

MISS WETHERINGTON AND DR. TIPPET VISIT THE SCHOOL

Miss Jane Wetherington and Dr. James S. Tippet paid Bailey school a visit some time ago in the interest of the new twelfth grade program recently added to the schools of North Carolina.

They stressed the fact that this program affecting all the grades from the first through high school will afford more time for certain vital subjects; such as, science and arts and crafts, which heretofore have had to be crowded into the curriculum.

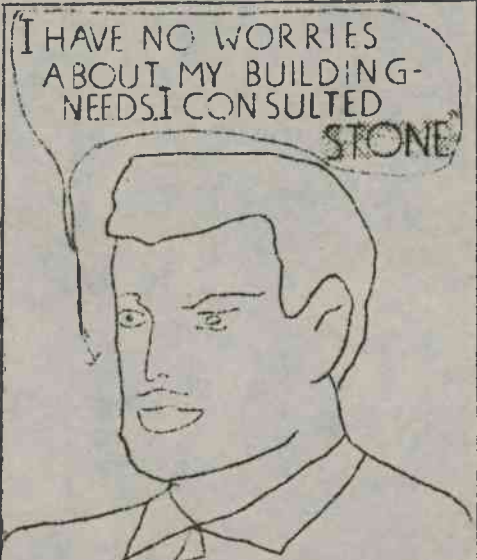

Miss Wetherington, with a committee of art teachers, has prepared a new art bulletin, "Art in the Public Schools, Years 1-XII". This bulletin is based upon the following theses: first, that art should be a part of every phase of living; second, that every person should have guidance in art principles; third, that art is worthy for art's sake; fourth, that art is worthwhile as a leisure time interest. Dr. Tippet talked to the teachers, giving helpful suggestions and answering questions pertaining to the initiation of this program in the school system. He is offering his services to the schools and teachers throughout the state to help them organize their curriculum to fit this new need.

RETURN VISIT

Miss Wetherington, from the Division of Instructional Service, came back last Monday and spent the day. She was accompanied by Mr. Incoe. Together they inspected the building to determine needs for maintaining the requirements for accreditation. The elementary school, put on the accredited list in 1939, requires the following needs to maintain that standard: A set of tools for grades one through seven, five easels, a victrola with a minimum of twelve records, a teacher's supply closet for each room, and three extra hand lavatories.
