SNOOPING SAM

Earl Pearson said, "Something new has been added." Of course that was original.

Don't tell us Iris's one ambition is to be a drum majorette. Luck to you, Iris.

Tramp, tramp, tramp, the girls go marching. And who do you think leads them? It's Mrs. Farmer.

It's no use, Hollis. You can't argue with Mr. Rogers. In fact, we've stopped trying.

Mrs. Rogers is a perfect jumping jack when she leads her class in exercises.

This is just in case you don't know what the initials in Mister Morgan's name stand for. It's G. G. - "Goo-Goo".

WANTED: A remedy to prevent Margaret's and Josephine's giggling in and out of class.

Can anybody tell us who says, and we quote, "Well, I'll tell you; here's the thing about it." Got It? Miss Lackey, of course.

I've just received a request from the girls. Please Howard, don't be so stuck up.

Of all things to do while taking exercises--Mrs. Lassiter's class had to play "Ring around the roses".

Sarah Morgan talks herself into a jam but she can't talk herself out of it.

FAMILIAR SCENES:

Millard and an ice cream sandwich going hand and mouth into study hall.

Raymond dodging into the library to read the morning paper.

Keith Philips and Dan Robert Bissette carrying books other than their own.

Mr. Walker searching for his keys.

Mary Elizabeth coming in late for Geometry.

PLASTIC BODY USED IN BIOLOGY STUDY

A plastic body, life size, belonging to the county educational division, is being used by the ninth grade Biology class in their studies of the human body. This skeleton can be taken apart for study, thereby enabling the students to get a better idea of the sections and make up of the human body.

Students Complete Log Of Moby Dick

A log of the "Poquod", the famous ship in the novel "Moby Dick", has been completed by the tenth grade. Also while reading the story, the class kept day by day a log of the principal events. Sketches depicting the main incidents of the story and drawn by members of the class appear with the log in Mrs. Farmer's room.

Carson Wynne, Benjamin Lamm, Fitzhugh Saunders, Hildred Ruffin, Talmadge Creech, and Joyce Vick did most of the drawing.
