

MY GREATEST DESIRE

(Theme)
Wanda Murray

To accomplish in life the things that get the better of most men is my desire. Not to be great for the world to see, just great in the simple everyday things of life is all I ask. To man a kind word I would speak and make better the things for others in need. A friend to all is what I would be to gain my greatest desire.

OUR ONLY HOPE

(Theme)
E. C. Griffin

Today's conditions reveal the lack of religious education and the failure to observe God's will.

The entire world is engaged in the bloodiest of all wars. Why has this happened? Where lies the blame?

This great blunder is the result of greed, selfishness, lack of love, and neighborliness. Different would conditions be if the world had observed and taught the need for building up instead of tearing down. Observance of the laws of social justice and brotherhood is our only hope of defying and preventing future wars. America can take the lead.

Grandfather's Old House

(Descriptive Par.)
Easter Pearl Bailey

Weather-beaten, the old dilapidated house rested on the hill, surrounded by trees. To passer-bys it appeared vacant, although it was filled with cob-webs and dust. For many years it had stood, built by my great great grandfather. Because no visitors had entered its doors for years, the house seemed sad and lonely. Slowly and by degrees it fell from its foundation, swaying with the weather.

Winter all over the world we faced as we gazed from the windows.

What we do to help our country demands no pay.

Leader of his class the boy might have been had he not been lazy.

To be richly rewarded in the end one must obey the simple laws

(Theme)
Florence Joyner

One of my greatest desires is to graduate. By then I hope to be wiser and old enough to choose a worthy career or to extend my education by going to college.

If a career is chosen, others shall not determine it for me, as I haven't the talents they have. I have always tried to earn money during leisure because I enjoy spending it rather than Dad's. Wisely I hope to choose my work, enjoy it, and earn a decent living.

If college is chosen, I desire to gain more knowledge that a better career may be taken up later.

of humanity.

Valiantly the players fought to be the winning team of the season.

Gay and colorful were the crowds at the football game.

To spend a weekend in the country seems like a dream to the city child.

As the evening shadows grew longer, the boys wound their way homeward through the woods.
