilities; and Dr. John Ebbs, East Carolina College—English and personnel.

Other members of the committee include Mrs. Clifton Edwards, State Department of Public Instruction—elementary program; Dr. Jerry Hall, State Department of Public Instruction—secondary program and laboratory experiences; James Hillman, formerly Director, Division of Professional Services—faculty and curricula; Dr. Arnold Hoffman, State Department of Public Instruction—music, art and personnel; Dr. Lloyd Lowder, Pfeiffer College—personnel and elementary education; Dr. Jack Parker, Wake Forest College—languages and facilities; Dr. Percival Perry, Wake Forest College—faculty and social studies; Henry Shannon, North Carolina State College—sciences and laboratory experiences; and Dr. James Val-same, State Department of Public Instruction—mathematics and over-all policies.

Upon arrival, the committee will begin viewing every phase of campus life. Since all but two of the committee will be living on campus, they will have direct contact with the students—whether it be in the refectory, dormitories or classrooms.

Committee Evaluates Self-Study

Conferences will be the primary business Monday and Tuesday. To evaluate Salem's self-study, which was compiled last year by all of Salem's faculty and which is based on the six standards of the new "Approved Programs Approach to Teacher Education," will be the purpose of the conferences.

The areas included in the six standards are over-all policies, student personnel programs and services, faculty, curricula, professional laboratory experiences, facilities, equipment, and materials. Various members of Salem's faculty will meet with members of the Visitation Committee to discuss the different standards so they may see how effectively they are carried out at Salem.

There will be a luncheon Tuesday in the Club Dining Room for the Visitation Committee representatives of the Winston-Salem-Forsyth County Schools, and the Salem Committee on Teacher Education.

Heidemann Will Perform With Winston Symphony

The Winston-Salem Symphony's first concert of the 1963-64 season will be held Tuesday, October 22 and will feature Hans Heidemann, a member of the faculty of the Salem College School of Music. The concert will begin at 8:15 p.m.

Mr. Heidemann, who has studied at the Juilliard School of Music and the Brooklyn Conservatory, will be the soloist in Piano Concerto in G Major (Beethoven). The rest of the program will include "Prelude" to Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg (Wagner) and Symphony No. 1 in C Minor (Brahms).

In Reynolds Auditorium. Consecration of the House Over-ture, (Beethoven) was chosen for this program by John Fuele, conductor, because this will be the first concert in the newly renovated Reynolds Auditorium. New seats have been installed in the auditorium; the stage has been refinished; and the heating, lighting and acoustics have been improved.

Mr. Heidemann, as assistant professor of piano, is on Sabbatical leave this year and is engaged in graduate study at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro.

Besides Mr. Heidemann, Salem College will be represented at this concert by Mrs. Betty Crossley on the viola, Jo Dunbar on the violin, Frances Speas on the flute, Anne Cleino on the cello, and Mr. Eugene Jacobowsky, concert master.

Tickets will be available at the door for one dollar.

Humanities Club To Hold Panel On Foreign School

The Humanities Club is presenting a panel discussion on education abroad, the twenty-second of this month at 6:30 p.m., in the Day Student Center.

The panel members will be our two foreign exchange students, Elsken Rutgers from The Netherlands, and Maria Celia Pascoal de Gamma from Brazil, along with Susie Robinson and Brandy Hughes who have studied in Austria and France respectively.

To begin the program, each of the four girls will present a short sketch of the educational system in the country they represent. Afterwards, Betty Bullard will lead the discussion on the extent of academic freedom in the various countries in areas including politics and religion, the freedom of speech, the rules and regulations of the school, and faculty-student relationships.

The program will be concluded with comments on the question, "Are the educational systems of other countries more advanced than the American system?"

Advisory Board Taps Members For This Year

The Faculty Advisory Board for this year is composed of Miss Anne Woodward, appointed by the faculty; Mr. James Bray, appointed by the Student Government and Miss Barbara Battle, appointed by Dr. Dale Gramley. Dean Amy Heidbreder and Dr. Gramley are permanent members of the board.

The Faculty Advisory Board serves as an advisor in general matters pertaining to the Student Government Association. It is specifically concerned with the regulations governing dormitory and social life. It also acts with the Judicial Board in those matters that involve major penalties or impeachment.

Student Board Welcome Frosh

Tish Johnston opened the October 15 Legislative Board meeting by welcoming the new freshman class representatives, Roberta Frost and Jane Grimsly. New freshman representatives to IRS are: Bebe Anderson, Pat Tillery, Suzanne Worthington, and Ann Brownlee. "Y" representatives are: Mary Etta Hardison, Dabney Kelley, and Anna White. Jean Yager and Boodie Crowe are representatives to WRA.

A note of appreciation from Dr. Dale Gramley was read. This was in return for the Student Government gift of a book of art work.

Salem College has been invited to send representatives to a planning meeting of the State Student Legislature. Legislative Board members who will attend the October 20 meeting at Wake Forest College are: Tish Johnston, Margy Harris, Wookie Workman, Dottie Davis, Jean King, Kay Kell, and Jane Grimsley.

It was decided to post a letter of protest against the North Carolina speaker ban bill in Main Hall. The letter was drawn up as a group effort by the Legislative Board and accepted by the board. All students are urged to sign this letter, but only on condition that the individual student does so after careful consideration. Each signer should be perfectly certain of her own reasons for signing.
